MUCH EXCITMENT in Paris, especially about the sudden drop in British sterling as compared with French francs. The French believe that the British no longer mean to hold up the value of the pound, and fear that Britain and the United States will begin "a cheap money" competition, disastrous to those that remain proudly on the gold standard.

If United States and British moneys are cheap the world will buy from Britain and the United States, rather than from countries with dear money.

This is further confirmation of the statement that nobody knows anything about money. The world can only guess, as events develop.

MR. AL CAPONE, able in his line, is indignant, his lawyers almost weep because Mr. Capone, in the dead of night, is transferred from the peaceful prison of Atlanta, Georgia, to the rock prison of Alcatraz Island, where government keeps its "most desperate prisoners."

Mr. Capone, who says he has been "a model prisoner, as all his guards will testify," may be comforted by the suggestion that our government sees in him some resemblance to Napoleon Bonaparte. Napoleon was a model prisoner on the Island of Elba, but did not stay there long, and, when he came back, made considerable trouble.

The British transferred him to St. Helena, a rocky, distant island, like Alcatraz, only more so. And there Napoleon stayed till he died, his corpse coming back in triumph, to be buried in Paris.

AT BRIDGETON, N. J., scene of unpleasant strikes, "Communist activities" are investigated, Donald J. Henderson, formerly instructor at Columbia University, and his wife being witnesses.

When they admitted that they were Communists the investigating lawyer asked each one, "Do you believe in God?" Mrs. Henderson said she did not believe in a "personal" God. Her husband said:

"I do not believe in the God you do—but, I believe in God."

Defenders of property rights maintain that to believe in God is essential to good citizenship, but strangely it doesn't matter what particular God.

IF MRS. HENDERSON said, "We believe in an African God called Mumbo-Jumbo," or "We believe in Buddha," or "Allah, and his prophet, Mohammed," or "We believe in being parsee," that would have been satisfactory.

And that is reasonable, easily understood, on the theory that if you believe in Mumbo-Jumbo or any other God, you probably believe also that you will go to hell if you take somebody else's property. If you don't believe in Mumbo-Jumbo, or Allah or Buddha, or some supernatural power, you may conclude that there is no hell, in which case, as a matter of course, you would steal everything possible or even divide the property of the rich among the poor.

YOUNG LADIES of Hungary, as all can testify who have sailed down the Danube and visited Budapest, are beautiful, and temperamental. So temperamental in fact as to make Lupe Velez, Dolores Del Rio and 100 female American Hollywood temperamaments rolled into one seem mild and cold.

Imagine this. Girls from twelve to eighteen years of age at Rakospalota forbidden to leave school to see their soldier-sweethearts suddenly developed "mass hysteria" and expressed their disappointment by swallowing objects of all sorts, teaspoons, toothbrushes, everything they could force down their throats. Some are dying.

The most excitable man is mild compared to a baffled young lady with her affections involved. Mass hysteria among females is a very ancient phenomenon, hard to handle. A mild case once developed in a New York lying-in hospital when experiments were made with "twilight sleep."

MR. BERNARD S. DEUTSCH, president of New York's board of aldermen, visiting Mexico, learned, like the man, his son, and the donkey in the old fable, that it is hard to please everybody.

Mr. Deutsch in Mexico City praised everything. Mexico was a wonderful country, and he was glad to say on the authority of high officials that the anti-Jewish movement in Mexico amounted to nothing.

Imagine his surprise when a committee of "gold shirts," a

Hopkins Unmoved by Pleas to Avoid Special Session

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Pennsylvania will have to bear its share of the relief burden regardless of whether that will mean a special session of the Legislature, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins indicated today.

Commenting on reports that a special session would cost $500,000, Hopkins said:

"What of it? They would spend more than that to run a political campaign. If the unemployed are not more important than political campaigns, I'd like to know it."

Hopkins frowned on the suggestion that the federal government carry the state along until the regular session of the Legislature in January.

He declared that he is thinking seriously of giving out the correspondence exchanged with Gov. Gifford Pinchot two months ago. At that time Pinchot was negotiating for $21,000,000 federal funds to carry Pennsylvania unemployed through July and August.

Hopkins asked:

"Say, hasn't Pinchot given out those letters? Hasn't he told the people what we've been writing about? I'll have to dig into the files and look those letters over."

Hopkins was told that Gov. Pinchot and other state authorities placed full responsibility for the impending special session upon him. He replied:

ROOSEVELT AID SOUGHT IN STRIKE

Aluminum Feud Perils Industrial Peace, Union Warns

The Central Labor Union, representing 100,000 organized workers, has served notice upon the President that "the industrial peace of the district" is threatened—even a general strike possible—through refusal of "The Mellon-controlled Aluminum Company of America to arbitrate."

The warnings were in telegrams sent to President Roosevelt and Gov. Pinchot yesterday.

Behind the warning, labor leaders said, stood miners in New Kensington district ready to strike in sympathy with the workers of three Aluminum company plants there.

With them stood truck drivers, also ready to strike, labor leaders said.

The situation was complicated by refusal of the Aluminum Company two days ago to agree to arbitrate the strike, as suggested by Federal Mediator Fred Keightly.

One labor leader said:

"The men are up in arms because the Aluminum Company has refused the men the right to bargain collectively. The conservative unions are doing all in their power to hold the men in check, but the men see in this move a warning that similar treatment and refusal may come

PLANE GETAWAY HINTED; 'HOT TIP' GIVES HOPE FOR 'BREAK' IN HUNT

Three armed bandits held up an unarmed mail truck driver in Butler today and escaped with $50,000, the richest mail robbery haul in the history of the Pittsburgh district.

A mysterious airplane soared over the scene while the bandits worked, leading District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler County, to believe it might have picked up the robbers.

The Pittsburgh-Butler Airport and a private airport on the New Castle road reported that no planes had alighted or taken off from either field this morning.

Postmaster C. G. Dixon, of Butler, announced this afternoon that the police had received a "hot tip" and important developments might be expected soon.

The money, being sent by registered mail from the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve Bank to the Lyndora National Bank, at Lyndora, two miles from Butler, was to meet payrolls of the Standard Steel Car Company and the American Rolling Mill plants at Lyndora.

Strangely enough, the two bundles of currency, carefully guarded in Pittsburgh and carted about in armored cars, were taken at the point of guns from the driver of a little truck who didn't even have a pocketknife to defend himself.

Maxwell C. Lackey, the mail truck driver, had left the Butler Postoffice at 9:10 a. m. for Lyndora with the money in two pouches, and other mail.

Near the western edge of town, in front of the Clinton Hotel at Second and Pillow streets, the bandits in two automobiles crowded Lackey to the curb.

SURE GRAB HINTS LONG-PLANNED JOB

With a sureness that indicated their familiarity with the shipment of the money, the bandits seized three mail bags, two of them containing the big prize and leaped out, stopping long enough to take Lackey's ignition keys. A fourth mail pouch in the truck the robbers left untouched.

Leaving behind one car, the three men jumped into the second car and sped away in the direction of Pittsburgh. An hour later they were reported to have been seen going through Evans City.

State police at Butler described the bandits as heavy-set, short, one with a dark mustache. They escaped in a car bearing an Ohio license. Two alternative license numbers were reported, 887-2857 and 887-207.

State police threw out cordons to guard all highways and broadcast the descriptions of the bandits and their car—an Essex Terraplane.

ROBBERY IN BUSY DISTRICT

The daring holdup occurred on a street lined with business houses and residences. A few pedtestrians nearly hardly knew what was going on.

Smacking of the boldness and skill exhibited by the armored car holdup in Brooklyn last week, that netted a small army of bandits $427,000, the Butler robbery nevertheless was declared by state police to have "no connection with the Brooklyn holdup."

Absence of machine guns among the Butler bandits' weapons led Sergt. M. J. Crowley, of the Butler barracks, state police, to this conclusion.

Lackey, according to postoffice employes, thus described the robbery:

"I was driving along near the Clinton Hotel when another car suddenly shot in front of me and forced me to the curb. I thought the driver was drunk. Then another car pulled up beshind me. Two men with revolvers hopped onto the running board, one on each side, and told me to lie down in the cab. They took the keys to my truck, the mail bags with the money and escaped in the car in front. The other car they abandoned."

POSTAL PROBE BEGINS

Postmaster Dixon notified the postal authorities at Philadelphia, who instructed the Pittsburgh office to investigate. Inspectors L. C. Kenredy and D. H. Stephens went to the scene.

According to Thomas C. Griggs, cashier of the Federal Reserve branch bank here, the money was made up yesterday in packages bound in steel tape and transported in an armored car to the Pittsburgh Postoffice and later in an armored car to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station.

CLIP NRA WINGS OF JOHNSON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, dynamic Recovery Administrator, is going to remain with the reorganized NRA, but there was every indication today that it will not be in the czar-like role that he has heretofore played.

Johnson himself said today, after an hour's conference with President Roosevelt, that he planned to remain with the NRA after its reorganization, which will be announced from the summer White House at Hyde Park in about two weeks.

Gen. Johnson denied as he left the White House all reports of a rift between himself, Donald R. Richberg, Secretary of Labor Perkins, or any others connected with the recovery program. As he was leaving, Richberg arrived for a session with Mr. Roosevelt. They shook hands and chatted amiably for five minutes.

The differences between Johnson and Richberg is over the amount of authority which the proposed committee will have in administering the recovery act. Johnson wants the committee to be subordinate to himself, if he is to be the chairman.

Calling a taxicab, paying his fare in advance, Robert Golomski, alias Robert Gibson, 25, of 601 Shawano street, told the driver to take him to the Allegheny General Hospital.

As the cab neared Madison avenue and Lacock street, Golomski instructed the cab driver to stop. Golomski walked into a hallway and drank poison, according to police. Returning to the cab, he instructed the driver to continue to the hospital. His condition is fair.

Girl Held After Luring Van Meter, Dillinger Aide, Into Police Death Trap

Gang's Ace Gunman Slow on Draw as Firing Begins

ST. PAUL, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A pretty St. Paul girl who had been seen with Homer Van Meter, slain Dillinger gangster, on several occasions when the desperado made the Twin Cities his headquarters last March, was under arrest here today.

It also was learned today from an unimpeachable source that Marion (Mickey) Conforti, known as Van Meter's girl friend for some time, was in St. Paul two weeks ago in the company of the slain gangster. Miss Conforti, who was one of the three women arrested at Little Bohemia, Wis., when John Dillinger, Van Meter and several henchmen escaped a federal trap, is wanted by federal authorities for violating her parole at Madison, Wis.

The girl seized lives only a few blocks from where Van Meter was killed last night by Chief Frank Cullen and three aides, it was reported, and it was believed he may have been en route to her home at the time he was shot down. Police were reluctant to discuss their prisoner.

Van Meter, the sixth of the Dillinger mob to die, was betrayed unwittingly by his interest in the woman. Her name is being withheld. Police said Van Meter had been "going around" with her and that relatives of the woman, suspicious of him, had gone to the police. A check satisfied officers

Patient Falls Two Stories To Death

In Homeopathic Hospital for his second operation in a year, Charles Ebeling, 55, house painter, today fell to his death from a second-floor window as an orderly made an unsuccessful attempt to save him.

Ebeling, confined to his bed since Monday, arose and went to the window, sitting on the sill facing other patients.

They summoned an orderly, but Ebeling fell backwards before the man could reach him.

MANIS KILLING UP TO JURY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Concluding its August term, the Washington County grand jury will act today on a murder charge against George H. Bartholomew, Washington and Jefferson College athletic instructor, accused in the death of a young actor.

Bartholomew was arrested several weeks ago after the body of George T. Manis, 23, was found with a broken neck in a field near Washington. Police investigators said Bartholomew admitted grappling with Manis in a quarrel over Manis' alleged attempts at blackmail.

W. & J. Player Given Suspended Sentence

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Charles Goldner, W. & J. football player, pleaded guilty today to involuntary manslaughter in the death of Thomas Smith, a hotel guest, and was given a suspended sentence and fined $100 and costs.

Mellon, in Fine Health, Returns From Scotland

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, returned yesterday from a brief vacation in Scotland, apparently in excellent health.

Mellon said he had sepnt a week in Scotland, and had made the voyage for the "sea air and quiet."

Mrs. Albert G. Simms, of Albuquerque, N. M., the former Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, who also returned on the liner Bremen, said that Mellon had appeared on deck frequently, that he "appeared in fine spirits and in good health" and took his meals with the other passengers in the main dining room.

The former Secretary of the Treasury's name did not appear on the passenger list. He said:

"Those I want to know, already know I am returning. The others merely want to take my time for their own purposes."

At the Mellon home, Woodland road, it was reported that Mellon was expected back in Pittsburgh today, but may possibly go to his home in Washington first.

War Fever Floating in Air, Mussolini Tells Army

ROME, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The idea of war "is floating in the air" and it behooves Italy, in preparation for any development to become a "militaristic, even a warlike nation," Premier Mussolini said today in an address to 5,000 officers and military attaches at the conclusion of Italian Army maneuvers.

He said, standing on the turret of a heavy assault tank as he spoke:

"At the end of July an unforseen situation developed which was similar to that which prevailed in 1914. If we had not sent our divisions to the frontier complications might have resulted that could not have been resolved except by the voice of the cannon.

"It is not necessary to be ready for the war of tomorrow, but for the war of today."

"We must become a military nation, even a militaristic nation. We might even add—a warlike nation.

"The political, economic and spiritual life of the nation ought to be based on its military necessities, because certain nations rise and others decline it develops that despite good will conferences and treaties war will accompany the fortunes of nations throughout the centuries."

Cashier Griggs reported the money was in these denominations:

$22,000 in $20 bills; $15,000 in tens; $10,000 in fives; $1,000 in ones, and $2,000 in brand new one-dollar bills.

No check was kept of identifying numbers of the bills and tracing would be difficult, Griggs stated. He added:

"Neither the government nor the bank loses a cent. The insurance company will bear the loss."

Stolen Plates Used On Bandits' Autos

A checkup of Ohio license plates revealed that one set of plates, 887-207, reported used by the bandits was issued to Bernard Debaise, of 449 Worthington avenue, Youngstown, O. He reported his plates had been stolen Monday while his auto was parked on the north side of Youngstown.

Deputy City Clerk John Haldo, of Youngstown, owner of the alternative license plates reported on the robbers' car, 887-207, also reported his plates had been stolen Monday from inside his garage. The plates originally had been issued for a Pontiac, but two weeks ago Haldo applied to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles at Columbus, O., to change the plates to a new Ford V-8 he had bought.

The rear plate on the Plymouth which was left at the scene by the robbers bore Pennsylvania license MN47. The plate had been stolen in Coraopolis, state police said.

State police reported that three men had been reported with a black Terraplane at the Butler Fair Grounds early today removing Georgia license plates from a car. They were described as about 30 years old. The man who changed the plates was tall and had light hair. They changed to Ohio plates and then back to Georgia plates the report stated.

BROOKLYN HOLDUP ECHO

To Butler residents the stickup was just as breath-taking as the $427,000 armored-car robbery which startled Brooklyn Tuesday.

Then a dozen bandits, led by a cunning mob leader, bore down on an armored truck of the United States Trucking Corporation which was delivering the huge sum to the Federal Reserve Bank in Manhattan.

The stickup mob was lounging about a pushcart alongside. The "peddler" appeared to be the leader of the gang. Two of the guards had taken the payroll into the ice company and were about to reboard their armored truck when the "idlers" pushed back a cover from the pushcart and hauled out a concealed machine gun. Two other mobsters stepped up and relieved the guards of their guns. Two more leveled guns at the driver.

Guards Penned in Truck As Mob Snatches Cash

The guards were hustled into their own truck. The bandits then scooped up bags of currency and loaded it into their own three autos.

As they sped off they left their own machine gun in the armored truck, which gave chase.

Shots were fired by the pursuers as they chased the fugitives. But the mob made good its escape.

Not in years has a mob shown such reckless daring—not perhaps since the days of Paul Jaworski, who terrorized Pittsburgh payroll messengers.

Jaworski, numbed, pale and muttering, was "burned" in the electric chair at Rockview prison January 21, 1929, leaving behind a chapter which would enliven any thriller on crime.

He was credited—rather, discredited—with murdering six men. Once, in a blaze of bullets, he escaped from the county jail with Jack Vasbinder, the two-bit dope fiend, of McKeesport, who murdered a man who had refused him alms of 25 cents.

JAWORSKI MURDER

Jaworski was executed for murder of Isaiah L. Gump, a guard shot to death in the theft of a $47,000 payroll from the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation at Mollenauer on December 24, 1925.

Six bandits, led by Jaworski, ambushed Paymaster Leroy Hutton and two guards, Gump and Francis Mahoney, as they neared the mine's emergency hospital with the money. Jaworski and two of his gang stepped from behind the hospital into the path of the paymaster, ordered them to lie down and turn their faces "so you won't see how Santy Claus comes to some people."

Seconds later shots were barking through the air. The bandits grabbed the money bags and ran to their cars. Gump fell, shot. As he moved his body on the ground one of the bandits shot him again.

The bandits escaped.

GUARD MURDERED

Two years before, near the same spot, Jaworski had led a mob on a $19,000 payroll of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at the Beadling mines.

On this job Jaworski's trigger finger functioned as usual. Ross Dennis, a guard, was murdered—shot down as he rode a motorcycle ahead of the pay car.

Again the bandits escape. And there came into being a mob which Chief George W. Murren and his county detectives hunted futilely for years—the "Flathead Mob," with Jaworski the brains.

Jaworski became more daring than ever. In daylight, the Flathead leader and two of his hoodlums leaped from an auto downtown, grabbed a satchel from Bernard Glueckler, a messenger, and sped off richer by $8,000.

Jaworski's Biggest Haul; Dynamiting of Trucks

Then came Jaworski's biggest haul — the stickup of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation's payroll at Coverdale in March of 1927.

Two armored cars bearing the coal payroll moved along with $102,000 wages for the miners.

In the brush, off the road, Jaworski's mob hid. As the trucks passed them they set off the charges of dynamite by electricity.

The payroll cars were shot into the air and ripped apart. The five guards fell limp into the roadside. Jaworski and his gang raced through the ruins, gathered up the payroll and fled.

CAPTURE AND ESCAPE

A few days later Jaworski, sullen and silent, was arrested on the farm of Joe Weckoski in Fallowfield Township. Dug up from the soil was $37,000 of the loot which had been buried.

But after he had been tried and convicted and sentenced to death in the chair for the murder of Gump, he shot his way out of the Allegheny County Jail in Ross street; his brother, Sam, handed him two pistols through the bars and the two of them blazed a path of flame out of the place.

He was recaptured in Cleveland, months later, after a gun battle in which a policeman was slain. Then he went back to the county jail to stay—until they took him over to Rockview to burn.

He had finally discovered the truth of the old axiom, that crime doesn't pay dividends.

NORTH SIDE STICKUP

James H. Neal, messenger for Boggs & Buhl, was robbed of a satchel containing $59,000 in cash and checks just outside that North Side store at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Neal was shot dead, presumably by one Benjamin Stokes, alias Jess Frazier, who is still a fugitive. Rufus Cosiner, an alleged accomplice, and Harry Brooks and his wife, Margaret Brooks, were convicted as accessories.

WOMAN VIEWED MAIL HOLDUP

Miss Alda Campbell, of 136 Pillow street, Butler, was one of the few eye-witnesses of the $50,000 Butler mail robbery today. She said:

"I was in my home when I heard the screech of automobile brakes. I ran to a side window and looked out and saw men removing mail bags from the truck and carrying them to their automobile.

"It all happened so fast I didn't know what to do."

$9,785 Payroll Loot In Georgia Holdup

HOLDUP LINKS KILLER'S MATE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—One of two suspects arrested here and later absolved of any connection with Tuesday's $427,950 armored truck robbery in Brooklyn, was tentatively identified today as the husband of Clara Phillips, notorious hammer murderess of Los Angeles.

Twelve years ago Mrs. Phillips was captured in Central America after one of the most spectacular prison escapes in criminal history.

The man believed to be Mrs. Phillips' husband is Armour Lee Phillips, 40, who gave his address as the Jonathan Club, Los Angeles. He was arrested together with Leo Giorgia, 23, of Brooklyn.

Detectives said that the man under arrest here has admitted he is the husband of the woman who slew Alberta Meadows in 1922 with a hammer.

Phillips and Giorgia were held without bail as suspicious characters.

Detectives said Phillips has a criminal record on the Pacific Coast and that his younger companion is also known to the police of New York.

The episode assumed additional startling angles when a third man, John Hardy, 44, of Brooklyn, appeared at the police station and inquired for Phillips and Giorgia. Hardy immediately was taken into custody. He also was held. He told police authorities he wanted to collect money from the two men with which to pay a note. Police were skeptical of his story.

KEANSBURG, N. J., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A Federal Reserve money bag, similar to the ones taken in the $427,000 armored car holdup in Brooklyn Tuesday, was found on the beach here, Chief of Police McGuire announced today.

Held in Plot to Kidnap William Fox' Daughters

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Maurice Monier, 34, was held on bond today for trial under the Lindbergh law on a charge of threatening to kidnap the two daughters of William Fox, former motion picture magnate, unless he was paid $50,000.

His arrest at Mineola, N. Y., where he was serving a jail sentence for disorderly conduct, climaxed an extensive investigation of four and a half months by Department of Justice operatives under Frank Fay, chief of the New York office.

The extortion note was sent through the mails to Fox at his home, Fox Hall, Woodmere, N. Y., on April 1. Fox immediately notified the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice and expert operatives were assigned to the case.

The note was signed "Dillinger's lieutenant," but authorities said they doubted Monier actually had any connection with the dead Indiana desperado's gang.

Mrs. Riskin

Mrs. Schwartz

The note also threatened bodily harm to Mrs. Fox.

Fay declined to state the exact method used to locate Monier, but it was learned authoritatively the operatives succeeded in tracing him through samples of his handwriting that had been analyzed by federal government experts.

Fox and his two daughters, Mona Fox Riskin and Mrs. Belle Schwartz, were under constant guard.

NAME SUSPECT AS SLASHER OF WOMEN

Defiance Police Strike First Clue to Maniac Terrorizing Town

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—With the arrest of one suspect, authorities believed today they were on the first dim trail to a solution of a series of mysterious knife and gun attacks on Defiance women.

The suspect arrested established that he was an inmate of the state industrial school at Lancaster until July 7 and could not have been responsible for the first four attacks, which were committed prior to that date.

He was identified, however, by three Defiance citizens as the man they chased August 14, after the stabbing of Miss Mabel Kroft, latest victim of the mysterious attacks.

SEVEN VICTIMS

The authorities expressed the opinion another terrorist was responsible for the attacks prior to July 7.

Since May 30, seven women have been victims of the mysterious assaults. Four were slashed with a knife, two were slugged and one was shot. None, however, was injured seriously.

The former industrial school inmate was identified today by the Rev. Ed X. Goffer, a Catholic priest, Joseph A. Eck and L. W. Watson. Another youth also being held, was virtually eliminated from suspicion.

The suspect who was identified, Mayor J. C. Krutsch announced, will be held for 48 hours to give Miss Kroft a chance to complete the identification. The Mayor said:

"If Miss Kroft identifies him we will file charges. We have not determined what they will be yet."

Miss Kroft, suffering from a nervous disorder, was too ill today to view the suspect. Mayor Krutsch expressed hope she could visit the prison tomorrow. The woman's illness dates back before the attack on her, August 14, he said, but has been aggravated by shock.

The Mayor ordered that as many of the other women victims as possible be brought in to view the suspect.

HEAD-ON AUTO CRASH HURTS 4

Three men and a woman were injured in a head-on automobile collision in West Homestead today when a Squirrel Hill man swerved his car to avoid hitting a young girl, police reported.

The injured were taken to the Homestead Hospital. They are:

Mrs. Ellen Layman, 66, of 3340 Beechwood boulevard.

John Yopko, 22, of 514 Dickson street, Homestead.

Police arrested Layman on a reckless driving charge. They said his car hit another driven by Yopko when he turned to avoid hitting the child.

MISS SARAH JACOBS, 16

GIRL, 16, WINS BEAUTY TITLE

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 24.—Miss Sarah Jacobs, 16, today has been designated as "Miss Brownsville" from among 59 contestants and will represent Brownsville in the tri-state beauty pageant in Wheeling, September 6.

The selection was made in the New Plaza Theater at a benefit for the Brownsville public library.

Miss Iva Kay Burns, 16, of South Brownsville, was runner-up.

The judges were presented with a baffling problem when Marie and Louise Conwell, 14-year-old twins, appeared before them. They were eliminated in the sixth round, however.

Mrs. Howard F. Taylor was chairman of the contest committee.

MURPHY SPARED FROM NOOSE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Leo Dwight Murphy, sentenced to hang at San Quentin prison today for slaying his wife, Nellie Buttles Murphy, was reprieved by Acting Gov. Frank Merriam today. The stay expires November 9.

Gov. Merriam notified his office from Santa Barbara that he granted the reprieve because the defense attorneys wanted to present additional evidence favorable to the condemned man.

Murphy was convicted of killing his bride of seven days in 1928 by beating her with a belt buckle and then kicking her in the abdomen. While she lay moaning on the floor of their Long Beach apartment, Murphy allegedly tickled the soles of her feet and said:

"Laugh, you, laugh."

Murphy fled to Pittsburgh, where he remarried and lived for several years before he was captured and brought back here for trial. He is a cellmate of David Lamson, former Stanford University official, also convicted of killing his wife.

Murphy's present wife, formerly of Pittsburgh, had appealed for clemency.

2 WOMEN FAINT IN RADIO STRIKE

30 Announcers, Artists Go Foodless in Fight for Pay

MEXICO D. F., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Two women actors participating in a radio station hunger strike fainted last night while trying to sing, but the programs and the strike went on today.

Rank outsiders, with little or no experience in either art of going hungry, stepped in to lend their moral and vocal support to Mexico's eleventy-mille-death.

They included several amateur performers prominent in society and a blind fiddler, who drove out to the radio station XEAL, atop Mixcoac hill overlooking the Mexican capital city, to relieve the striking emperors of the station at the microphone.

Some 30 announcers and artists have been 70 or more hours without food in their novel fight for back pay. Hundreds are watching them take turns before the microphone from outside the small building containing mechanical equipment of the station.

Doctors forced several to eat a little sugar, but they refused food offered by weeping relatives.

Workers claim the radio station owners owe them two to three months back pay. They decided on the hunger strike in an effort to attract public sympathy to their cause.

Vendors of tortillas, tacos, frijoles, chili con carne and other staples of Mexican diet did a thriving business on the outside. That annoyed those famished performers on the inside.

ATTACKER OF 3 SLAIN BY POSSE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Citizens who slew an unidentified Negro were praised by police today as having foiled an attack on three white girls.

The girls, on their way to a church meeting at the time they were accosted in an East Birmingham park last night, identified the Negro in a hospital as the man who had threatened them at gunpoint. With a bullet wound in his head, the Negro was unable to make a statement and died soon afterward.

Miss Grace Tabor, 23, and Miss Lorena Tidwell, 19, told police that they were thrown to the ground in a scuffle over the gun. Meanwhile, Miss Edith Tidwell, Lorena's 24-year-old sister, who had been a little ahead of the others, ran to a nearby tent meeting for aid.

The Negro had just gained the upper hand in the scuffle when an aroused citizens' posse approached. He fled.

Shooting as he ran, the Negro was trapped in an alley and slain.

RAILROADS GET PENSION ORDER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Railroads were ordered today by the Railroad Retirement Board to deduct 2 per cent of the salary of every employe each month to provide funds for pensioning old workers beginning February 1, next year.

They were also ordered to furnish the retirement board by September 15 the names of each employe who was born on or before February 1, 1865, and who was on the payroll on or after June 27, 1933.

The order referring to deductions from pay checks was understood to have been prompted by the fact that some of the railroads did not make deductions during August, intending to make such deductions in a lump sum after court action on the attack by Class 1 railroads on constitutionality of the retirement law.

DOOM DELAYED AS CHAIR FAILS

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Two men were put to death in the electric chair early today in one of the most nerve-racking administrations of the death penalty ever witnessed at the Western State Penitentiary.

Will Chaney, Louisville Negro, was the first to go to the chair, and after two charges of electricity had been administered, the equipment broke down. Physicians, not knowing this, examined the body and called for a third charge. Upon being informed that the electricity could not be supplied until repairs were made, they re-examined the body and pronounced Chaney dead.

Meanwhile George W. Tincher, 37, waiting in the death house for the call, learned what had occurred. During the hour and 15 minute delay, witnesses said, Tincher remained calm, and told them:

"I'm ready to go any time. It doesn't matter."

Tincher was taken to the death chamber shortly after 1:30 a. m. He closed his eyes during the process of strapping him in the seat. After two charges, he was pronounced dead, at 1:49 a. m.

CO-ED SLAYING MOTIVE HIDDEN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Still lacking a clear motive, police investigating the slaying of Faye New, 19-year-old co-ed, renewed their search for evidence today.

Harold Taylor, 28-year-old mechanic, is charged with the girl's murder, which authorities say occurred after the girl had gone for an automobile ride with him. Taylor has steadfastly denied killing the girl.

Miss New

The authorities sought today the knife with which Miss New was slain. She died from two slashes in her throat. Coroner Evans said the autopsy showed she had not been attacked before she was killed.

A. B. Cain, suitor of the pretty Howard College co-ed, disclosed that jealousy prompted him to follow Miss New and Taylor when they went for the ride that ended in her death.

Britishers Knocked for Bally Loop By Girl Mystic From Kansas Farm

GENE DENNIS . . . SHE PICKED WINDSOR LAD!

London All Praises for Psychic Who Picked Winner of Derby, Other Happenings

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Word came from London today that a Kansas farmer's daughter—rosy-cheeked, dimpled Gene Dennis—is figuratively knocking the Britishers for a bally loop.

Gene has been in London since early spring and is known all over England as the American "girl psychic." She has appeared at three London theaters, has given "readings" at the afternoon teas of a big London hotel, has been interviewed and in addition has written a weekly article for the London Sunday Dispatch at a per rate of $250 an article.

An Associated Press dispatch from London today attributed her present fame to her sensational prediction that Windsor Lad would win the Derby—which he did.

NAMED 'OUTSIDER'

Miss Dennis named Windsor Lad on a London stage when the horse was a rank outsider, five weeks before the race.

She predicted Len Harvey would lose his British heavyweight title to Jack Peterson and suffer an eye injury in the fight. She forecast the 2 to 1 victory of Manchester over Portsmouth in the football final and said a red-haired boy would kick the winning goal.

Gene's big triumph came when the gruesome Brighton trunk murders were disclosed.

When the first body was found she wrote in her weekly column:

"This is connected in some way with another murder, which, but for this, might never have been discovered."

Three weeks later the second trunk murder was revealed by officers searching Brighton premises in connection with the first case.

MURDER DETAILS

Gene also wrote that the first body was "horribly mutilated" and "was wrapped in adhesive paper in the manner of automobile tire wrapping." This conflicted with information newspapers had published, but officers on the case later said she was right.

Prominent officials, lords and ladies and big businessmen have sought her out for private interviews. Their names she is bound to keep confidential but Gene herself has been entertained by such people as the Bishop of London, the Russian Princess Youssoupoff and ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker, of New York, at his home in Dorking.

GIRL WEDS NO. 2, NO. 1 TORE UP CERTIFICATE

Thought Act Freed Her From Marriage Vow, She Says

Yes, 21-year-old Alberta Mahney admitted in North Side Police Court today she had been married twice without a divorce, but:

"I thought when Jim tore up the certificate I was free to get married again."

So Alberta was held for court on a charge of bigamy.

The police discovered accidentally that Alberta was a bigamist.

She and a sister, Mrs. Virginia Watts, 19, of 1214 Benare place, were walking, along Sherman avenue the other night when a girl jumped from a machine, aimed a blow with a hammer at Alberta and struck Virginia.

When she was being questioned by the police Alberta gave two names. Then the story came out.

In June, 1932, she and James P. Keenan, of 207 West Ohio street, were married in Wellsburg. They soon argued and "Jim" tore up the certificate, she says.

A few weeks later she returned to Wellsburg and married Frank Maloney, 25, of 1212 Benare place.

NITA CAVALIER

Society Woman Hit Star 'Left Hook,' He Says

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Somewhat in the role of an expert, as well as eye-witness, S. P. Tamarena, fight promoter, described in court how Mrs. G. Benton Wilson, wife of a prominent yachtsman, slapped Nita Cavalier, stage, movie and radio actress, on a downtown street last June.

Tamarena testified in trial of Miss Cavalier's $51,200 damage suit against Mrs. Wilson, who, in her answer, admits the slapping. He said:

The actress charged Mrs. Wilson slapped her under the mistaken impression that she, Miss Cavalier was about to keep a rendezvous with Wilson.

The lawyer, John Gratton, had Tamarena demonstrate how the blow was struck, Gratton playing the part of Miss Cavalier and the witness that of Mrs. Wilson. Tamarena cuffed Gratton lightly.

A defense lawyer suggested that since the actual blow was supposed to have been so hefty, the imitation ought to show a little more realism.

Tamarena then swung lustily on Gratton, and the smack resounded through the courtroom.

"Ouch!" ejaculated Gratton.

RUM RAIDERS WAIT INQUEST IN KILLING

Duquesne Man Dies As He Battles To Aid Son

Edward J. Kohn, enforcement agent of the State Liquor Control Board, and Constable Ernest Labelle, of East Bird, were released from the county jail on their own recognizance today pending an inquest into the killing of a veteran Duquesne policeman.

Meanwhile, county detectives, the Coroner and the State Liquor Control Board continued an inquiry into the killing of Charles Robis, 72, of 1120 West street, Duquesne, who was shot to death, authorities said, by Agent Kohn during a search at Robis' home.

According to county detectives, Kohn, accompanied by Constable Labelle, under had a search warrant, went to Robis' home yesterday to smash a raid on complaints Robbie was operating a still.

They were met by 19-year-old Paul Robis, youngest son of the aged victim, according to the officers, armed with a shotgun while his father lay asleep in a bedroom.

The officers grappled with the youth and were taking him and the jug outside to their car when Robis surprised by the scuffle, emerged from his house armed with a pistol, police said.

Police said Paul returned to his home, demolished the still in the basement of the home, destroyed some mash and buried his father's pistol on a hillside near the house.

When the officers returned they reported Paul finally dug up the pistol, from which two shots had been fired, and showed the investigators the remnants of the still, which he had hidden in a shed.

High Life Trip By Girl Ends In Jail

MARY ESTELLE WEISEMAN

Accused of Stealing Rings to Finance New York Trip

Eighteen-year-old Mary Estelle Weiseman's fling at New York high life, three weeks ago, when she ran up a hotel bill she couldn't pay, ended in jail today—after all.

Mary is held in a cell in default of $1,000 bond on charges of stealing two diamond rings, valued at $300, with which she is supposed, by police, to have financed her first trip to the nation's biggest city.

She was arrested on complaint of Mrs. William Bittner, of 1106 West Park street, McKees Rocks, who accused her of taking two rings from her home during July. The rings were traced to a downtown jeweler, who said he paid only $11.25 for them.

Mary, who lives in Rustle avenue, Mt. Oliver, found herself first in trouble in New York when the hotel manager had her arrested for non-payment of a $40 bill. The manager relented, however, and refused to prosecute when Mary promised to return home. She did, and now see what happened.

STAR WITNESS IN ROBBERIES VANISHES

Safe-Cracking Suspect Slips From Hospital; Officer Suspended

An alleged safe-cracker, under guard in Mercy Hospital where he had been a patient for 10 days, walked past the [illegible] waiting [illegible] last night as the officer was [illegible] for [illegible] and [illegible] for the street.

A wide search was being conducted today for the [illegible] Thomas Talbot, 43, who, police say, has a long "record" and has served several penitentiary terms.

The policeman, Paul Brandau, 4042 Dearth street, was later suspended by Acting Supt. of Police Jacob F. Dorsey, following a grilling in which Dorsey, Prisoner Talbot and East End Inspector Jerry Deasy participated.

"Neglect of duty" was Dorsey's charge against Brandau, who has 18 years service in the Police Department.

Dorsey said:

"The prisoner just walked out on him."

The escape occurred at 3:45 p. m. Brandau told his superiors. Police officials were not notified for several hours. Dr. Daniel E. Sable, police and fire surgeon, being the first to be told of the matter.

Talbot was to be the star witness in the case involving six safecrackers arrested in East Liberty June 9 for alleged participation in four jobs involving several thousands of dollars. The six, including Talbot, were indicted and scheduled for trial.

Talbot was in the hospital, according to police physicians, for a weak heart and high blood pressure.

Talbot, alias Toward, and Brandau were eating dinner in a cellroom maintained at the hospital for prisoners, Brandau said:

"He had finished eating several minutes before I did and he walked out into the hall to get a drink."

The cellroom door was unlocked.

When he did not return in several minutes, Brandau made a hurried search of the fifth floor and then scoured the other parts of the building.

About an hour after the escape, Talbot's wife, Beulah, 29, came to the hospital and approached the policeman, saying:

"I came to see my husband, Tom Talbot."

Brandau replied, according to the woman:

"Are you sure you didn't see him downstairs?"

SINGS 3 WEEKS WITHOUT REST

BELEM, Brazil, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A strange neurotic affliction, which impelled 10-year-old Maria Magalhaes to sing incessantly for more than three weeks, seemed to be passing today.

Under treatment of an alienist the child stops singing for increasingly long periods.

The peculiar behavior of the girl attracted attention throughout the parish of Inahnagati, her home, near here. Sympathetic neighbors, who heard her singing day and night, pooled their resources to obtain expert medical attention for her.

The alienist ascertained that the girl had witnessed the burial of Siamese twin cousins who had died two months after birth. It was believed that nervous shock induced by the spectacle of the funeral ceremony had, in some obscure manner, started her on the singing marathon.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 24.—"She hit Harry over the head with a mallet. Then I ran the car over his body."

Nervous and tense Mrs. Martha Clift today laid before a farm jury, in a packed courtroom, testimony the state believes will send "Little Eva" Coo to the electric chair for the killing of Harry Wright on Crumhorn Mountain last June 14.

Resuming the witness stand, Mrs. Clift, who was indicted with the blonde tavern owner in connection with Wright's death, was questioned by District Attorney Don Grant at the point where her story ended yesterday, when she told of driving Wright and Mrs. Coo to the lonely Scott farm after "Little Eva" had allegedly outlined her plan to kill Wright for insurance she held on him.

HIT WITH MALLET

Grant asked:

"What did Eva have in her hand?"

"A mallet."

"What did she do with the mallet?"

"She hit Harry over the head."

"Were you still in the car?"

"Yes."

"Tell what you did."

"Then I ran the car over Harry's body. It was still in low gear. I was awfully nervous after that. I turned the car around and drove around near the Scott house. Eva stayed by the body."

STANDING IN DRIVEWAY

"Did you see Eva Coo after you turned the car around?"

"Yes, she was standing in the driveway."

"Where was Harry Wright?"

"He was in the driveway, lying lengthwise across it. His head was toward the car."

"Did Eva do anything?"

"Yes, she motioned for me to come quick and straddle the body."

Mrs. Clift then described how she drove the car up and over the body as another car approached the "haunted Scott house."

THE RUSSIAN NEWSPAPER Izvestia warns Japan not to get into a "conflagration" for the sake of a small sum connected with Japan's proposed purchase of the Chinese Eastern Railway, owned by Russia. It is good advice.

But there are possibilities of "conflagration" along the Russian-Japanese border more serious than any bargaining for a railroad.

It is doubtful whether Russia and Japan will live long side by side peacefully until it shall have been proved which is the stronger nation. In our civilization only war provides proof.

Constant irritation in the human body produces cancer. Constant irritation in international dealings produces war.

MR. GENE TUNNEY, who fought for his country and a dollar a day in France, fought for prize-fight "fans" in the United States, retired as champion of the world wisely, because he had made two million dollars, thought that was enough, and, besides, there was nobody in sight worth fighting.

Now, Mr. Tunney is offered another fighting job by Gen. Johnson in the National Recovery Administration. Mr. Tunney should be useful in Gen. Johnson's "cracking down" department.

GUFFEY ASSAILS WALL ST. 'RULE'

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, and George H. Earle, his running mate for Governor, today assailed critics of the Roosevelt administration as "hand maidens of special privilege, scheming to wreck the Roosevelt recovery program."

Guffey asserted:

"President Roosevelt is giving this nation government by Main street instead of Wall street and that is the real reason why his administration is being subjected to the most intensively organized attack by special privilege in the history of America.

"The house of Morgan, the house of Mellon and their satellite corporation heads are making a last stand for government of these United States by special privilege."

Earl said the Republicans lack "the courage to ask the people for a return of the honest days of Harding and the Teapot Dome scandals, and the happy days of Hoover, and are raising the cry that the President is leading the country for bankruptcy."

FATHER OF POET INVITED HERE

An invitation has been extended by the County Commissioners to Frederick Barnett Kilmer, of New Brunswick, N. J., to attend the dedication ceremonies of the Joyce Kilmer Memorial in South Park, August 28.

Frederick Barnett Kilmer, 93, is the father of Joyce Kilmer, the soldier poet, in whose honor the memorial is to be dedicated.

The memorial is in the form of a traffic circle, bordered by trees. A nearby plaque contains the words of the poem, "Trees," best known work of the Pennsylvania soldier.

Woman Acts to Free Kidnaped American

PEIPING, China, Aug. 24.—(INS.)—The American consul at Mukden today informed the American legation here that the Russian woman kidnaped by bandits with Solomon Zeitlin, believed to be an American, had returned to Mukden bearing a note demanding payment of a ransom for the man.

The pair were kidnaped while on a picnic near the Peiping tombs on the outskirts of Mukden.

LAWRENCE OUT AS COLLECTOR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—David L. Lawrence's immediate political future was settled today with official announcement that he had resigned as collector of internal revenue at Pittsburgh to continue as Democratic state chairman of Pennsylvania.

The question of his successor, however, was left in doubt. Officials said no action had been taken and pointed out Lawrence's resignation does not take effect until September 1.

Secretary Morgenthau told reporters he had forwarded the resignation to President Roosevelt with a recommendation for acceptance.

Lawrence's action was in conformity with Morgenthau's order to all Treasury employes to divorce their jobs from politics.

MILFORD, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot could not be reached today for comment on Harry L. Hopkins announcement that he would insist on Pennsylvania's bearing its share of the relief burden regardless of whether such action would necessitate a special session of the Legislature.

A secretary reported that the Governor is away on a fishing trip and will not return until Sunday.

Hopkins Sees Need Of Jobless Insurance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Relief Administrator Hopkins, returning from a six-weeks' study of European relief methods said today he had come reluctantly to the belief that "we have got to have a cash benefit somewhere in the picture for persons thrown involuntarily out of work."

The administrator said he was firmly convinced that unemployment insurance must be fitted into the New Deal.

He predicted revival of the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill which was introduced in the last Congress. It would have levied a 5 per cent tax on payrolls to be turned into an insurance fund.

Hopkins said he brought back from Europe four or five definite ideas to lay before President Roosevelt. He would not discuss their nature, asserting he planned to see the President tomorrow.

The administrator indicated that work relief projects would be hastened with the approach of cold weather and that the civil works program, which gave temporary jobs last winter to 4,000,000 people, would not be used again.

Robert G. Kelly, of Charleston, the chairman, was given an overwhelming vote of confidence in the face of Holt's demand for his resignation. The young nominee said:

"Bob Kelly cannot handle my campaign, whether he is chairman or not."

The chairman replied:

"I am going to support Holt and work for him regardless of what he says."

Gov. H. G. Kump defended Kelly, saying:

"I cannot be prevented from supporting Holt in the party, but I will not follow him out of the party. I will help Holt if he will keep his unholy hands off the Legislature."

Light in weight and slender of figure, Merrill lands easily, without injury so far. But he admits that 1,500 feet is low "if something happens."

Other officers nominated include George Cox, of Altoona, first vice president; Norman Cohen, of Erie, second vice president; Fred Reinell, of Altoona, secretary; Preston Everett, of Tarentum, treasurer, and William Lloyd, of Reading, chaplain.

The more than 80 delegates to the conclave, representing seven chapters in Pennsylvania, also adopted a new constitution. A sports program, including golf and tennis, were scheduled for today, followed by the annual ball.

DRIVER HELD IN AUTO DEATH

John H. Knepper, of 360 Forty-second street, was ordered held by a Coroner's jury on a manslaughter charge at an inquest into the death of Patrick Carlin, 37, of the same address, who died August 11 in Columbia Hospital from injuries suffered when a car reported to have been driven by Knepper struck a pole in Bluff road.

The men, who were friends, were returning home when minor mechanical trouble developed. Without stopping the car, Knepper attempted to make an adjustment and the collision followed, he testified at the inquest.

Innocenta Sylvester, of 315 Sapphire street, was exonerated by the jury in the death of John Ciarletta, 44, of 7322 Kelly street, killed in a collision between an automobile and a truck on West Carson street, near Sleuben street, two weeks ago. The truck, driven by Sylvester, collided with an automobile driven by Edward J. Petrosky. Petrosky also was exonerated. The truck was returning from a picnic. A half dozen persons were injured in the crash.

Dr. Steedle's Decision Gives Party Problem

Decision of Dr. Joseph G. Steedle to remain as a candidate for re-election to the Legislature in the Twelfth District, south of the Ohio River, has given the Republican party a problem which will be a difficult one to solve.

Mark Shields

There are definite and understandable reasons why Steedle refused to withdraw. He is under a two-year sentence in Federal Court on conspiracy charges, from which he has appealed. He feels that to retire at this time might be interpreted as an admission that there is something more than a technical legal question in the issue which is to be decided by the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. He hopes that he may be elected in November, which would approximate a vindication.

This attitude of the veteran legislator is entitled to consideration, no matter what the personal element may be.

At the same time, there is the matter of the party to be considered, solely as a question of mathematics, and as the candidacy of Dr. Steedle affects districts far beyond the confines of the Twelfth.

County Chairman William H. Coleman, a most forthright, courageous and straight-speaking gentleman, has said he would prefer that Steedle should not be a candidate, but that if he was the County Committee as typified by himself would support all Republican nominees, including Steedle. There was something of the dramatic about the incident yesterday when newspapermen, apprised by Coleman of Steedle's decision, asked what the attitude of the County Committee would be.

Chairman Coleman 'On the Spot'

Coleman sat back in his chair, perceptibly perturbed, aware of the momentous consequences anything he might say would have. He could have evaded, he could have weasled, by saying he would have to consult members of the committee. He didn't. He said:

"The question rather puts me on the spot, but it is a fair one. And I'll answer it."

And he did, in concise language which may have spelled some heavy weather for the party throughout the county, and perhaps in the state. It was Steedle who was making the real decision as to what might happen. Steedle who was putting the county chairman up "against the gun."

The ramifications of the situation are impossible to conjecture. The Independent Republican Committee for Allegheny County, of which William B. McFall is chairman, probably will not view the proposition as does Mr. Coleman.

Joseph H. Sharar is acting chairman of the committee during the absence of Mr. McFall in Europe. He intends to call his committee together next week and take a definite stand on the Steedle matter. It might be unfair to anticipate, perhaps, but the guess is here ventured that the independent committee, preached to voice the sentiments of Attorney General William A. Schnader, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, will repudiate Dr. Steedle. Certainly the committee will not be for him, and at least one influential member, while saying he was not ready at this time to make a public declaration, has asserted that he would be against Steedle.

He lives in the Steedle district.

Regulars Face Clash With Independents

The upshot will be a direct clash between the Republican County Committee and the Independent Republican Committee. There will be a series of developments which will force Mr. Schnader to assert openly which committee he recognizes as paramount in Allegheny County. The air will be cleared to that extent, even though it means hard feelings.

The present situation, with two committees each thinking itself the higher power, is intolerable, and the Steedle case will bring the problem to a head.

Meanwhile, gauging the proposition simply from the coldly political standpoint, with sentiment and amenities cast aside, it is of the utmost encouragement to the Democrats.

It will be recalled that in the mayoralty campaign of 1933 Senator James J. Coyne was the focal point of Democratic attack upon the Republican municipal candidates. He stood up as a shining target.

In the impending campaign the Steedle case and the attitude of the Republican County Committee, its officers elected to represent the Republicans of the county no longer ago than last June, will be set up as a similar target.

There is blood on the political moon.

HARRIMAN ASKS U. S. CONTINUE AID TO SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—AP—A defense of the policy of government aid for the merchant marine is entered by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Harriman, in a statement, criticises (sic) yesterday a recent statement by Secretary Wallace, opposing continuing marine subsidization as requiring the purchasing power of foreign nations. Senator Fletcher (Dem.) of Florida recently had criticized Wallace, terming this belief "absurd." Mr. Harriman said:

"Our merchant marine is at the lowest limit permitted by prudence. Other nations are now enjoying perhaps unduly large contributions to their trade balances from the earnings of their shipping services in the carriage of American exports and imports."

He added:

"The interests of the American people require at least a certain amount of shipping both for the purpose of maintaining essential trade route services to foreign markets and to meet the needs of national defense."

SEIZE MILLION LEFT IN WILL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The law stepped in today to brand the will of Ida E. Wood, belle of Civil War days who died at 93 after 24 years of seclusion, a thing "ineffective and futile."

Surrogate James A. Foley handed down the decision, refusing the will for probate and recommending that Public Administrator John F. Egan take charge of the estate—more than $1,000,000 in bills long out of circulation, relics of state banquets in Washington and the capitals of Europe, rare old jewelry and silver plate.

The will was made July 9, 1889, naming a sister and a daughter as beneficiaries. They died before Mrs. Wood, discovered living a hermit's life in a room in the Herald Square Hotel, succumbed to pneumonia March 12, 1932.

Mrs. Wood was the widow of Benjamin Wood, publisher of the old New York Daily News. He died in 1900. In 1907 Mrs. Wood became frightened during the money panic, withdrew her fortune from banks and lived meagerly, almost miserly.

'Gibberish Economics' Scented By Child in Advice of Wallace To Stop Aiding Merchant Marine

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Diplomat and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

A GOOD CASE in point is that Secretary of Agriculture's letter advising, in effect, that we cease supporting our American merchant marine so that foreign nations can earn the transportation income to be used in purchasing our agricultural surplus.

Mr. Child

It is a good case in point, because it illustrates the difference between hurtful or malicious criticism of the administration and that which begs the President not to take bad advice.

Heaven knows if you were President, or I were President, the first thing we ought to pray for would be warning against bad advice and bad advisers.

Loyalty to the President must not be perverted into a demand for loyalty to those who sometimes are caught giving bad advice—like Secretary Wallace in this instance—or to those who are constantly whispering suggestions to the President about the rosy dawn, which looks to many of us like mad tenth-carbon copies of Red Russian revolutionary measures.

IF THERE are imps of mischief whispering at the President's ear, no citizen who values loyalty or patriotism will fail to say, "Look out!"

No such loyal or patriotic voice, especially if it is the voice of someone who helped to elect the President and feels responsibility, can remain silent merely because he or she is bulldozed by the clamor that the "New Deal must be supported."

WHAT IS THE NEW DEAL?

IS IT ROOSEVELT'S OWN NEW DEAL OR IS IT THE NEW DEAL BEING WHISPERED INTO HIS EAR?

Is it the new deal of the American Roosevelt or is it the new deal of those who would "PUT SOMETHING OVER ON HIM"—a clique of radicals in gum shoes?

Is it the new deal of his courageous leadership or is it the product of a ring of intellectuals who have tasted the advantages of a stalwart America merely to want to take America to pieces and put her together again on a bookish plan like Stalin's or Hitler's, where the poor man gets the worst of the change—and in practice swaps his crust of bread for a short order theory?

IT IS NOT to discredit Secretary Wallace that the example of hamstringing our merchant marine is brought forward.

It is brought forward because it is part and parcel of GIBBERISH ECONOMICS.

It is gibberish economics to subsidize, i. e., build an adequate Navy, at an expense of no mean proportions, and then talk about slashing down our merchant marine so that foreign merchant marines may earn enough to buy the little pigs we have just slaughtered.

The merchant marine of other nations — Britain and Italy, for example—are the important hand maidens of their sea power.

To abandon our own is to abandon the only formula for a navy ever making sense, i. e. A NAVY ALMOST GOOD ENOUGH IS LIKE AN EGG ALMOST FRESH ENOUGH.

It is absurd to engage in these pieces of economic GIBBERISH.

IT IS BAD enough when it is someone like Secretary Wallace.

It is worse when it comes, as it does sometimes to the President in this day of the rosy dawn, in the form of whispers from amateur economists who are unripe and, if not pink—plain green.

An attack upon them is no attack upon the President.

2 HELD IN THEFT OF AUTO PARTS

Two young men, who, police said admitted stealing tires, tools and other accessories from automobiles parked in Bellevue, were held for court in seven charges by Justice of the Peace Charles Clark, of Bellevue.

The pair who gave their names as Jack Davis, 20, of Jacks Run road, and William Gamble, 20, of Maple Ave., Ross Township, were arrested Tuesday by Cecil Price McPherson, of Bellevue. The pair admitted stripping machines parked in Bellevue streets for the last six months, according to McPherson. Stolen accessories valued at several hundred dollars were recovered after their arrest, McPherson asserted.

Burt Brent, 18, of 1918 West Maria avenue, and Howard J. Collins, 19, of 1420 Rush street, were held for court last night by Justice of the Peace Charles Clark, of Bellevue, after a holdup victim identified them as the pair who robbed him.

W. S. Walsh, of 402 Westminster street, North Side, testified he was stung-armed and robbed of $2 in Bellevue several weeks ago. Brent was arrested two weeks ago when he and Collins attempted to enter a stolen automobile on the Allegheny wharf. Collins was arrested the following day. Police said they admitted stealing about 10 automobiles, the holdup of a North Side gasoline station and the Bellevue robbery.

ACCUSED SON'S LIFE GAMBLED BY MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A mother gambled her son's life today in a hundred to one chance he could live through a delicate operation to save him from either gas or the hangman's noose.

If 33-year-old Gray E. McNeer survives the operation, he must face murder charges of shooting his wife, Betty, last June 29.

The operation, to which Mrs. Lola McNeer gave her formal consent in Superior Court yesterday was to remove a bullet lined from the same gun into her son's brain. If McNeer could live with the lead pellet in his brain, said H. S. Hahn, his attorney, he would be an imbecile. He is now barely able to talk.

He claims his wife first shot him. The state accuses him of killing the girl.

Tears in her eyes, Mrs. McNeer, mother of six sons, went to the prisoner's bedside yesterday after signing the document, which was required by the court for the operation. She said:

"Gray, we're going to have the operation soon now. I think Mother made the arrangements today."

The unshaven face of McNeer twitched as he muttered:

"Mom—Mom, don't ever leave me. This hurts so. Oh, Mom, I can't stand any more pain."

The mother's consent to the operation raised several legal questions. Two centered upon a question of whether a hint would be left upon the prisoner's reputation if he died from the operation without opportunity to defend himself, and the advisability of permitting a suspected murderer to escape a possible death penalty.

Hahn contended that McNeer is innocent now in the eyes of the law and if he should die from the operation no damage to him or the state can result.

OLD ACADEMY UNDER HAMMER

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Aug. 24.—That old and time-honored educational institution, the Bellefonte Academy will not open this fall. It has been posted for sheriff's sale. Foreclosure proceedings were instituted by the Fidelity Trust Company of Pittsburgh, which holds a mortgage of over $55,000 against the property on which interest for a year has been defaulted.

The academy was organized in 1805 and during the 129 years of its history many men of note received their preparatory education within its walls. During more recent years it was widely known for its football prowess. Many players who attained stardom on college teams received their preliminary training at the academy.

Its financial downfall dates back a number of years to two costly fires, when the main building was so badly damaged that it had to be rebuilt. To do this James R. Hughes, owner and headmaster, was compelled to mortgage the property. Then came the depression and a decided falling off in student attendance.

PRISONER TAKES JAILER'S WATCH

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—(AP)—When Police Capt. Buckwald went to work he was sporting a new wrist watch.

When he looked to see the time, the clock was gone.

Cramblett Given National Position

H. W. Cramblett, secretary of the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education, today was elected secretary of the National Association of Public School Business Officials, at their annual convention in New York. James J. Ball, of Denver, was named president, a news dispatch stated.

HUEY BRANDED 'SYNTHETIC DICTATOR'

By Universal Service

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 24.—Huey P. Long almost denounced as "a cowardly slacker" and a "synthetic dictator" today as he continued his vacation here professing complete acceptance of the forthcoming Long-ordained Legislative investigation of the New Orleans city government.

Welcoming 1,000 American Legion veterans to a state convention at Lake Charles, Mayor J. A. Trotti said yesterday:

"Speaking to you as one soldier to another, I do not hesitate to say that my blood runs high when I think of a synthetic dictator being mentioned in the same breath with 'Private' Mussolini and 'Corporal' Hitler, who, at least, had the patriotism and courage to risk their lives in the front ranks of their countries' armed forces.

"I am not in harmony in any manner with any cowardly slacker who is set up by a bunch of crooked politicians as a dictator of the state of Louisiana."

CHOPPING WOOD

Earlier in Houma, La., Speaker of the House Allen J. Ellender named five members of the lower House to the committee which will "investigate" New Orleans. Ellender's designees—Representatives Isom J. Gillory, W. T. Hammon, Menette Jones, James Burns and Richard S. Wilds—are ardent supporters of Long.

At his hotel here, Senator Long parried all queries about the probe and his new dictatorial powers. He said:

"I'm here to chop wood. I'm a federal officer and I don't believe in the government interfering in the affairs of the state. I don't know anything about a probe of the New Orleans government."

LET'S GO TO TOWN

The conversation was interrupted by the arrival of Gov. Oscar K. Allen, who acted on Long's instructions in convening the special legislative session which gave Long dictatorial powers. Gov. Allen called to the Senator:

"Let's go to town."

Long, followed closely by two burly bodyguards, scampered into the Governor's car, shouting:

"Well, so long; I've got to obey my Governor!"

Raiders Arrest 4; Seize Moonshine

Four men were arrested in a raid at 565 Seventh avenue last night after officers reported confiscating a small amount of moonshine in a pot on the stove.

Those held were Felice Anselin, 48, 565 Seventh avenue, charged with violating the liquor laws, and Charles Bradley, same address; Joseph O'Kane, 44, of 210 Sciota street, and Frank Hays, 37, of 294 Ashland street, arrested as visitors.

Ex-Bank Employe Arrested in Holdup

TOMAHAWK, Wis., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A man who police said explained he was a former bank employe "in need of money" had been arrested here today as a suspect in the $2,900 robbery of the Farmers' State Bank of Mosinee.

UNITE AGAINST 'SLAVE' RINGS AND COINERS

HARRISBURG Aug 24 —(AP)—Federal and state agents are combining forces to smash two major rackets in Pennsylvania—the "white slave" traffic and counterfeiting.

Numerous reports of young women being brought into the commonwealth from neighboring states or being transported from Pennsylvania by "rings" or syndicates of racketeers, are being scrutinized by investigators.

Social welfare agencies, civic groups, newspapers and others are aiding the inquiries brought by complaints, particularly from the hard coal regions and industrial centers.

Maj. Lynn O. Adams, superintendent of the state police, today told how reports of missing girls are checked with police in various cities, as are certain types of advertisements offering attractive work for girls outside of Pennsylvania. Known resorts and dives are being watched.

The state police are co-operating with the Department of Justice, which investigates all violations of the Mann act.

Meanwhile the secret service is keeping an eye on counterfeiters who have become active again in certain parts of the state.

There was a flood of spurious coins in Pennsylvania the first of the year. The racketeers confined their early efforts to eastern and anthracite mining cities, but of late have been reported working the western part of the state as well.

Investigators report the worthless coins are not being made in Pennsylvania. The supply, they assert, is chiefly from New York state.

State police and government agents explain these rackets have drawn their most active workers from the old beer and bootleg whisky traffic of pre-repeal days.

OFFICIALS DENY 'BRUTALITY' TO INDIAN PUPILS

Associated Press wrote:

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 24.—Denials that any unnecessary measures of discipline had ever been used in the schools of the Papago and Apache Indian reservations were made today by government officials.

The denial came after reports from Washington, said to emanate from Indians, charged that cruelty was practiced by teachers in the names Indian schools on the pupils.

Theodore Hall, head of the Papago reservation, with headquarters near here, and who recently was transferred here from the Navajo and Hopi country, declared he had never known of any incidents where harsh punishment had been inflicted on teachers or Indian students, as in the case of white children.

What whippings or rare cases were necessary to maintain discipline was admitted by Hall, but he said such punishment was never carried to a harmful degree."

On the Apache reservations at Rice and on the Whiteriver agency officials declared that the schools will reopen next month without the use of punishment.

Associated Press wrote:

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—Three years overdue, the relief party sent out to bring back a group of 44 Russians including many scientists and research workers from Wrangel Island in the Arctic Ocean where the Soviet flag was at last reached the island Monday on the icebreaker Krassin according to dispatches received here.

The 44 who were marooned on an ice-bound floe which they could not get water during nine months of the year danced with delight at the arrival of their rescuers. They had followed every step of the rescue over the radio.

They had even read recent Moscow newspapers dropped to them with supplies of food from airplanes, but they could not leave their inland prison on which they had planned to stay two years making observations of value to Russian ambitions of opening a route from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the Arctic Ocean north of Europe and Asia. They had remained there five years.

They were to have been relieved last year but the Soviet ice-breaker Chelyuskin was crushed by the ice and for a time the residents of Wrangle Island were almost forgotten in the efforts finally successful, to rescue the 104 persons from the wrecked icebreaker, who were drifting on the ice floes.

Train Cuts Hose So Another Born Burns

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Two items had been otherwise but the firemen had the blaze under control when a Pennsylvania train came along and cut the hose in two. Then another was burned.

Flames of unknown origin destroyed the Harvey Johnson barn until the fire had spread to the A. W. Rose barn when the firemen arrived.

That's when the train came along.

Without the hose, the firemen couldn't keep the blaze from Amos Hamish's barn and it went, too.

The loss was estimated at $4,000.

JEKYLL-HYDE JUDGE TRAPPED ON ROOF

International News Service wrote:

BUCHAREST, Aug. 24.—A strange case of double personality reminiscent of Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde was brought before the Braila police court which had the unpleasant task of sending one of its own judges who was accused of burglary to a mental hospital.

During the day George Grigorescu was a capable and promising young magistrate. At night however he turned burglar whose pluck and cunning easily astounded the police and rendered his capture difficult.

After a sensational pursuit on house roofs, Grigorescu slipped and was caught. Owing to his abnormal behavior he was examined by a commission of psychiatrists who were of the opinion that the judge is not responsible for his actions due to the fact that he suffers from double personality mania.

DEATH PARTS TWINS FROM 'SCANDALS'

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Death today had broken up the sister team of Virginia and Martha Loomis, dancers, just as they were prepared for a motion picture career.

Virginia was 18 years old.

They came out of the West about four years ago to attain fame along the Rialto. Their big opportunity finally came with a Hollywood contract with Pox Film Corporation.

The Loomis sisters were natives of Kansas City, Mo. Virginia's body will be taken there tonight.

SLAYS WOMAN, SHOOTS SELF

ALTOONA, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A 23-year-old woman was shot to death last night by a man who afterwards shot and seriously wounded himself.

Catherine Pincin died en route to a hospital from a bullet wound inflicted outside a Green avenue cafe. Her assailant, Kenneth Burley, 29, suffering from a bullet wound in the head, was reported in a serious condition.

Police reported Burley called the woman to the outside of the cafe, where she had been sitting with a group of friends, and fired at her after a whispered conversation. He turned and ran 10 feet, after which he shot himself.

Want Banks to Keep Open Saturday Night

So said a local merchant as he joined with others to urge two local banks to resume former hours, under which the banks remained open Saturday afternoon and evening. The merchants pointed out that the town is the center of a large rural population and much of the town's business is done on Saturday night.

Tolls Protestants Plan Traffic Check

The South Hills Civic Federation plans an independent traffic check of the Liberty Tubes as a part of its anti-toll fight, it was announced today. The federation hopes to disprove the County Commissioners' claim that only 27 per cent of the tube traffic originates in the South Hills section.

Romance of President's Mother Began In Home of T. R.'s Father

MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT, THE NATION'S FIRST MOTHER, CARRYING CHEER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—In the older generation she was known as one of the five beautiful Delano sisters, admitted to the old tradition of American aristocracy, taught to believe it is vulgar to have your name in the papers.

Today as the Presidential mother, she is besieged by photographers and interviewed on every hand, but has managed to make a startling readjustment of her ideas—at 80.

This is Mrs. James Roosevelt, the nation's first mother as described by Rita S. Halle in the September Good Housekeeping. Miss Halle writes:

"Mrs. Roosevelt would have been an interesting person even if there had never been a President son. And while I admit that the fact of that son's becoming the great leader of this troubled country has placed an extra halo on the head of an old friend, it is still an extra halo."

HOW ROMANCE STARTED

Describing the romance of the beautiful Sally Delano and James Roosevelt, Miss Halle says that their first meeting took place at a dinner party at the home of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, mother of the late President and grandmother of the present "First Lady."

Then, in the summer of 1880, the man whose son was destined to become President courted the girl who never thought she would be a President's mother, at the Delano estate, Algonac, at Newburgh-on-the-Hudson.

They were married in October and drove back to the Hyde Park home, where the dowager Mrs. Roosevelt still presides over the family table and beams at her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Miss Halle writes:

ENTERTAINS CONSTANTLY

"Fate has placed her in the so-called leisure class. But she runs her big houses in town and in the country without a housekeeper. She entertains constantly at both places. She gives benefits at her own home and sponsors them elsewhere for impecunious friends or for young musicians who can use a friendly boost. She is active on half a dozen charity boards, where she has worked for years unphotographed. She goes to concerts and art exhibits, and hears and sees them understandingly out of her rich background.

"At her house one meets all sorts of new acquaintances. . . . People old, young and middle-aged, of high birth and humble parentage, of brilliant intellect and modest attainments. To all, the family hospitality, proverbial even before Emerson called it so, is extended in the most simple yet warm and generous fashion."

HITLER POWER QUESTION OF PROPAGANDA

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler—chief executive, chancellor and fuehrer—today stood in an apparently unopposable position, by virtue of Sunday's landslide.

Like the late President Paul von Hindenburg and the Kaiser himself in his heyday, Hitler's smashing victory in the plebiscite at which 9 out of every 10 Germans approved his assumption of far-reaching power, marks him virtually unassailable—as only Germany knows how to muster its symbols.

Premier of Prussia, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, wrote and Algemeine Zeitung:

"Before our leader, Adolf Hitler, all criticism subsides. Every man must obey impartially, no matter who he is."

INFORMAL TRUCE

The validity of Hitler's assumption is not in the least affected, most observers believe, by the fact that even the most uncritical are aware that the problem, and the Storm Troopers has not been solved, that prices are going up, that raw materials are getting short.

A kind of informal truce has been established in the expectation that Hitler will "do something," and even in the better informed circles the attitude toward the Fuehrer, while more critical, is in many cases one of patient loyalty.

Industrialists and bankers are willing to wait, hopeful Hitler will abandon definitely economic experiment.

The Reichswehr, at last, seems to have accepted Hitler on the basis of his equality policy.

The sequel of the so-called "blood purge" of June 30, when more than 70 alleged conspirators died, has been to demonstrate that Hitler can afford to be completely independent even of his own party.

Observers believe he could repudiate the entire Storm Troop organization tomorrow, and find that his propaganda ministry would see to it that the judgment of the people was changed into emotional approval of any "betrayal" of the avowed foundation of Nazism.

In other words, Hitler is as invulnerable as Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, is inventive.

FLOW OF PROPAGANDA

And that the flow of propaganda, which has been proceeding smoother throughout the critical days beginning with last spring's campaign against grumblers, will continue well into the winter is indicated by lavish preparations for such events as the "party day" in early September, the Peasants' Day and Thanksgiving and the winter relief campaign.

Under Goebbels' influence, competent observers believe the majority of the German people will rise to every exigency of the situation, enduring hardships and privations as they did during the World War. They are being prepared for this already—news of the economic situation is being administered in gradual doses, so as to render the public consciousness immune to the shock of too sudden revelation.

3 Drown at Carnival As Squall Hits Lake

MUNICH, Aug. 24.—(INS.)—Three are known dead and many others feared drowned today at Lake Chiemsee, where rescue parties replaced canoes and small sailing craft after a sudden squall ended the annual "chasing the monster" festival. Many boats were found floating bottoms up.

Austria Fines Nazis To Pay Putsch Cost

VIENNA, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Continuing its policy of making rich Austrian Nazis pay the cost of suppressing the recent Nazi putsch, the safety director of the province of Styria today fined 30 industrialists, doctors and lawyers a total of $100,000.

DUCE MUNCHES ARMY FOOD

International News Service.

BOLOGNA, Italy, Aug. 24.—Premier Benito Mussolini showed today that it was not beneath his dignity to sample the food from a field kitchen in the maneuvers of the Italian army which he is now directing, but he would not be photographed doing it.

Inspecting the field kitchens, Mussolini passed great cauldrons of tomato soup and orderlies cutting up mutton. Il Duce hungrily sniffed the air and found the odor irresistable.

He demanded a slice of meat and slowly munched it. "Good," he pronounced it.

He took some of the soup. When he noticed a photographer getting the focus, he angrily chased the photographer away, exclaiming:

"I will not be photographed while eating."

CUBAN PORTS IN PRIVATE WAR

MATANZAS, Cuba, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—While the rest of Cuba was absorbed in revolutionary developments, Matanzas and Cardenas, seports, 30 miles apart, are engaged in a heated controversy marked by boycotts, lootings and general strikes.

The trouble started when the national government, yielding to vociferous demands, made Matanzas a free port, an action which abolished certain duties. Cardenas protested vigorously and a mob raided a home and store owned by former residents of Matanzas now living at Cardenas.

Matanzas has retaliated by declaring a boycott on products of Cardenas, including rum, sugar and alcohol.

Schuschnigg Goes Home From Parley

Nazis Blamed In Growth of Paganism

"The Nazi revolution created the prerequisites for a revolution of lofty values known as religion. Acknowledgment of the sacredness of the German race and blood alone made possible an objective attitude toward Christianity."

Striking parallel utterances by Reichsbishop Mueller tend to confirm advances made by the pagan faith movement. The Reichsbishop, who is charged with unification of the German Protestant Church, praised the Nazi revolution for having "opened new prospects for eternal folk values, above all for ties of soil and blood."

He indicated the government favored the Protestant over the Catholic Church, declaring:

"The Evangelical Church, in consequence of its close bonds of unity with the National Socialist Third Reich, cannot enter into a concordat with the Reich—it could hardly sign a pact with itself."

LONDON DENIES JAPANESE PACT

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The foreign office today issued a categorical denial of reports that Great Britain has entered a political alliance or understanding with Japan.

Officials believe the reports may have been received by the departure of a British Federation of Industries mission for Manchukuo, where it will seek to promote trade with the new state.

A government official reiterated the government has no connection with the trade mission, and that non-recognition of Manchukuo continues to be the official policy.

Nazis Imprison Head Of Forbidden Party

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The newly-established peoples' special court has sentenced Wilhelm Doerter, leader of a "Trotsky group," to serve a two-year prison sentence.

The court, organized to try treason cases, found Doerter guilty of establishing a forbidden political party.

NAZIS PROCLAIM REGULATIONS FOR CUPID

Eugenics officials issued today a list of 10 commandments for the guidance of German youth when approaching the complex business of marriage.

It's allright to "marry for love," but first the young couple must consider whether their marriage helps the nation. "Seek a mate . . . not playmate—for matrimony," says one commandment.

It is also undesirable warns the other commandment, for anyone in good health not to marry. Not to do so would break "the chain of the generation."

One advises us:

"As a German choose a mate of equal or Nordic blood. Research has shown that the Nordic is superior and all German people . . . bound by ties of Nordic blood."

RAIL SHOWDOWN NEAR FOR JAPS AND RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Years of difficulties between Russia and Japan over the Chinese Eastern Railway are in a general state of the Orient came closer to a showdown today.

Each of the Soviet aid of Chinese commander here, directly following the assaults, were on Tokio, to which Moscow has addressed a blunt protest for the escape of scores of its citizens aiding the railway.

A note given Japan Ambassador by the Soviet ambassador said:

"Similar and of late of them repeated demonstrations of the Japanese war ministry, parallel with actions in Manchuria, testify to the aggravation of the aggressive intentions of some official Japanese circles.

"The government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics expects that the Japanese government will make all necessary inferences."

A similar protest also has been lodged with the "independent" state of Manchukuo, created by Japan out of territory taken from China.

Russia demanded also punish the rioters of 18 Soviet officials and employes of the Chinese Eastern Railway in the area governed by Harbin.

OIL INDUSTRY DEDICATING DRAKE WELL

TITUSVILLE, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A daily-decreasing city water supply refused thousands of visitors to the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of the bringing in of Drake well.

Forty-six specially assigned state highway patrolmen were distributed in the city's streets to keep traffic moving, as automobiles filled the highway.

MONSTER PARADE

The celebration—termed the "diamond jubilee of oil"—will be marked by dedication of Drake Memorial Park and a monster parade with a score of flats, on Saturday.

Discovery of oil at Col. Drake's well and other incidents which gave birth to one of northwestern Pennsylvania's greatest industries, will be re-enacted at a pageant Friday and Saturday night, in charge of the Titusville American Legion Post.

CORONATION BALL

The coronation ball for the oil queens and their princesses will be held in the Colestock High School auditorium, gymnasium and building as a feature of the four-day celebration.

Many of the towns surrounding Titusville, and located within the oil area, selected oil queens and princesses to be presented at the ball Saturday night.

Fawncy! S'pose Heirloom Was Big Ben

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Carrying an heirloom clock under her arm, Antoinette Cellier, comely London actress, arrived today to take a whirl at the movies. She said the clock belonged to her great-grandfather, and she considers it a lucky charm.

Miss Cellier, daughter of Frank Cellier, distinguished figure on the London stage, was signed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio by David O. Selznick, who recently saw her in the stage play "Sixteen." She never has appeared in pictures.

CROWD STONES WORKERS IN SILK STRIKE

Deputy sheriffs, acting as escorts dispersed the mob with tear gas after several of the 10 cars in the convoy had been damaged and more than two dozen officers and workers struck by flying rocks. Two men were arrested.

Capt. Paul B. Stout, of the state police, came here last night in response to a call from the sheriff and said state troopers would be on hand to guard against further disorder. He said his orders were not to interfere with peaceful picketing.

Troopers Rescue Sheriff In Silk Plant Strike

COLUMBIA, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Four state troopers escorted Sheriff Daniel F. Shulman and 12 deputies through a barrage of bricks and stones hurled by a mob at one of the Marietta Silk Company's ten plants in Columbia, where a strike is in progress.

The Sheriff and 12 men whom he had deputized earlier in the day when called upon by plant officials to escort a truckload of silk from the mill, had found it unadvisable to attempt to move the truck. They remained in the plant a while, then left by a rear door.

Seen crossing a field, they were chased around the block by the mob. Two tear gas bombs were thrown to stave off the crowd while the Sheriff and his officers hurried into the building again. They stayed there until the troopers arrived.

from other employers, especially Mellon-controlled companies."

Telegrams similar to those addressed to the President and the Governor were sent to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and Lloyd Garrison, head of the National Labor Relations Board. The messages bore the signatures of P. T. Fagan, president, and H. L. Woodmansee, secretary, of the Central Labor Council.

Meanwhile, at New Kensington, a "back to work" committee sought signatures to a petition asking the company to reopen its plants. Union pickets patrolled outside the committee's office and at the main gates of the plants.

Gov. Pinchot was asked by the union to appeal to President Roosevelt "to force the company to restore industrial peace."

Fred Knightly, veteran conciliator for the Labor Department, returned to Washington yesterday from the strike scene, to present the union's plan for strike settlement to Secretary Perkins.

The plan, involving immediate return to work and eventual arbitration between the National Labor Relations Board and the company, was accepted by the aluminum workers' union, but rejected by the Aluminum Company, through its president, Roy A. Hunt.

STEEL MAN'S HOME BOMBED

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A dynamite bomb was exploded early today outside the home of C. L. Bransford, general superintendent of the Republic Steel Corporation plant, L. C. Tate, a former plant employe, was caught after a chase.

Forewarned of a plot to dynamite the residence, private detectives laid a trap, but one of the two occupants in the bombers' automobile escaped.

DRIVERS STRIKE AT PACKING PLANTS

A truck drivers' strike, tying up deliveries, was on today at two plants of Swift & Co. and that of the St. Louis Independent Packing Company, a subsidiary.

Ordered, it is said, by Walter Henderson, president of Local Union 249, General Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers, after failure of negotiations with company representatives, the chief bone of contention is recognition of the union.

An increase in wages and shorter hours are also involved, according to Henderson.

Police were guarding the Swift & Co. plants at 309 Anderson street and South Twenty-first and Carson streets this morning.

Pickets appeared at all three plants, but made no attempt to stop three or more trucks, driven, it was said, by non-union drivers, that left the North Side plant with loads of meat shortly before noon.

An official of the company said:

"Meat is an extremely perishable product. Of course we are going to try to make deliveries today."

Henderson predicted the strike would be "100 per cent among drivers in the three plants today."

C. S. Hopkins, district manager of Swift & Co. said:

"A lot of our drivers are not going to strike."

DILLINGER AIDE LED TO DEATH BY WOMAN

that the pair was Van Meter and Carroll. Carroll was shot to the capitals dead at once.

SHOT TO MATH

For two weeks the Hoosier sheriff, last night the law and Van Meter met and Van Meter quit shooting citizens in favor a fight against officers was after him.

The end of the Van Meter hunt came near the downtown district. In answer to a command that he surrender Van Meter whipped out a gun and took him. Detectives Thomas Brown, however, continued firing a machine gun.

Van Meter, one of the men who shot their way out of police traps here and in Wisconsin raided an Indiana police station for firearms, looted banks, gambled and embraced among the country between crime sorties fell prone.

ROLLS IN DUST

His straw hat rolled in the dust that blackened his white shoes, and blood flowed from more than two score wounds.

Another blast of fire cracked from the machine gun, but the man lay inert, moved only by the impact of bullets. One finger was ripped off by the fire, a thumb and finger of the right hand were almost severed at the first joint.

His expensive wrist watch ticked on as a crowd gathered. Van Meter, like Dillinger, had sought to alter his appearance in an effort to cheat the law. But a newly-grown mustache, half that police believed, had been dyed darker, and removal of a tattoo mark on his forearm—a design which included the word "there"—failed to disguise him from the discerning eyes of police.

It was Van Meter, who, with Dillinger, Tommy Carroll, George (Baby Face) Nelson and John Hamilton, raided the Sioux Falls (S. D.) Security National Bank last March and escaped with more than $50,000.

ROUTS OFFICER

Again Van Meter blazed away at the law March 31, when surprised by federal agents at the Dillinger apartment here. He drove R. C. Coulter out the front door with flaming pistol, miraculously escaped being hit by Coulter's fire and disappeared.

A moment later, Dillinger, with Evelyn Frechette (now in prison for two years for harboring the Indiana outlaw) blasted his way to freedom with a machine gun. Somewhere, later, Dillinger and Van Meter met, then invaded a Warsaw (Ind.) police station, stole firearms, and disappeared again.

The law caught up with them in the Little Bohemia resort near Mercer, Wis., where federal agents surrounded the gang one dark night. Once more Van Meter, Dillinger, Carroll and Nelson eluded the guns of the government men.

Death lagged Carroll at Waterloo, Iowa, several months ago. Then Dillinger was shot down as he left a Chicago theater after viewing a film of gamblers and death.

WOMAN IN DANGER

A woman was with him and a woman last night got in the line of fire by accident. In neither case did it make any difference.

Police hunted today for Van Meter's hideout and his companions and connections here. The last heard of "Baby Face" Nelson was last week at Sioux City, Iowa, authorities said.

Of Van Meter, the police wrote the final chapter of his record—$923 in 10 and 20 dollar bills in his pockets, a clip of bullets for his automatic, and an Illinois motor vehicle license registration card issued to "Henry Adams."

In June, 1923, Van Meter was sentenced to 41 days in jail as Kenneth R. Jackson at Aurora, Ill., on a disorderly conduct charge. The next year he was given one to 10 years on a larceny charge at Menard, Ill., but was paroled the same year.

Two charges of robbery put him in the Indiana State Reformatory in 1925 after conviction at Pendleton, Ind. His term was 10 to 21 years. He was paroled May 19, 1933.

MOBSTERS SLAIN

Dillinger mobsters who have been killed are, besides Dillinger himself: Van Meter, Joseph Jenkins, shot down last September following a Dillinger-engineered escape from prison at Michigan City, Ind.; Herbert Youngblood, the Negro jailmate of Dillinger at Crown Point, Ind., and his partner in the famous "wooden gun" escape, who was killed at Port Huron, Mich., two weeks later; Eugene Green, killed by federal agents in a gun fight in April, and Tommy Carroll.

Four men remain at liberty. Of the quartet, "Baby Face" Nelson is officially "public enemy No. 1," although John Hamilton, who was a close ally of Dillinger, is considered equally desperate. The others are Joseph Fox and Joe Burns, lesser fry.

Two others are under death

sentences in the Ohio penitentiary and a third is under a life sentence there.

First knowledge of his predicament came as four officers, including Chief Cullen, left their car on the fringe of the downtown district and shouted for him to surrender.

His anticipated reply—a salvo from a .38-caliber gun which he jerked from his belt—was met in turn by a blast from guns wielded by Chief Cullen and Detective Brown. If the desperado was struck by the first burst, his actions did not indicate it.

Trapped and fully conscious of it, Van Meter whirled about and ran, dodging in front of a woman, Mrs. Andrew Stedje, housewife. Then, the gunmen dared across the street while the four officers spread out, two running straight at him and two darting down the street to get clear aim as he turned on reaching the sidewalk.

With the woman out of danger, Detectives Thomas McMahon and Jeff Dilrich opened fire with their machine guns. Their aims were true and Brown, who was nearest to the fleeing man, said he saw blood on the fleeing man's right hand as he started off into the alley.

PIMPLY SKIN

How to Hold Your Job!

The way to hold your job is to have your mind always clear, your disposition good, and to feel like working.

All these things depend very largely on what you eat. You can slow yourself up to the point of driving the boss crazy if you eat the wrong kind of lunch.

At least one meal a day, eat Shredded Wheat, milk, and fruit. This gives you the carbohydrates you need for energy, the proteins for tissue building, those mysterious vitamins that help you to resist disease, and bran to keep you regular.

No wonder it makes you feel fine. If you wanted to, you could live on this food combination and nothing else. It's economical—and it's mighty wise eating—especially during the hot weather. Start Shredded Wheat today and see how much more it puts you on top of your job.

Armor-Clad Whiteman Has Say

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Paul Whiteman emerged apologetically as he buckled on the shining armor of a crusader, presiding over the first meeting of the self-styled Committee-to-Keep-Radio-Clean.

The other members of the committee are Rudy Vallee, Guy Lombardo, Abe Lyman and Richard Himber. But the only ones who showed up for the meeting were Mr. Whiteman and Mr. Himber, who thought up the idea in the first place. Mr. Vallee, who has so often warbled "My Time Is Your Time," didn't have to come.

Said Mr. Whiteman, who was appointed chairman by vote of Mr. Himber:

"Now don't get me wrong. "I don't think there's anything wrong with radio as it is. The censor boards of the broadcasting chains themselves are highly efficient. Sometimes too much so."

At this point a young man from NBC spoke up.

"We don't call it censoring, Mr. Whiteman. We just call it editing."

Mr. Whiteman hitched his suspender and continued:

"All right, editing. The editing boards do a pretty thorough job as it is. Look at what they did to 'Love Thy Neighbor.' They even changed that to read 'Love Your Neighbor.'"

He was asked:

"Will you set an example by refusing to play suggestive songs?"

Mr. Whiteman considered, and replied:

"Well, I wouldn't go so far as to say that."

Booked

That charming little singer whose low-voiced interpretations won the hearts of thousands, Welcome Lewis, returns to the network for a night as "California Melodies" guest . . . WJAS at 9.

Aviation, News Figures Broadcast Tonight From Argentina

Characteristically modern, combining the three most outstanding developments of the Twentieth Century—radio, aviation and news publication—will be the international wafting slated for the NBC-blue lanes and KDKA tonight.

Radio, baby of the triumvirate, will bring to coast-to-coast listeners the voices of half a dozen men prominently identified with the news and aviation businesses from Buenos Aires, South American aeronautical center, as they participate in ceremonies marking the end of the new Brazilian Clipper's maiden flight from North to South.

Speakers on the program, scheduled at 10:15, will include Edward Vidal, air commerce director of the United States Department of Commerce; Francisco Mendes dos Calves, Argentine director of aeronautics; Edward G. Tomlinson, NBC lecturer and commentator, and several passengers.

Comprising the passenger list are Mr. Vidal, William P. Brooks, executive assistant to general manager, Associated Press; Edgar M. Swaset, vice president, American Weekly; Roy W. Howard, chairman, Scripps-Howard Newspapers; James H. Furey, vice president, United Press Associations; James G. Stahlman, publisher, Nashville Banner; Frank E. Gannett, chairman, Gannett Newspapers; M. C. Meigs, manager, Chicago American; Paul Patterson, publisher, Baltimore Sun; Amon G. Carter, publisher, Fort Worth Stay-Telegram; H. V. Jenkins, publisher, Savannah Morning News and Savannah Press; Jerome D. Barnum, publisher, Syracuse Post-Standard; John Cowles, publisher, Des Moines Register and Tribune; J. N. Wheeler, general manager, North American Newspaper Alliance; Mr. Tomlinson, and J. T. Tripp, E. E. Young and G. L. Rihl, of Pan-American Airways.

WELCOME BACK

Richard Washburn Childs, famed author and former ambassador to Italy, comes to the air via WJAS at 10:45 tonight to ask, "What About the Taxpayer?"

Welcome Lewis, who's been away from the microphone too, too long, returns for a one-time in the California Melodies guest spot.

"Stowaway," in which a beautiful girl does the stowing away aboard a trans-Atlantic liner, is the First Nighter's current offering.

H. V. Kaltenborn, Columbia's ace vivisector of national and international affairs, who returned to United States shores Wednesday after a comprehensive tour of Russia, opens his seventh year on the CBS lanes at 6.

KDKA's August 3 salute to Toronto in tribute to Canada's four hundredth birthday nets a return gesture, broadcast throughout the Dominion net, at 8:30 not, however, to be carried locally.

* * *

RIGGS GETS RENEWAL

Tommy Riggs' soap commercial is boasting a 13-week renewal, which, when completed, will have rounded out a full year for "Uncle" under the same banner.

Leon Churchon, of the WCAE staff, is the recipient of another contest award—his second within three weeks. His entry in the "Blue Streak Radio Drama" competition has been selected for wafting by Gene and Glenn.

Woe is us! A telegraph pole, old and decrepit, tumbled to the ground in the rear of a Penn avenue home the other day. And so Pittsburgh loses another landmark—it was the original antenna pole erected by Dr. Frank Conrad for the experiments that led to the establishment of the world's first regular broadcasting station, KDKA.

Local Highlights On WJAS

Tal Henry's band makes its bow on WJAS tonight as one of the orchestras to be heard in the "Dancing Party" from 11:30 to 12:30. Eddie Peyton and Hermann Middleman are also billed.

Another diaire feature—Fran Eichler's band, scheduled from 6:15 to 6:30.

Ed Lowry Will 'Preside'

Poised to remain in New York due to local engagements, Ed Lowry will nevertheless, m. c. the Alvin opening as a movie house here next Thursday. He'll introduce Mayor McNair, Senator Frank J. Harris and others participating—all via a two-reel short, specially made for the occasion.

Ed, by the way, wondered just what the dictionary would have to say about the word "croon" and sends it on.

Anybody Want a Good Mind Reader?

Air Moguls, Turk On Hands, Wail 'What to Do?'

By AIRCASTER

Somebody at CBS recently turned up with a Turkish oracle, name of Khaldah, who claims to be a real mind reader. Think of a song title and Khaldah, so they tell me, gets it immediately and by mental telegraphy induces an artist to sing the song. Up to that moment there's no writing or speaking. Khaldah can tell you your name, right off the bat, or the first name of your maiden aunt. He's quite a versatile fellow.

"But, network execs would like to know, how in the world can such a genius be used on the radio? They'd like to feature Khaldah, but unless the audience kicks in with a satisfactory method of presenting him, it looks like Khaldah will have to struggle along without benefit of microphone.

* * *

As usual, the microphonic football season will be inaugurated this year by the customary smack of non-operation. You'll find, when the routine is all set that both NBC and CBS stations will use broadcasting on occasion. One mid-afternoon battle, with each independent station or two separated, to the audiences with like name game.

At the moment the NBC date has not been made up, but Columbia's has. Columbia, in order to that camp has been making overtures for years to NBC for a get-together huddle, so that some system may be worked out by which each game, and each network will provide weekly an equally interesting as well as equally diversified menus. For some reason, and the great package, because of a possible commercial angle, NBC has shindaied these overtures.

It is the notion of those NBC that football game broadcasts can be sponsored. In fact, the news was allowed to break out some weeks ago that a cigaret manufacturer would put on one a series of games.

The "news," which was universally accepted, is by no means actually new. There are colleges and universities involved which will not permit the broadcasts of their games to be commercialized, and so the cigaret firm's reported gelan is not yet at the fruition stage.

This failure of the weeks to coordinate their football service is one of the instances where fan mail and public reaction are going very much altered on.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS :-: By PAUL MALLON

Jibes at New Deal Part of Clever Campaign

Businessmen in half a dozen cities say they cannot survey their morning mail without coming across letters from friends, or anonymous pamphlets, containing the latest jibes and jokes about the government.

Most of the stuff is too bad to print, but Paul Mallon some of it is at least semi-humorous, as, for instance, the following example gleaned from a stack of such material:

"The Business Man's Prayer."

NRA me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my code to keep,
If I should bust bef re I wake,
A. F. of L. my plant will take,

BACKGROUND

You may recall that anonymous pamphleteers and jibe-makers have had a rather important hand in all political movements before and after the excellent job they did in fomenting the French Revolution.

This current campaign is hardly approaching the revolutionary stage as yet, but it has the aroma of centralized conception and skillful execution.

It seems to be the lighter side of a well backed (financially) organization of efforts against the Roosevelt reforms. Gentlemen who have an ear for keyholes avow that a certain large industry is now creating a Washington organization to keep close tab on New Deal intentions. This happens to be a legitimate move, but it has strong political possibilities, because the particular industry is all against President Roosevelt.

PLANS

More formidable opposition movements will be started as soon as the congressional elections are over. Preparations for them are already hatched.

The wise ones agree that it would be a waste of money to try to do much against the New Deal in the coming congressional elections. They figure it is impossible to make a dent in the Roosevelt strength then.

After that, the masks will be off and there will certainly be some close in-fighting, if nothing more.

HELP

Jouett Shouse's new organization is only an extranous phase of these non-partisan opposition activities. It is supposed to be backed by the duPonts of Delaware, among others.

This is the same combination which worked so successfully in propagandizing the repeal of prohibition.

Shouse will certainly have his heart in his work after what the Roosevelt wing did in blocking his election as permanent chairman at the last Democratic convention.

COURAGE

The New Dealers have not taken such opposition very seriously. Mr. Roosevelt spoofed it at Green Bay. One of his most enthusiastic followers explained this attitude, off the record, the other day, about as follows:

"People say business is disturbed. They do not mean business. They mean the speculators in New York, or bankers. The great average run of businessmen are not seriously disturbed, although some of them may be complaining, as they always complain at a reform administration."

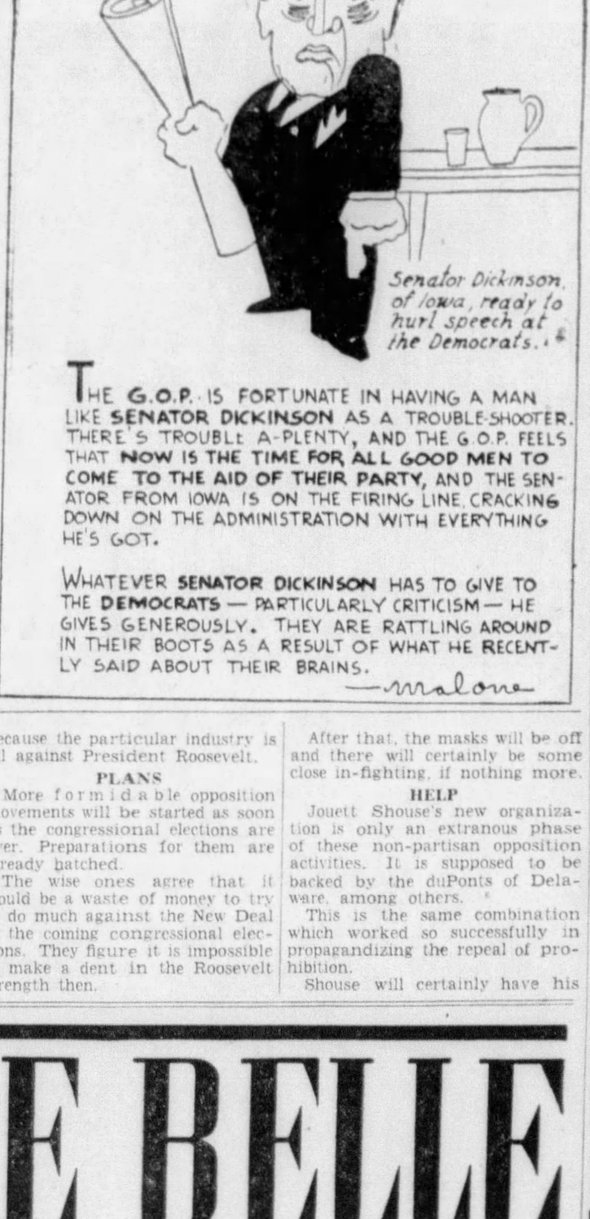
(Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon.)



CALLS ADMINISTRATION "RATTLE-BRAINED"
Senator Dickinson, of Iowa, ready to hurl speech at the Democrats.
THE G.O.P. IS FORTUNATE IN HAVING A MAN LIKE SENATOR DICKINSON AS A TROUBLE-SHOOTER. THERE'S TROUBLE A-PLENTY, AND THE G.O.P. FEELS THAT NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO THE AID OF THEIR PARTY, AND THE SENATOR FROM IOWA IS ON THE FIRING LINE, CRACKING DOWN ON THE ADMINISTRATION WITH EVERYTHING HE'S GOT.
WHATEVER SENATOR DICKINSON HAS TO GIVE TO THE DEMOCRATS — PARTICULARLY CRITICISM — HE GIVES GENEROUSLY. THEY ARE RATTLING AROUND IN THEIR BOOTS AS A RESULT OF WHAT HE RECENTLY SAID ABOUT THEIR BRAINS.

'A Columnist, Whose Sec'y Can't Read or Write, Pens a Few Notes—Proving He Also Can't!

Dear P. Y.: The follow-up on your item about Greta Nissen never having filed Mexplosion papers vs. Welton Heyburn is this—The famous Swedish screwnie blonde is in Paris at the present moment pleading with a magistrate . . . Newport intimates who can't get Doris Duke to deny that the ton of Tiffany on her "important finger" is the promise of Jimmy Cromwell, the Stotesbury bluehood, insist she's still undecided. a Non-Register unknown last being the reason . . . Amy Leslie, dean of Chicago's critics, has not yet been told of the death of her dearest friend, Texas Guinan—her medicos fear that the shock might kill the ailing lady.

Lew Brown plussed. Despite everything that has been said, he is definitely going into production within four weeks, but instead of a revue, he will do a book show . . . Which was his original intention . . . I told him you missed him over the weekend, and he said he went up to the dentists and was glad to be back after a long absence . . . Alva Johnson, who did that swell profile on Mike Romanoff, is plotting one on Billy Rose . . . One of the incidents which he'll disclose is about the time when the Little General was studying to be pool shark . . . It seems he hired his sister, Polly, to be his valet at 25 cents a week, and one day when she asked for a nickel raise, he became so angry he didn't speak to her again for two months . . . The funny part about it was that he never paid her anyway—and she was only asking him to owe her a nickel a week.

W. Huntington Watts, the socially-listed bachelor with footlight ambitions, is en route to Hollywood with a MGM contract . . . Down in Miami, Polly Lux, toast of the Follies in the early '20s, is operating an apartment house . . . And not far from her establishment is the shop where Bessie McCoy Davis' mother is fighting hunger by selling cats . . . Bernard D. Morris says a certain B'way picture house was so empt last wk. the guy in the balcony thought he was in a box . . . Frank ("That is finest appla pie you ever had in all my life") Frankini, now the sole proprietor of Frank and Jack's, pulled a nifty after Jack departed for good . . . Norman Anthony asked if he was going to re-name the old stand. "Yes," he beamed, "I call it the Little Italian Place With No Charm!"

Here's the absolutely very, very latest wrinkle—a platinum beauty began parading Times Square this morning with a sandwich sign bearing this legend: "This is a bona fide proposition. My employer needs $7,500 to produce a play. Communicate, Box 201, Hotel President" . . . It turns out that the would-be Belasco is Noel Meadow, a press agent, who got tired of beating the drums of others and wants to stage his own script . . . Two backers have already backed out on him—one through death, the other through a wife who insisted on playing the lead role . . . So Noel hired Eugenie Kay to carry his message to the world . . . She'll get paid with a job in the show—if she procures an angel . . . Donald Cook nearly fell into the Fish Bowl because the Casino de Par Eve was so attractive . . . More than 100 topstars have promised to appear at the benefit for German refugees at the Yankee Stadium September 20.

H. A., of Troy, N. Y., writes to tell from which classic the lyricist of "For All We Know" borrowed that grand line—"I'll hold out my hand and my heart will be in it" . . . He quotes the Avon Bard's "The Tempest," Act 3, Scene 1: Ferdinand says "Here's my hand," and Miranda replies, "And mine, with my heart in 't" . . . So they're not only taking rhythm, but lyrics, too, from the classics . . . Which recalls your old definition of Broadway as the place where the men who write the songs of the nation can't always speak its language . . . Ben Marden's father-in-law passed on last Fri. . . . Louis K. Sidney's lad, George, who has been an ass't testing director for MGM on the coast, is being groomed for juvenile-ship—he's that handsome . . . Buddy and Vilma Ebsen have surprised the Ivoryton, Conn., natives with their fine dramatics in the Larry Anhalt stock company there.

Wynne Gibson phoned from the Waldorf . . . She says she's still trembling after having seen the Small-Time Cavalcade with you at the Music Hall . . . "There, but for the grace of God go plenty of us," she sighed, which is great humility from a Hollywood Biggie who knows the pangs of the small-time actor . . . Harry Akst dropped in to say the latest slogan on B'way is "Show me a man I pay, and I'll pay you!" . . . J. D. Williams, founder of First Nat'l Picts., collapsed in the Hotel Edison lobby and was rushed to the hospital in a critical condition . . . Welcome Carl Pouch, the Hollywood's headwaiter back—he's one of the town's better gentlemen . . . The Fokine Ballet plays its 1st picture house date at the Capitol Fri. . . . The Phil Tengeres (Myrtle Pine) are Flying Down to Reno . . . Jules Glaenzer, Cartier's front-man, has a new diversion for his guests—Siamese fighting fish in a thrilling to-the-death struggle . . . The Brad Hopes (Inez Baxter) are going for an heiring . . . Russ Columbo's torch for Carole Lombard is the McCoy—he never leaves her set and when he does he's always at the other end of a phone. You Call It Love, Russ—Ah, but I Call It Madness . . . Art Landry signed his band into the Boulevard—it's the job you recommended him for. Your Severest Critic,

PAUL YAWITZ.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24.—Hal Wallis, production boss at Warner's, has lined up a team in Ricardo Cortez and Mary Astor for the co-starring roles in "I am a Thief," the Ralph Block and Doris Mallory thriller yarn which Robert Florey will direct . . . Sally Haines' birthday party nearly started with a brawl, but she managed to collect all her boy friends for a dinner at the Cocoanut Grove. The line formed on the right with Bud Ernst, Pat Deciccio, Bert Wheeler, Johnny Newell, Bob Hussey, Cubbie Bracally and Tommy Tomlinson . . . Leo McCarey gets the directorial plum of "Ruggles of Red Gap" as his next megaphone assignment for Paramount . . . Harry Warren and Al Dubin, those sure-fire hit composers, report that many of the orchestras are going in for old-time ballads. It looks as if they are trying to keep up with the radio comedians!

At the opening of the "Vanities" (formerly the Montmartre) Shaw and Lee, Mitchell and Durant and Carter DeHaven ALMOST got into a fistic battle over a piece of comedy business, i. e.: the scene about two wrestlers meeting on the street. Shaw and Lee claimed Mitchell and Durant stole it from them—and Carter DeHaven claims he used the act before all of them were born!

The June Knight-Paul Ames romance is getting hotter and hotter. Incidentally, June has gone in for the fad of painting her finger and toenails various shades to match her frocks . . . Nearby city of Pasadena, where most of the eastern millionaires gather during the winter months, has long had what is generally accepted as a tough movie censorship board. It is interesting then to know that Mae West's last movie, "I'm No Angel," broke all existing records there for return engagements . . . Al Jolson long-distance phoned Ruby Keeler to say he'd be in town Monday, then he took a fast plane and sneaked in Sunday as a surprise . . . Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey are supposed to sign a new ticket with RKO calling for three films on a percentage basis.

Denizens of the film village were more than upset when James Cagney, Dolores del Rio, Lupe Velez and Ramon Novarro were named in Communist activities.

Fun Opener In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Fulton, reopening for the season yesterday after a summer layoff, was filled early by a good-natured audience whose pleasant humor was furthered considerably by the comedy feature, "She Learned About Sailors," a story as you might infer, about a "she" and some jolly tars. For one "she" there would have to be one particular tar—and there is such a one—but without some rather dumb help of other sailors he would have to be classified as a not-so-jolly tar.

The tale concerns the romance of a cabaret girl, played by Alice Faye, and a representative of the Navy, portrayed by Lewis Ayres. When Lew spies Alice at a window when he is on shore leave in an oriental port, he falls so thoroughly in love that when the time comes to leave a week later he is an engaged man, pledged to a wedding in Los Angeles as soon as he can send for the girl.

CHANGES HIS MIND

An officer makes him feel that married life is not for one in the Navy, so Lew writes to explain things. She never gets the letter, for a reason pictured in a strong comedy vein, and the result, arrived at in the same riotous key, is a wedding for the pair, anyhow.

While the basis of the tale is romantic, the farcical element, which takes a slap-stick trend quite often, is paramount, for which reason it is only fair to say that the leading roles are no more important to the story than two secondary parts, played by Frank Mitchell and Jack Durant, comedy acrobats of the stage, whose rough-house antics keep the audience in pretty much of a roar. They, too, are sailors, dumb pals of Lew, who eventually prove to be of some assistance to him in his affair of heart.

MISS FAYE SINGS, TOO

Mr. Ayres' part is a departure for him, and he does right well by his comedy opportunities, displaying ability to shade the few serious romantic moments with a gay light-heartedness that is sincere and refreshing. Miss Faye, who made her screen debut in George White's "Scandals," gives a typical ingenue part the flavor of youth and optimism, getting into the good graces of the audience early in the film with the singing of "Here's the Key to My Heart" in the night club where she is employed.

Harry Green, as a South American in search of talent, adds to the comedy as the fifth principal in the cast.

Photoplay's Cast Enlarged

Robert Warwick, Richard Carle, William (stage) Boyd, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Douglas Fowely, Geneva Mitchell, Wesley Barry and Peggy Shannon have been added to the cast of "Night Life of the Gods," which Lowell Sherman has placed in production by Universal. This comedy by Thorne Smith has been scripted by Barry Trivers.

Jinx Goes In Paint

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24.—Creatures of studio officials and the arsenal of a drama box dressing room finally proved no match for the charm of Anna May Wong's superstitions. Here to do "Limehouse Nights," the Chinese actress first insisted on being assigned to the third-floor dressing room that she used several years ago working with Marlene Dietrich in "Shanghai Express."

Miss Wong

Paramount chiefs, having had experience in similar superstitions with other stars, trained all their arguments on Anna May. But what finally made her succumb was the studio's offer to do the new dressing room over in yellow. Anna May's Chinese name, Wong Liu Tsong, means "frosted deep yellow willow," so she regards this as a good omen.

Just to combat any possible jinx, however, she carried over the wastebasket and light bulbs from her old dressing room.

DOCTOR* DISCOVERS AMAZING NEW SHORT-CUT RELIEF for HAY FEVER SUFFERING!

Thousands Overjoyed by Thorough Relief of New, Direct Method

Say for First Time They Had No Irritated Membranes, No Sneezing, No Itching, Watery Eyes —Could Breathe Freely and Sleep in Comfort!

THIS announces probably the most amazing relief in the history of hay fever. . . . A Chicago doctor has simplified the complicated "pollen theory" to one single idea. And reduced its treatment to one simple method, with results so rapid in some cases that relief appeared in the first few minutes; so thorough that all apparent symptoms had disappeared.

Not a narcotic deadening of the nerves. Not an astringent drying up of mucous membrane. Not a local treatment in any sense—but direct action in combating the effect of the poison found in all hay fever victims observed. For thousands it has been a marvelous answer to the suffering of hay fever.

Amazing, New Facts

This Chicago doctor thoroughly believes in the theory newly advanced by medical science, that hay fever results directly from a poisonous substance found in the blood. Regardless of what pollens the patient was sensitive to, his findings indicate the body poison always present. "It is the poisoning caused by pollens—not the pollens themselves—which is the underlying cause of hay fever suffering," reasoned the doctor. A complete right-about-face.

The "Short-Cut" Treatment Found

Now, after 2½ years of research, this doctor* has perfected Histeen—a safe preparation which promptly acts to combat the effects of this body poison. Often within a few minutes after the first dose, relief from hay fever symptoms has been reported. In case after case, this relief was so thorough that all apparent symptoms had disappeared.

Laboratory Tested

These findings were verified by independent, scientific tests in the laboratories of a famous medical university. Then Histeen was offered to the public last season in certain cities with almost incredible results. Patient after patient reported disappearance of distressing symptoms the first day—often in the first hour! And freedom from the ever-present torture of hay fever attacks right through the season.

HISTEEN
NO NARCOTICS . . . SAFE TO TAKE

Now Histeen is available in drug stores everywhere. It is taken internally, in convenient tablet form, and contains no dangerous or narcotic drugs. No sprays or salves are necessary. Will not interfere with any other treatment. It simply acts to neutralize the effect of the body poisoning. But, as report after report shows, that is enough to bring thorough relief to most sufferers—often in the first few minutes!

Don't face another season of feverish headache, itching membranes, watery eyes and wretched breathing without Histeen. See if it does not give you wonderful freedom from these symptoms and let you go through the whole season blessedly free from such ever-present suffering.

THE HISTEEN CORPORATION
415-23 West 39th Street Chicago, Ill.

READ! THOUSANDS WRITE LIKE THIS

"Almost immediately my mother was relieved. Has had little or no trouble since."—Baltimore, Md.

"Gave me great relief."—Henderson, Ky.

"More relief than anything I have ever tried and I think I have tried all the remedies for the last 35 years."—Canton, Ohio

"Since I have used Histeen, all congestion of throat and lungs has disappeared entirely. Can do work I never thought possible before."—Chicago, Ill.

"You have gained a grateful customer."—Brook, Ind.

"Not until now have I found anything to prevent the attacks."—Union City, Tenn.

Women Do Such Things

WITH A SIGH, Hector Van Astor pushed the phone away and turned to his secretary.

"The same story, Milbanks," he said. "No improvement in my wife's condition. She's a very sick woman."

His secretary looked very forlorn.

"I'm sad, sir," he murmured. "A wonderful woman, your wife. A very wonderful woman."

Van Astor nodded.

"You're right, Milbanks. She is a wonderful woman. But she'd be ever so much more wonderful if she only had a little common sense."

His secretary maintained a discreet silence. This was no spot for a salaried man to make any cracks.

"Do you know what brought on this illness?" Van Astor went on. "Dieting! Yes, sir—that and nothing else. She's 45 years old and she wants to be a chicken. So she diets.

It was shortly after 6:30 p. m. when Mr. Van Astor arrived at his palatial triplex apartment on Park Avenue.

"Not well, sir," he replied. "Not well at all. She is dozing now, but she spent a very restless day, sir."

"I suppose so," observed Van Astor. "She's a sick woman, Ackerman. She'll be a sick woman for a long time. And all because of an infernal diet. She—"

"Begging your pardon, sir," he interrupted, "but will you dine now? Dinner has been ready for some time."

Mr. Van Astor arose.

"Yes, Ackerman. I will dine at once. And you might send for that day nurse to keep me company. Miss Williams, I believe her name is. Tell her I wish her to dine with me."

In five minutes Mr. Van Astor and the nurse were dining together. Miss Williams was a tall woman with warming eyes.

"Tell me utter truth, Miss Williams," said Van Astor as he pushed his meals to one side. "Do you think a girl will ever be herself again?"

The nurse raised her hands.

"That's a question, sir, that only time can answer. She is not a very young woman, you know, and her progress is by no means sensational. Still—we hope for the best."

Mr. Van Astor helped himself to a healthy portion of duck. He wagged a fork in the general direction of Miss Williams and drifted into his favorite discussion.

"There is absolutely no reason," he observed, "why that woman should be sick. If it wasn't for that infernal diet she'd be a perfectly normal person. Do you think she went out of her mind, Miss Williams? What made her go on a diet that has almost killed her?"

The nurse shrugged.

"Who can say, sir?" she replied. "All we know is that she was a very foolish woman. She had nothing to gain and everything to lose. I suppose it all sprang from the desire to be young again."

Mr. Van Astor beamed at Miss Williams.

"You're a very sensible woman," he asserted. "I really enjoy talking to you. And by the way, these potatoes are excellent. Will you try a few?"

Break Given Actress

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24.—Much rich stuff has been written about Margaret Mann, the white-haired woman who stayed proudly out of cinema spotlight to "star" in her own credit, the same actress has never succumbed to self-pity and that is another reason why Hollywood cheers her new revival. She plays the Mother Superior of a Chinese convent in Greta Garbo's new film, "The Painted Veil." It is not the virtual star part that she enjoyed in the Fox film but she has a number of important scenes with La Garbo.

MISS MANN

Jail Library Now Has 2,500 Volumes

County prisoners were busy today cataloguing a gift of 354 books, made by Ralph Munn, head librarian at Carnegie Library, to the jail. Warden John McNeil stated the jail library now boasts 2,500 books, of which detective, murder and mystery stories are the most popular among the prisoners.

Aline MacMahon Stars In Film at Warner

By MARGARET GARRAHAN

Why-o-why must those who guide the destinies of the double feature movie temples give us something simply swell, then shatter all of our illusions with a panorama of heartbreak and shoddiness?

And why-o-why do those whose fingers are in the pie insist on casting that capable McKeesport actress, Aline MacMahon, in the thread-worn role of the forsaken woman?

All of which is suggested by the current dual bill, "Romance in the Rain" and "Side Streets," which opened yesterday in the Warner.

Highly entertaining and productive of many chuckles is the former, the modern story of a modern Cinderella who is swept to the high spots through the magnanimity (purely selfish) of a red-hot love story magazine, "Lived Love Tales."

If you like to peek into that lovely ethereal realm of childhood of which Cinderella is a part, and who doesn't?—you'll like Romance in the Rain." It's delightful and wholesome and entertaining, expertly done, for which orchids to Director Stuart Walker. Heather Angel, as the girl of the slums who wears a size 1-A, Roger Pryor, who makes a bid for Tracy's pre-eminent fame, and Victor Moore, whose portrayal of the pure-in-bright publisher of "Lived Love Tales" almost steals the show.

"Side Streets," Miss MacMahon's latest, is not another of those ghastly dark things with all the light-gone-out-of-life which unfortunately apparently have become her lot.

As a business-minded spinster, purse ever dangling from her arm, who has attained somewhat shabby success as the owner of a hat-in-the-prominent looking side street, for shop, she meets and marries a sailor only to find herself caught in the web of his friendship.

And there you have it. Just a stereotype of half a dozen other MacMahon pictures you've seen with Aline as unselfish but alone as ever.

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—The ushers while strolling Beatrice Lillie always looks freshly slicked up. Those extra-sized velvet lapels the ladies wear. Who remembers the celluloid rose buttons they gave with a new suit of clothes? What has become of Martha Wilchinski? How we all miss Winnie McCoy!

One word description of Lucrezia Beebe—backhanish. There's a name for a haberdasher Oleh Gillson. That phantom stillness just after New York goes home. Are the dancing De Marco brother and sister or man and wife? Vash Young suggests a slim edition of Postmaster Farley.

The Vandyked fellow who jogs through the park, driving tandem, in an Irish jaunting cart. About the prettiest blonde on Broadway is the one in the Palace ticket cage. The dandy among interior decorators, Grover Cleveland. No one seems to have taken Evangeline Adams' place in astrology.

Ugliest yet most expressive word: ornery. Rex Cole suggests a Texas League second baseman. John Horgan gives the 40's a sartorial dazzle. How quickly the country protested at the slightest danger of war! I don't want to read another line on how much it costs Lucy Cotton's baby to live.

Those private house bars in the Fifties. With bright awnings, tambourine capped chasseurs and Parisian names. They say Victor Schertzinger has made the best film of the year. Remember his "Marquita?" Everybody talks going to Hawaii. I could go for a hunk of blue lagoon in the moonlight myself.

* * *

and 6. Here is an indignant twirling flurry of human nerves on raw edge, quivering after eight hours of city madness. Twinges of hunger have begun to torture and fret. They snatch papers from the newsboys with a gr-r-r. Growl at gateman and otherwise suggest the spoiled child. Sudden quarrels pop out everywhere. Ladies sometime let go thin shrieks of hysteria. And everybody seems as mad as all get out.

* * *

But in all Manhattan's miserere I think the most anguishing figures are the tattered old women, ugly, helpless and abandoned, who are flung on the scrap heap. They are seen at night in dark doorways or crouching in the shadows of elevated newsstands. Dull and mercifully comatose. When they are awake, they drag themselves about looking for some unused niche to rest unwanted bones. Sometimes they can be seen creeping like ghouls round the galvanized tins which restaurants put out at the curbs in the pearly mist of morning. Digging into the decaying rejections of other people's dinners with clawlike fingers which once—who knows?—were lovely and white around the stem of a champagne glass.

* * *

So often does the human heart outlive the body, I've often wondered how many of these rachitic wrecks, tossing about in a city's night, are already dead to feeling, untouched by humiliation; dead to everything but memory. Living with the knowledge the dream is over; the present nothing, the future nothing, the past the only thing of which life cannot cheat. It would not be surprising to hear a voice from the rags cry: "Go away with your sentiment and your speculations, fool. I have once been happy. I was once beautiful. Once loved . . ."

And the most irksome job in the big town, it occurs, is that of a cashier in one of those large clattery restaurants in the Times Square area. Usually she is a neat blonde, possessing that marked air of superiority assumed by mathematically minded. From her cage she looks out constantly at an army of moving jaws—wondering, no doubt, what a queer thing a restaurant is. Alone among the animals, humans make a social function of feeding. An unpleasant sight. Men and women of all shapes and sizes stoking themselves with fishes, roasted birds and animals must in time become repellant. Dogs and cats have greater delicacy. The dog slinks off with his bone. The cat feeds delicately wherever he may be. On a garbage pail or in an avenue castle.

* * *

One of those highly glossed fellows with a button-hole flower and natty cane swung out of Pierre's this afternoon, apparently headed for the 5 o'clock promenade along the avenue. A half block away he turned suddenly back, idled in front of the hotel entrance awhile and crossed the street to droop on a park bench. "He probably hasn't done his day's brooding," observed a lady with me.

Smiling, Mrs. Edmundson explained that the divorce action was "very friendly—we're both relieved."

M'NAIR AND BELL SPLIT ON FATE OF MARSHALL

'Insurrection' of Aides Given by Mayor as Ouster Alibi

Mayor McNair and Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell had different ideas on the fate of Police Supt. Ben F. Marshall today.

McNair, according to Marshall, told him that he was "anxious to get him back to work." But Bell indicated that Marshall was through as superintendent.

Who will have the final say was left up in the air inasmuch as His Honor previously had complained that his department heads would not listen to him.

McNair gave that alibi in explaining why he has failed to oust Saul Klein, fire department battalion chief convicted of election law violations in 1932.

Bell's significant statement on Marshall was:

"I have nothing more to add to my previous statements concerning Marshall except that the man who now is superintendent of police in Pittsburgh today must be able to eat lots of raw meat.

"Jacob Dorsey (acting superintendent) to my mind has proven himself a good superintendent."

Mayor McNair, to prove that department heads would pay no attention to him, said:

"When Ralph Smith was the Public Safety Director, I tried to get Bozo Lavery a job on the police force. He wouldn't put him on. I fired Smith and hired A. Marshall Bell, but I still can't get Bell to put Lavery on the police force. Bell says that too many policemen don't like Lavery."

The Mayor also announced he has decided definitely to attend an international conference of mayors September 15 in Lyons, France. His wife applied for a passport today.

MORITZ NOTE FAILS AS 'FIX'

Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary, wrote a "fix" note to Magistrate Charles F. Papale, who used to be one of the Mayor's closest political friends.

But the "fix" didn't take.

Everett Tornatore, 26, of Hamilton avenue, was arraigned before Papale on a charge of violating the state liquor laws. Papale suddenly found in front of him a note which stated:

"Charley — Please take care of Everett Tornatore."

Now Tornatore, besides being favored with a note, also has made single-tax speeches which are dear to the Mayor's heart.

But Magistrate Papale, who has had several arguments with the Mayor, held young Tornatore for court.

Insurance Firm Sued For $50,000 in Death

A $50,000 damage suit against the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Columbus, O., was on file in Common Pleas Court today on grounds an agent of the company caused the death of Stanley Stojeck, of Yukon, Pa., in an automobile accident last May.

Named in the suit was A. G. Gilmore, of 336 Lehigh avenue, agent of the company, who drove a car which collided with another in which Stojeck was riding.

Tip of Cathedral Rises Unheralded Toward Goal

GOING UP! ANOTHER STONE IN THE CATHEDRAL'S CROWN

Workmen today pushed the Cathedral of Learning top a few feet nearer its final crest, a height of 535 feet.

The work on the top has been in progress for the past month or more. During the present activity, officials say, they expect to complete the stonework of the tower. This will carry the crest about 30 feet above the old level.

Temporary plans for the top were changed, Chancellor John G. Bowman explained, in the spring, in favor of the new permanent design.

Instead of a small separate tower at each corner, the tower rises now directly upon the walls below, narrowing, however, toward the top and with the windows of a lounge room and observation deck set back between the corner piers.

Civil Works Administration and Relief Works Division workmen cut away some of the stone at each corner and reinforced the steel framework of the upper floors several months ago.

VETERAN PRIZES CUBAN FLAGS

A Pittsburgh Spanish-American War veteran has two highly prized Cuban flags still in his possession today. He is Harvey H. Detwiler, 44, of 945 Iten street, North Side, who was a member of Company M, 2nd U. S. Infantry.

Mr. Detwiler

Detwiler, who went to war at 18 and was in service three years in Cuba, said:

"There is another veteran who claims to have the only Cuban flag not in a museum—I have two of them."

He said he bought the flags from a Cuban during the war for what would be a few pennies in our money.

Though they are now more than 30 years old the flags are still in almost perfect condition.

Police Rounding Up Wheelbarrows And Kiddy-Cars

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The police are no longer broadcasting information. The chief said, "ain't they had enough fun? Why should we give them radio entertainment, too?"

The British museum wants the pushcart, but they already have the original Wright airplane.

It goes into the Smithsonian Institution alongside of Lindbergh's flyer. The pushcart will be labeled "Spirit of Brooklyn."

The federal government is on the case now. After sending the fleet to the Pacific Coast for safekeeping, it has given orders to bring in all the wheelbarrows and round up the kiddy cars.

POLICE REPLY BY GIVING KERR CASH

M'Nair's Secretary To Be Questioned On Charge

Mayor's Secretary Theodore L. Moritz will be given a chance to prove his charge that certain police officers had "lifted" money seized from numbers writers and had refused to return it.

This was promised today by Dr. Albert I. Wise, chairman of the Police Research Commission, who said:

"We certainly shall call Mr. Moritz before our body and ask him for any evidence that he has showing that police have taken money off racketeers and have not properly accounted for it."

Meanwhile, Acting Police Supt. Jacob Dorsey turned over to Controller James F. Kerr $30.98 confiscated by police in recent gambling raids.

It was Dorsey's action in turning $562 "confiscated money" over to Kerr yesterday that revealed the fact that this sum was the first turned over to the Controller by the police department since 1923.

Dorsey said:

"This is what the police have confiscated since I took over the superintendent's job."

Controller Kerr declared there might be some question as to whether the state or the city should receive the money.

Mayor McNair brought about the disposition of the police money yesterday by his declaration he was out to give a "square deal" to the racketeers who complained to him that police had "lifted" money from them without returning it.

Meanwhile, Controller Kerr announced that the City Treasurer had canceled an order for five new adding machines and would use machines seized recently in numbers raids.

CENSOR GUARDS ZOO SECRETS

The Highland Park Zoo personnel—except the animals—had been sworn to secrecy today by Ralph E. Griswold, superintendent of parks.

In a letter to employes, made public by Griswold, he stated:

"Information concerning zoo operations is being given out by some zoo employes with the intention of discrediting employes and starting false rumors about zoo affairs.

"I shall consider it an act of insubordination for any employe of the zoo to furnish any information regarding the administration's operation to anyone but properly qualified city officials.

"All questions shall be referred to the parks' superintendent, who will furnish adsurate information to anyone."

Moonshine Seized And Man Arrested

Polasky was held under $1,000 bond for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Beatrice K. Popp, wife of the private detective.

Colette Mulvihill, the 15-year-old bride, has a new boy friend.

He's not Tommy Crow, the 25-year-old Castle Shannon truck driver with whom she eloped to Wellsburg, W. Va., last week.

Nor is he Sam Pontarelli, 16, the Grove City young man with whom she has had several dates since her elopement.

He's the young man with whom she drove off from the Brunner farm, near Grove City, where she's "recuperating," last night. And as she hurried off on another date she yelled over her shoulder:

"If Tommy comes, sit on him and tell him to wait till I get back. If Sammy comes, kiss him for me and tell him to wait."

(But Tommy didn't appear.)

Then Colette announced that she hoped to accept that dubious offer to go treasure-hunting and make movies in the South Seas.

She ordered a cable to her mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Mulvihill, in Manila, turning down pa's offer to pay the expenses of her and her husband for a trip to Manila.

Meanwhile Mrs. Mulvihill, in Manila, didn't know what to do, she told the Associated Press:

"She's (Colette) only 15, the same age I was when I married Mulvihill. A girl so young can't know what she wants."

Colette's ma saw no objection to having Crow as a son-in-law, "although there never has been a truck driver in the family."

Colette's ma several years ago was divorced from Thomas J. Mulvihill, assistant manager of taxes for the Gulf Oil Corporation.

INCINERATOR HEARING SET

The County Commissioners will not approve sites for the two city garbage and rubbish incinerators until after a public hearing has been held, the Commissioners have informed Director Ray P. Moyer, of the City Health Department.

Director Moyer called upon the Commissioners yesterday. Informed them he planned to leave soon on a trip to the Pacific Coast and asked the Commissioners to take some definite action immediately. The Commissioners set September 5 as the date for the hearing.

The Commissioners told Moyer there were scores of letters from organizations, institutions and individuals, protesting the sites chosen.

Among the protests received is one from Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, who believes an incinerator on the Brilliant Pumping Station site would endanger the health of the veterans in the Aspinwall Hospital.

Other protestants were the Rev. James A. Kelso, president of the Western Theological Seminary; Malate Post No. 13, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Greater Pittsburgh Chapter No. 8, Disabled American Veterans of the World War; the Women's Club of Aspinwall; Aspinwall Borough; the North Side Board of Trade and Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs, representing East End residents.

IS SHE STAR SWIMMER! DOLLS PROVE IT

Anna Mae Gorman Parades Souvenirs In Home

Anna Mae, every sports fan knows, is one of the comely swimming stars who has brought national fame to the Carnegie Library Club of Homestead.

And like her famous teammate, Lenore Knight, she has made it a habit to buy a souvenir of every town she visits. Anna Mae's collection is dolls—the small, varicolored china ones sold by many novelty stores.

Today she has an assortment of 25, ranging from less than an inch high to big boys and girls about as tall as a half-pint milk bottle. There are a pair of Dutch boy and girl water carriers and there are small china ladies, dressed in silks and satins.

Getting them together at her home, 713 East Eighth avenue, Homestead, Miss Gorman delights in parading them all as a doll wedding party. The smiling bride and groom, cupid near them, surrounded by more than a score of neighbors.

Probably a Japanese "god" doll is the most unusual of Anna Mae's collection. She got him as a gift from one of the Japanese girl swimmers at the Los Angeles Olympic games. Mostly, he's just a funny little face on a stick, marked with Japanese characters.

The Japanese girl, Miss Gorman says, told her that this doll brings good luck. And she is ready to believe it because the American girls won almost all the Olympic swimming events.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair --With-- Patricia Pitt

There's never a cessation in the planning of interesting events in Pittsburgh's social world, because in the summer season when things grow dull and most folks are out of town for weeks at a time, those at home decide on dates to present their daughters, or entertain houseguests, or plot dances for the fall.

MRS. JOHN JOY EDSON III

The debutante list this winter will probably not equal last year's in number, and most of the buds on the list will bow during the holidays. Many of them are not yet choosing definite dates, but are just planning to come out some time during the season. The latest name added to the list is that of attractive Winifred Miller, the Charles E. Irwins' daughter, of Maple Lane, Shields. And the time and place are to be decided later.

* * *

Sally Lyon, the Prescott Lyons' daughter, of Orchard terrace, Sewickley, is entertaining a house guest, Margaret Anne Hoover, of North Canton, O. She recently gave a buffet supper in her home for Margaret Anne. Sally, by the way, will not go to Ellis school this year, but to the Oakmont school. Her sister, Hester, finished at Ellis.

And now to turn our attention to the summer resorters, who will be returning shortly. Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, who has taken a cottage in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, will not return until time for her sons' schools to open. Her mother, Mrs. Mortimer Miller, is with them.

Junior Club Activities Outlined

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A particularly attractive and altogether new cover has been adopted for the 1934-35 year book of the Knoxville Library Junior Club. The letter "K" in silver is surrounded by a circle of silver carnations, the club flower, the silver standing out against the brilliant red of the book itself. In addition to the regular monthly programs, the club has planned a number of special events, including the president's reception on September 12, a dance for the benefit of the South Side and St. Joseph's hospitals, a dinner dance, a play, a reciprocity meeting, a fashion show, a mother-daughter banquet, a musicale bridge tea, the annual luncheon and a second reception for the president, who this year happens to be Mrs. Henry M. Oates.

Meetings have been held during the summer months. Indeed, one more, a garden party, is scheduled for next Friday. September's events are a book party, a corn roast, the first of the two presidential affairs and the benefit dance. October's are a "kid party," a Halloween party. November's a meeting with the senior club entertaining, a dinner dance and the distribution of Thanksgiving baskets for the poor.

Baskets will be distributed at Christmas, too, and scrap books will be presented to the Children's Hospital and toys to the children's ward at St. Joseph's Hospital. A gift exchange among the members is also listed. A memorial program to Stephen Collins Foster is a highlight for January, a program on "Outstanding Women in Fine Arts," for February.

Only a few more days of August left . . . and a certain buyer we know is knocking her cottons down to the vanishing-point in price just so she can wash her hands of them and begin thinking only in terms of Fall. Sooo. . . .

We now have cotton frocks that sold at $2.98 to $5.95, priced $1.00 . . . not to mention those that were $1.98 and $2.98 and are now going-going-gone for only 59c! Frocks for every occasion . . . sports and dressy. Sizes 14 to 44. But of course—not all styles in every color . . . not all sizes in every style. (Note:—When we say "women's sizes" we do NOT mean "large sizes" like 42 and 44. If there are large sizes included in any groups we will always stipulate them, lest you be disappointed). In this clearance . . . please remember . . . it's a catch-as-catch-can, naturally, what with the lateness of the season and the prices quoted!

* * *

For wordy souls . . . for the girl going away who's going to need to write "the boy friend" or Mother . . . for people who like to buy gifts at odd times against the gift season—we nominate this supremely swell writing paper that comes in boxes at 39c, 3 for $1.00.

For there are nice points about it—such as 12 long folded sheets and 12 note size sheets in one box . . . 24 long sheets, folded . . . the wide type folded . . . and others. In pastel shades with tiny "pipings" of contrast. (Envelopes included, of course). AND . . . three-letter-monograms on free. With this, you can murmur "sweet nothings" on paper as long as you please!

Item: Great big jugs of eau de cologne . . . a "fifth" . . . in a pinchneck bottle wearing a little wire mesh jacket . . . and the label of one of the better known toilet goods manufacturers! Priced $1.45 (less than elsewhere at the time of this writing). Very nice and "smelly" to sprinkle on yourself after the bath! Very comforting to male chins after shaving! Very "good for what ails you" when you're entertaining a headache!

* * *

Item (last one, too!): Compacts . . . in single or double size . . . with loose or compact powder. Colored enamel effects . . . all shapes . . . pancake styles . . . and such. Everything! And that's a lot! 29c.

Familiar Classics in the Feminine Style Panorama of Moment

By PRUNELLA WOOD

NOW THAT the dust has settled on the advance fashion panorama and the rush to "really" is not so hectic, it occurs that there are a lot of familiar classics included in the lot, as ever was. There are some real novelties, too, in models that will be necessarily becoming to certain types. Two classics and a highly attractive novelty are sketched on this page.

Lower left is a gown which offers the beloved lame touch, the daring Hawaiian décolletage and the sprightly skirt which becomes a swirling free-for-all at the ankles. Women have adored this type of frock year in and year out for generations, through its numerous adaptations this very elegant 1934-5 version is one of the most worldly seen.

* * *

IN THE center is a gown which is approximately half Greek inspiration and half clever modern dressmaking skill. Its soft white folds are touch-me-not feminine—but the heavy metallic motifs make it cling provocatively.

The line of the skirt is very slim, and even at the ankles it does not flare greatly in contrast to the taffeta model just discussed. Its combination of a very low neckline and covered shoulders is one that many women cling to, even for their most formal occasions, and it is one that is not easy to find as the covered shoulder is usually the one mark of the semi-formal frock.

* * *

AT THE right is the novelty invited to show off the two classics in the group. It is the softest possible version of the tailored gown, a model that one can imagine being useful to the last shred as a lounging gown, long after its salad days are over. The velvet used is just stiff enough to bring out the sailor collar revers outstandingly and reserve it from a negligee effect. It will be a marvelous gown to wear with bi-sodalite furs in lieu of an evening wrap.

K. OF C. PUSHES FILM FIGHT

DETROIT, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The Knights of Columbus are prepared, in the words of their highest officer, to go "sled length" in their campaign against indecent motion pictures and the producers of them.

Closing their fifty-second supreme annual convention yesterday, members of the Catholic order voted unanimously to "condemn the production and public display of salacious, suggestive and immoral picture films," and directed the officers of the order to take such steps as may seem advisable in promoting the campaign throughout the nation.

Martin H. Carmody, of Grand Rapids, supreme knight, will meet soon with Archbishop John T. McNicholas, of Cincinnati, to lay plans for the movement. He said:

"The order is prepared to go sled length to further stimulate support for the campaign, and we will use all agencies and forces at our disposal to press the movement."

Carmody emphasized that no particular picture would be selected for boycott, but that Catholics throughout the nation would be urged to boycott all pictures of a suggestive nature.

New Headgear For Autumn Shown

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—With your new fur coat you may wear anything from a velvet shako like a bandmaster's hat to a peaked dwarf cap of antelope trimmed with lamb.

They recommend that you choose most carefully the hat to wear with your 1934-35 model fur coat, and point out that the girl in the daring hat always reaps the admiring stares.

Then there was a daring Cleopatra dinner hat of brown net, with twin wings of bright green feathers, and a veil in back, just for a surprise. This was worn with an ermine cape over a brown net dinner dress.

TASTY RECIPES SUGGESTED FOR SALADS, PIES

TROPICAL PLATE—On a dinner plate or on an individual platter arrange a generous bed of crisp shredded lettuce or other salad greens. In the center put a thick slice of pineapple or two thin slices. On top of the pineapple place a spoonful of cream cheese. At each side arrange quarters or halves of hard cooked eggs separated from each other by crisp curls or slices of bacon. Garnish with a few slices of luscious red tomatoes and serve with whole wheat or rye bread and butter sandwiches and a glass of milk.

TOMATO SANDWICH SALAD—Chop or dice four hard cooked eggs, season with salt and pepper and add four tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise or other salad dressing. Add one-fourth cup diced American cheese. Peel four large tomatoes and chill them. Cut each into halves crosswise. Put the stem end half on a lettuce leaf, cover it with the egg and cheese mixture, then with the other half of the tomato and garnish with a bit of mayonnaise. Add an olive or two for trimming.

* * *

EGG AND SHRIMP SALAD—4 hard cooked eggs, ¼ cup chopped olives, 1 cup or 1 small can shrimp, ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup diced celery, salad greens and ½ cup peas.

Heat the milk and ½ cupful of water in a double boiler. Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt until light. Pour the hot milk over the egg mixture, stirring to keep eggs from curdling in milk. Return to double boiler and cook until the consistency of thick cream. Remove from stove and add unsweetened chocolate, which has been melted over hot water. Mix and add gelatine, which has been soaking in 3 tablespoonfuls of cold water for 5 minutes. Add vanilla. When cool and ready to set, beat with a Dover beater for 2 minutes. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour this mixture into a pie crust that has already been baked and cooled. Set in the refrigerator or any cool place. When cool and set, cover with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle the top with the ground sweetened chocolate.

RHUBARB CUSTARD PIE—2 cupfuls of diced rhubarb, 2 beaten egg yolks, 2 tablespoonfuls of water and 1 tablespoonful of soft butter, ¾ cupful of sugar, 2 tablespoonfuls of flour.

Cover the diced rhubarb with 2 cupfuls of boiling water, let stand 2 or 3 minutes and drain thoroughly. Meanwhile mix the beaten egg yolks, water, and butter then add the sugar which has been blended with the flour. Add the rhubarb and mix. Place in a pastry-lined pie pan (7-inch) and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 minutes. Reduce the oven to (325 degrees) and bake 30 minutes. Cover with a meringue made of the 2 remaining egg whites and 4 tablespoonfuls of sugar. Flavor with 1-3 teaspoonful of vanilla and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) until delicately browned.

HUNT LOST BOY IN GYPSY CAMPS

Somewhere, his parents believe, the lad is a captive of a Gypsy band wandering along dusty, secluded highways to peddle trinkets in small towns.

Federal agents have taken up the hunt. Pictures and descriptive pamphlets have been distributed over the country, nearly states have been requested to aid. Con. Clyde L. Herring recently offered $100 reward but no definite clue has yet been unearthed.

A year ago, Walter walked into the welding shop where his father was repairing a Gypsy quartet's automobile. The father, Walter Robinson, said the boy starred in excited. His parents have not seen the boy since a skirmish and the two other

Elements in Pineapple Of Great Benefit

This Fruit Enables the Body to Build Up Strong Resistance to Infectious Diseases; Variety of Ways in Which This Fruit May Be Used Avoids Monotony of Diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

Pineapple is a fruit deserving the widest use. The mineral and vitamins it contains are of great value in the normal development of the body. In addition this food serves as a protection against infection and disease.

The fruit resembles a pine cone. The plant is low and has long, tapering leaves. These are removed from the fruit when it is prepared for transportation. The West Indies and Hawaiian Islands ship large quantities of pineapple to the United States. A limited supply is cultivated in Florida.

When fresh pineapple cannot be obtained, the canned product should be used. It is nutritious, wholesome and tasty. The pineapple is different from other fruits in that it loses none of its vitamins in the process of canning. The strict supervision of Federation authorities as well as the rigid enforcement of all pure food laws, assures you of good quality fruit.

CANNED PINEAPPLE

Canned pineapple may be purchased sliced, crushed or in juice form. Individual taste decides the choice.

The fresh fruit is often picked green. Its sugar content is less than that of the fruit ripened on the plant. When placed in a moderately warm and darkened room it quickly ripens. A ripe pineapple is of yellowish color. The leaves at the tip of the fruit are easily pulled out.

To maintain vitality, vim and vigor, it is essential to include food in the diet which contain an abundance of vitamins. Of these important elements, the pineapple is rich in three, namely vitamins A, B and C.

Vitamin A enables the body to build up a strong resistance to infectious diseases, particularly of the eye, ear and respiratory tract. Many leading scientists believe that growth is retarded or even completely checked if there is an insufficient amount of vitamin B. This vitamin acts directly on the appetite, stimulating it and in this way helping to promote growth.

INCREASES RESISTANCE

The development of strong bones and teeth is dependent upon vitamin C. Scurvy, a disease afflicting young and old, can be avoided by a diet which contains an abundance of this food substance. It increases the body resistance to infections of the alimentary tract.

The minerals found in the pineapple keep the muscles of the body elastic, aid in purifying the blood, and maintaining the alkalinity of the body. The juice of this fruit is often helpful and soothing in cases of sore throat, throat irritations and following the removal of tonsils.

Its refreshing and delicious taste will appeal to all and stimulate the jaded appetite. Pineapple juice is fast becoming as popular a drink as tomato juice. It may be used interchangeably with any fruit or vegetable juice. The fruit may be used in a variety of ways and will relieve the monotony of the "routine menu."

JAIL FUGITIVE DIES IN FLIGHT

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP)—An escaped prisoner is dead from an attempt to flee arrest, struck by an automobile as he dashed into a highway near the Firebaugh flying field between Ebensburg and Carrolltown.

Constable H. H. Brady of Lilly told Coroner's investigators he sighted John Hufford, of Lilly, in the flying field crowd yesterday. He said Hufford started to run across the highway and was struck by the automobile of Joseph Tononi, of Ebensburg, receiving injuries which caused death soon afterwards.

Hufford was alleged to have escaped several months ago from the Cresson Jail while serving a sentence for a minor offense. He is survived by his widow and several children.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS, :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Won't Be Engaged Until He Can Buy Ring

Here is a fellow who doesn't believe in being engaged until he can place a RING upon the girl's ENGAGEMENT FINGER. And a lot of us were thinking this species of male had vamoosed with the debonair of 1929.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have been following your Speak Up Sisters column and like it so much. I am a girl of 19, will be 20 in November. The fellow I am going with is 27 and I am deeply in love with him.

Miss Brunot

And he has told me over and over again that he loves me and if anything should happen to end our romance, he would be through with girls. He says he doesn't want me to go out with anyone else, although we do not keep such regular company with each other. He says he doesn't believe in steady company until he can place an engagement ring on a lady's finger. Is that on the level, or is it not?

INTRODUCED BY PAL

My neighbors think it dreadful my going with this fellow, on account of the way I met him. My mother died in December, and we moved to a new neighborhood, and in the neighborhood lives a girl I knew, but with whom I had never chummed. We became pals, real pals.

She introduced me to her boy friend. He fell for me and I for him, but neither of us said anything.

Time went on, and we planned a wiener roast, but it rained, so we turned it into a house party at my place. The night before the party the gang was to meet at my place and make plans. But no one showed up but her boy friend. Naturally I felt it my duty to entertain him. He and I sat in the parlor, talking. And she got sore about it. Then came the party. It climaxed everything.

COULDN'T STAY AWAY

It made everyone better acquainted, especially the boy friend and myself. After the party he broke up with her, and came to see me. He said he just couldn't stay away. He and I talked it over later on, and he wrote his girl friend and told her it was quits with her and him.

The girl and I are still the best of pals. People say she is foolish to be a friend of mine under the circumstances. Was it tricky of me to do this?

A CONSTANT READER.

Ones who have to read between the lines may think you TRICKY, sister. Yet when the entire story is spread before me, I rather attribute the whole circumstances to environment and conditions.

GIRL A REAL SPORT

Your girl friend is taking the matter like a real sport. Maybe after all she didn't care so much for the young man as neighbors imagined. In love affairs one must learn to eliminate [illegible] will cure everything if we don't. I think the young man is right about it being necessary to give an engagement ring.

MARRIED TO DRUNKARD

Dear Miss Brunot:

After reading your article advising a girl not to marry a drunkard to reform him, I am wondering what your advice will be. I married such a man 16 years ago, and since then my husband has been an habitual drunkard. I have a boy starting to school whose ears and eyes have heard and seen more than his tender age should. I have tried everything to break my husband of this habit, even to having him arrested and brought into Morals court. It helped him a week, and then he was at it again. I reached the limit of endurance, and packed my clothes and left. I secured a position. My mother-in-law taking care of my son, and I go out twice a week to see him. But each time I go, I come back a nervous wreck.

HUSBAND CHANGED

My husband and his mother declare emphatically a transformation has been wrought. Like or rather unlike the leopard, my husband has changed his spots. I will no longer have a drunken husband, my mind is made up on that. The 16 years which are gone must not be repeated. And I am skeptical. The only reason I would go back would be for my son. What am I to do?

My mother-in-law worships my son, and I know she is good to him. Could it be possible to build a happy home in the ruins of the past? Dear Miss Brunot, help me. . . . I need it so much.

I am 31 years of age. Am I too old to re-map my life?

JEANNETTE

A woman today, who is 31 is but on the threshold of real activity. Look about. Scarcely a woman of note or achievement who is not beyond this age, unless one is thinking of the theatrical and movie professions.

TIME NOT WASTED

Ten years is a lot of time to waste, and yet was it wasted? It may have been a terrible experience, but it is one which was bound to develop your character, and make you stronger . . . it taught you a lesson nothing theoretical ever could have accomplished. . . . You are right to think of your son . . . and the thing is, will he get farther with, or without his father? That is for you to weigh.

Drunkards have reformed. Evidently your husband is still young . . . and could still be a fine man if he exerted will power . . . as I said before, reformation is always WITHIN THE PERSON.

FAY KING FINDS MORAL IN P. T. BARNUM'S FAMOUS HORSE HOAX

By FAY KING.

For a small sum of admittance Barnum, the famous old-time showman, announced that his public could see "a horse with its head where its tail ought to be."

Naturally there was a rush to have a look at this remarkable animal. Actually, it was nothing more than an amiable old Dobbin standing in its stall backwards.

But those who found themselves fooled made up their minds that others should not escape. They filed out with assumed expressions of delight and astonishment, and others impressed by this filed in. This went on indefinitely to Barnum's satisfaction and profit.

This is not an unknown stunt in other walks of life. Many who have made mistakes refuse to admit it but influence others to make the same, for consolation!

Pituitary Gland's Task Is to Regulate Height

A worried young man writes, "I am 18 years of age and desirous of increasing my height. Most of the boys my age are taller than I. I am sensitive about my small stature and have been told that I can become taller by special exercises. Please tell me if this is true?"

Dr. Copeland

First of all I want to say that height cannot be increased by exercises or ordinary medication. Contrary to a popular belief, height is not influenced by habits, but is largely controlled by hereditary factors. In addition, there are several internal glands, known as "ductless glands," which govern that mechanism of the body which has to do with growth and development.

For example, the "pituitary gland," at the base of the brain, just above the nasal cavity, is intimately related with three important bodily functions. These are the growth, weight and the regulation of certain organs.

When there is marked limitation of the secretions of this gland, growth may be so retarded as to cause an individual actually to be dwarfed in stature. On the other hand, when certain parts of the pituitary gland enlarge and increase the quantity of their secretion, growth may be so stimulated as to result in gigantism. No doubt you have visited the circus and been impressed by the tremendous height and size of the giant. He became a giant because of some alteration in the function of the pituitary gland.

At times alteration in the secretion of the pituitary gland may bring about marked changes in the physical state. Indeed, in some instances, the condition may menace health all during life. In such cases it may be necessary to consider operative procedure upon the pituitary gland.

Recently great advances have been made in the treatment of these abnormal cases by the administration of an extract of certain portions of the pituitary glands taken from animals. When there is a lack of pituitary gland secretion, treatment should be prescribed only by the physician. Administration of any glandular extract without competent medical supervision may result disastrously.

Bear in mind that special tests, such as X-ray of the skull and a test known as taking the "basal metabolism" test, are essential to proper diagnosis of this unusual disturbance.

A disorder of the pituitary gland may affect weight. This explains the exceedingly fat and the extremely thin man or woman of the circus. Weight disturbances often run through a family and in that event are attributed to hereditary factors. In some instances this is true, no doubt. But there are many disturbances in weight that could be corrected if the underlying cause were determined and proper glandular medication given the sufferer.

Answers to Health Queries

K. G. H. Q.—I am 18 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall. What should I weigh?

A.—You should weigh about 153 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of your age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

-:- Hints for the Household -:-

When putting away a rubber hot water bottle, hang it upside down without stopper. Rub it occasionally with a rag moistened with turpentine and it will remain in perfect condition.

If you are unfortunate enough to have to use hard water for the weekly wash always add some water in which rice has been boiled—it makes hard water beautifully soft and helps to remove dirt.

The difficulties of home dressmaking are more easily overcome if one's machine is kept well oiled. If a spot of oil should appear on the work eucalyptus applied at once will remove it without leaving a stain.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Boys Relate Great Adventure

At my question as to how they had managed to dress without switching on the light, which Lillian and I would have seen, a brick-red flush covered the faces and necks of Junior and Roderick, for the second time during their recital of their nocturnal trip to the woodland glade.

"Well, you see, Mums," Junior stammered, "it was this way. We were so tired when we came up to bed that we didn't undress. We just took off our coats and shoes, and put on our pajamas over the rest of our clothes. We were a lot warmer that way, and that was the reason why it was easy for us to get out. We just shucked our pajamas and put on our shoes and coats."

I Was learning things about my small son and cousin. I reflected. It was on my tongue to ask them if they had turned this trick often, but I heroically repressed the question. Discipline had no place in this inquiry, I told myself.

"Did you follow Hank and Bill out of the yard right away?"

"No," they answered in unison, and Roderick continued the story. "You see, we didn't want 'em to know we were following 'em. We were afraid they would make us turn back. And we knew that we could trace 'em by their tire marks; we had a flashlight, one that we kept in the barn for ourselves.

FOLLOWED OTHERS

"Oh, you had!" I exclaimed weakly, reflecting that these youngsters must have been reading what Katie called "detecatuff" stories. Or—the solution of the whole thing came to me. Katie, who adores the two small boys—and they return her affection — was probably filling them full of the "detectuff" lore which is meat and drink to her.

"We waited around the corner of the house," Roderick went on, "until Hank and Bill were out of the gate. Then we beat it to the barn, got our bikes and followed 'em down the road."

"It was very dark just before daylight this morning," I said. "Could you see them?"

"No," Junior took up the answer. "They didn't have any lights on their wheels and we shut ours off for fear they might look around and see us following them. But we pointed our flashlight down at the gate and saw which way they went, and then at every turn off the road we got down and looked again. So we finally came to that place in the woods where you found us."

A shudder ran over me at the picture he was drawing. These sheltered children, so carefully guarded, abroad in pitch darkness and traveling a highway on unlighted bicycles, alighting every few minutes to kneel in the road and search for tire marks! Anything might have happened to them. A drunken hit-and-run motorist might have flung them bleeding and broken to one side of the road, or a fate even more sinister and macabre might have been theirs!

But fate had guarded them, and brought them safely back to me. With a little paean of thankfulness in my heart, I set myself again to the task of questioning them.

"Did you see anybody in that place before we came in and the Chinese appeared?" I asked.

END OF SAGA

"Nobody;; not even Hank and Bill," Junior answered. "It was too dark to see anything at first, but we could hear them moving around. So we hid our bikes and hid ourselves, for fear they would hear us. But they probably thought we were rabbits or something, because they didn't know we were there, while we did know they were there. It made all the difference. Do you see?"

"I see," I said, with as much gravity as I could manage. "How long were you there before we reached there?"

"I don't think it was so very long," Roderick answered. And I realized that they had reached the end of their saga, and that I had not the slightest inkling as to the reason for this nocturnal excursion upon the part of Bill and Hank. I did not realize that I was silently absorbed in this speculation until Junior said uneasily:

"Aren't you going to tell us the way we're going to be punished?"

Removing Stopper.

Glass jars in which the stopper has become jammed should be stood in warm water, to which hotter water is added until it reaches the neck of the jar. Now put into much hotter water, and with a feather drip olive oil between neck and stopper. Allow to work in before tapping the stopper gently with a wooden spoon, when it should lift out quite easily.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Nightmare for Mr. Cavendish

Mrs. Culbertson

Mr. Cavendish was sadly annoyed over to his grave affliction, so called, upon the Queens from A Q 10 8 4 3 to two and he is on the habit of going through the same maneuver in all such favorable cases, for is getting more curious that he ever got during his life. For Bridge players like women are becoming exasperated and the unconventional lead is becoming more and more common.

When such leads are based on logical inferences, and not merely on a desire to be different, I am entirely in favor of them. For West, on today's hand, to have made the normal lead of the Ten would have been suicide, and even as it was it needed the Declarer's help to defeat the contract.

South Deals

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 N T | 2 ♣ (1) | 2 ♡ | Pass |
| 3 ♡ | Pass | 3 N T (2) | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

1—A slightly dangerous Overcall after an Opening notrump bid, but one which eventually gave South the key to the lead which would defeat the contract.

2—North, with a balanced hand and the club King in back of West, rightly chooses to return to notrump, for it appears to him that the possession of the club King in Dummy will give his partner a sure second stopper in the suit. Actually, there is absolutely no play for a four-heart contract, and yet three notrump is a laydown against all but one Opening.

West, faced with the problem of selecting an Opening lead, first decided that the North and South contract could be defeated only if sufficient club tricks were set up. The normal lead from West's club holding in this type sequence was the nine. But West, an expert accustomed to follow a convention, decided to lay beneath the surface. Because of North's raise to three notrump, West decided that this player was marked with the club King, since otherwise he would have had no sure stopper in that suit. South, having bid one no-trump originally, was practically pinned with the other missing club honor, the Jack. Of course, if North held both the King and Jack of clubs, they would always take two tricks and no lead could affect the final result, but if either South or East held the Jack, there was a way of defeating the contract.

Merely assuming that East held two small cards in the suit and that East also held one card of entry, the solution of West's problem was the Opening lead of the club Queen. This, of course, forced North's King and East subsequently got in with the diamond Ace, led through Declarer's Jack and thus enabled West to take four club tricks. With the normal Opening of the Ten of clubs South would have won the first trick with the Jack and still have had the King in Dummy behind West's Ace for a second stopper.

It is true that South could have fulfilled his contract despite West's Opening lead had the thought of the very fine play of ducking the Opening lead completely by playing a low card from both the Dummy and his own hand, and thus cutting the line of communications between the East and West hands so that the West player could not get in to run his club tricks after setting up the suit, but the fact that South missed an opportunity to outdo West should not in any way detract from the credit which is due West for his very well thought-out lead.

TOMORROW'S HAND

Home Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married at home in the Autumn of the Year. I would like to know what would be the proper thing to wear (a veil or just a hat). What part of the house should I be married in?

B.

It is the bride who decides whether her wedding is to be formal or informal. If it is to be formal, she wears the traditional white wedding dress and veil, but if it is to be informal, she wears an informal dress and hat. As it is the custom at an informal house wedding for the maid not wear a hat.

WET GROUNDS KEEP PIRATES AND PHILLIES IDLE

James J. Long's

Sports Comment

DON'T GET THE impression that Cookie Lavagetto has failed as a major leaguer, or that the Pirate management has lost confidence in his future, just because he has been used only in emergencies since Mid-season. On the contrary, the Buccaneer bosses still are firmly of the belief that the roast lad ultimately can't miss making his mark in the big show. They are determined to hang on to him, and Cookie will not be among the players discarded in the proposed winter housecleaning. He again will be one of those present when the reconstructed Rovers go into training next spring.

Cookie Lavagetto

Big league stars are not made in one season, and after all, Lavagetto is only 19. He still has plenty of time to learn and develop. Already, the youthful second-sacker is a capable fielder. President Benswanger and Manager Traynor are confident not only that he will become even better in that department, but also that he will improve in his batting—not to the extent of being a .300 hitter perhaps, but at least one of the timely type so valuable to any club.

* * *

Won't Risk Losing Star

CERTAIN TO BE a great defensive player, Lavagetto, if he acquires the knack of hitting in the pinches to make up for his lack of a high batting average, eventually may be good enough for any job in any lineup. Anyhow, the Corsair chiefs are not going to take the chance of cutting him loose and seeing him picked up by some other major league club later to develop into a star.

Shifts of Baseball Fates

THE BASEBALL FATES shift suddenly and strangely. Early last spring, Mickey Cochrane was rushed to a hospital as an appendicitis suspect. It looked as though an operation would be necessary, and that Mickey would not be able to do any catching on his new job in Detroit during the first half of the season. Frank J. Navin, Tiger owner, who had just paid $100,000 to the A's for Cochrane, was moaning that the deal had turned out to be a $100,00 headache. He said he would call it off for 30 cents, viewing it as almost a total loss, for 1934 at least.

Frank Navin

But evidently the fates were only having some fun with Navin. It developed that Cochrane didn't have appendicitis. It was just an old-fashioned stomach ache. Mickey proceeded to catch his best ball in five years. He lifted up the Tigers and fired them with a winning spirit that now makes them practically sure pennant winners and world series participants. Detroit went baseball mad and smashed all home attendance records. The Bengals also drew like mustard plasters on the road. And at the end of the season, that once regretted $100,000 investment in Cochrane will net the Tiger owners a clear profit of a quarter of a million.

Future Pitt Great Seen

YOU CAN TAKE it from Bob Reagan, who once did some football coaching at Duquesne and is now assistant to Harry Stuhldreher at Villanova, that Pitt has a second Joe Skladany coming along. He refers to Buchek, a Philadelphia youngster at present doing some tall golfing around here, who will enter the Oakland university next month.

Reagan, visiting here this week declares that Buchek is one of the greatest end prospects he ever saw. Many Villanova men had hoped that Buchek would enter their school and were keenly disappointed when the youngster decided on Pitt.

Randour on Eagle List

GEORGE (WHITEY) RANDOUR, the McDonald boy who was a halfback streak on Eastern gridirons during the last three seasons during a brilliant career at Villanova, and for whom the Detroit, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia clubs of the National Professional League were bidding in spirited fashion during the last few weeks, finally decided to cast his lot with the Quakertown outfit and has signed a contract to play with the Eagles because of friendship for Coach Lud Wray.

A Veteran and a Couple of Promising Collegiate Rookies on Their Way Up in Majors

The Pittsburgh Pirates are overlooking no bets in an effort to bolster the club. Waite Hoyt, cast adrift as being through as a major league pitcher, has fooled the dopesters by proving himself the most consistent winner on the Corsair staff. Up to the present time he has scored 11 victories, including two in one week over the league-leading Giants. On the other side we have Bob Hamilton, star halfback of Stanford, and Dick Perry, a guard of Princeton, both gridders of note, who were looked over by Manager Pie Traynor. Hamilton lives in Sewickley, while Perry hails from Dormont. Hamilton is an outfielder and Perry a first baseman. The two were teammates at Kiski Preparatory School in 1932. Following their participation in the Pirates' workout they apparently forgot baseball for the moment to take up an intricate football problem. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

WEST PA. TEAM FINAL AWARDED FOX CHAPEL

By TOM BIRKS

The Oakmont, South Hills and Shannopin golf squads will battle it out for the Western Pennsylvania team championship over the fine links of the Fox Chapel Golf Club next Tuesday, seeking the title surrendered by Highland Country Club in the preliminary matches Wednesday.

The announcement was forthcoming last night from George Ormiston, secretary of the West Penn Golf Association. The battle will be over the 36-hole route. On the basis of its great showing in the trials, the Oakmont team rules a strong favorite to ascend the throne held for two years by Highland.

The entry list for the caddie team championship tourney, carded at Longue Vue on Monday, will close tonight.

A field of more than 100 district women stars battled it out over the St. Clair Country Club links in an invitation tournament yesterday, with Miss Ted Davies, of Highland, leading the parade with a 90. The low net award went to Edith Clarke, of Schenley, who posted a 94-18—76. Mrs. A. B. Kerr, of Stanton Heights, had a 87-17—80 for second place.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE NEW RICE WRITING CHAMPION—From far away Tokyo, Japan, comes Hirohei Homma who recently made a new record of 3,021 letters written on a single grain of rice. Homma, unlike other rice writers who are continually vieing for a new record, writes only with a Japanese writing brush—not a steel pen—and though he always works without a microscope, his work can be correctly read only with the aid of a strong magnifying glass. In his native country, Homma specializes in calling cards and name plates for Japanese men-of-affairs, and came to my attention as an outstanding artist for the 1934 World's Fair, where he now works daily at his chosen task. SCOW LOADED WITH STONES WILL NOT SINK—From Ed Lundquist, veteran tug boat operator of Detroit, comes the story that a scow loaded with round stones will not sink if it springs a leak. The explanation is that the leak would partly fill the scow with water, causing the scow to list sufficiently to allow the stones to roll overboard. Then the high side of the load would become the heaviest and it would roll the other way, dumping almost the entire load, and the scow would only sink to the water's edge. Mr. Lundquist reports that this has actually happened to scowloads of stones behind his tugboat. MAN WHO FELL 250 MILES—Ralph Voorhis, of Grantwood, N. J., makes a profession of parachute jumping and during his hazardous career has made more than 300 "delayed" openings—falling from 500 to 10,000 feet toward the earth before opening the chute. The average for all delayed opening jumps is 5,000 feet, and totaling them all up, Voorhis has fallen plummet-like through space for more than 250 miles while the parachute still has been neatly packed on his back.

BLIND AMATEUR DRAW LIKELY

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The intention of the United States Golf Association to conduct a blind draw for the national amateur championship to be played next month at Brookline, Mass., has intensified the prospects of an early collision of stars in the first all-match play tournament in 31 years.

John G. Jackson, vice president of golf's governing body, said that in view of the rapidly growing number of front-rank players it would be impossible to seed any of the 180 odd contenders for the title worn by George Terry Dunlap, Jr.

The U. S. G. A. committee in charge of the thirty-eighth annual championship is scheduled to meeth next week when the method of pairing the contenders will be decided officially.

The U. S. G. A. originally intended to limit the championship to 180 players, including 13 who were exempt from sectional qualifying tests, but it is likely now that the total number of contenders will be in the neighborhood of 190 in view of some "floaters" who qualified outside their districts.

Porter Wins, De Mar Second in Long Race

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Coming to the front in a fast finish, Mel Porter, of Newark, N. J., outpaced 46 other long-distance runners here yesterday in the annual Irish Day 26-mile marathon. He made the grind in 2 hours and 31 minutes.

Clarence De Mar, veteran of dozens of similar contests, and the favorite, finished second.

TEAMS TO PLAY DOUBLEHEADER TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The big league scout was coming home,
In spirit very low;
He had searched the land from coast to coast,
From Maine to Mexico
Not a single star he gazed upon
Could hit, or run, or throw.

And when he reached the old home port
He learned an awful truth;
It seems his old-time neighbor's boy
Had just signed up, forsooth,
With a rival scout—and the kid next door
Was hitting much like Ruth!

Wet grounds and threatening weather prevented the second clash of the three-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies at Forbes Field this afternoon.

As a result of the postponement, the two clubs wind up their season's series with a doubleheader at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon. The first game is carded for 1:45.

Scout Bill Hinchman was back today from his country-wide search for embryo ballgamers, but to a certain extent the former Buccaneer outfielder was empty-handed. Bill scoured the Pacific Coast from fore to aft, but he said he saw only one youngster of rare promise who was available for Pirate consumption—Pitcher Osborne, of the San Francisco Missions—and he purchased him some time ago.

Hinchman belongs to the conservative school of baseball sleuths. A youngster has to show plenty before Will gets excited. He said there were a few fine performers in the Coast League, but some of these are tied up with option to other clubs. He did not seem to be wildly excited over Joe Di Maggio, the Coast League outfielder and hitting sensation, although he doubtless would take him at what he considers a fair price.

Hinchman stopped off in Texas on the return trip and while in the Lone Star commonwealth he gave the Texas League a thorough search for youngsters.

MAY BUY ROOKIES

Scout Carleton Molesworth beat Hinchman back home by a few days. Moley had a flock of boys on whom to report, so that there may be something popping in the next few weeks.

Scout Pat Monohan, who has been in the employ of the Browns, Red Sox and Yankees, conferred today with Manager Traynor and President Benswanger, [illegible] the Pirates, relative to several young players who have been [illegible]ed" by Monohan. Pat has sent scores of youngsters to the majors and may make a hookup with the Pittsburgh club at a future date.

The Traynor Clan felt pretty fair last night and today as a result of its victorious fight from behind in the first contest of a three-game series with the Phillies. The game was won in the ninth inning, the score being 6 to 5.

TITLE BATTLE REGARDED FOR TOMORROW

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

For the second time within three days, rain today forced the postponement of the Senior Division championship game in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's five annual Western Pennsylvania softball tournament.

A third attempt will be made to play the game, in which the Commercial Garage team of the Hill district will oppose the Campbell Shamrocks, of the East End, at Greenlee Field at 5:30 tomorrow afternoon.

The winner will go to Chicago as the guest of the Sun-Telegraph, to represent Western Pennsylvania in the national championships there September 8 to 10, inclusive.

The Senior championship battle originally was billed as the second half of a doubleheader on Wednesday evening, but rain halted hostilities during the first inning. The contest was rescheduled for this evening, only to meet with a similar fate when the heavy rains of today flooded the playing field.

Because a complete game was staged on Wednesday, the Gabriel Cyclos, of New Kensington, defeating the New Kensington Merchants for the Intermediate division title, tickets sold for that day's doubleheader will not be honored tomorrow. Tickets for the final are being sold for the nominal sum of 25 cents each.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

The Stubs A. C. of the South Side will meet East Pamelias and the Glenfield A. A. team will oppose the Hain of East Liverpool, O., in second round games in the Interstate Softball Association tournament, which is being played under arc lights at East Liverpool, O., tonight. The Stubs beat the Unknowns, 6-5, and the Glenfields eliminated the Shamrocks, 7-1, in first round contests.

The Hunsicker Radiators, who are to match with the Waverly Pennsylvania team, of Waverly, Pa., next Wednesday on the Parkside Ninth School field, are open for another game with leading first-class teams. Call Manager Harry Hasbach at Riverside 3058 between 7:30 and 8 p. m.

Bill Lavelle is anxious to book the Brighteers with leading softball teams in the district. Teams desiring this attraction should call Montrose 2374.

Manager Clyde Confer's Harry Reds will meet the St. Michael team in an exhibition game this evening at Winters Field.

Sports Shorts

Gabby Street, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, now pilot of the Milwaukee Club in the Pacific Coast League, has been signed for 1935.

The Leechburg tennis team was crowned Allegheny-Kiski Valley champion yesterday when it defeated Tarentum, 4 to 2, in the final match at Leechburg.

The Naval Academy football authorities have decided to retire Bill Ingalls master for eight years, because of old age. One of his sons will take his place.

The Penn State soccer team lost the opening match of its European tour in Edinburgh, Scotland, yesterday, bowing to the Leith Amateurs, 8 to 4.

Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California football star, may be unable to play in the Chicago Bear All-Star game on August 30, as a result of an injury his side suffered in practice at Chicago yesterday.

N. H. Rubin, of Detroit, and W. F. Ryan, of New York, last night at James town, N. Y., battled to a tie in semi-final play for the United States checker championship. Four games, to decide the winner of the round, will be played late today.

Painter's brushes are swishing and carpenters' hammers are pounding at Navin Field, home of the Detroit Tigers, these days, but club officials refused to admit that it is in preparation for the world series. A new box office, however, is being built.

Rollie Hemsley, former Pirate catcher, now disturbing receiver for the Browns, was indefinitely suspended and sent to his home in St. Louis by Manager Rogers Hornsby yesterday after he was arrested and then freed on a drunkenness charge.

OUTING TOMORROW

A crowd of 30,000 employes of the Westinghouse is expected at the Foremen's picnic at Idlewild Park tomorrow. A varied sports program will be staged in conjunction with the outing.

Stars in Softball Championship Battle

20,000 SEE BUTLER RACES

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 24.—A card of eight classy harness horse races drew a turnout of more than 20,000 fans to the Butler County Fair yesterday. The card was extra heavy due to having been rained out on the scheduled opening day, Wednesday.

Four straight heat victories were recorded. Donnas Boy winning the 2:20 trot; Paul Neyron taking the 2:14 pace; Marty Clare the 2-year-old stake for pacers and Margaret June the 2:15 trot.

Linda Stout won the first division of the 2:24 pace and Victoria took the second; Red B captured the 2:25 trot and Morley Scott annexed the 2:19 pace, completing the list of victors.

GIANTS CHASE DEAN JINX, BOOST LEAD

Associated Press.

The Giants finally have beaten one of the pitching Deans here from St. Louis—and that is the right of what has gone before, and, as one of the season's major achievements.

The feat was enough to give the league leaders a margin of five games over the Cubs and seven over the Cards as they rolled out a 1st minute 5-to-3 decision over Paul Dean, the youngest of the pair at St. Louis yesterday. As the maine saw the Cubs took it on the short 3-to-4 from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Paul and his big brother, Dizzy, had bested over the New Yorkers eight times in succession up to yesterday.

DODGERS ROUT CUBS

The Cubs were no match for Brooklyn yesterday despite a one-man uprising by Babe Herman, who drove in three runs with a triple and homer and scored the other. The Dodgers smashed over five runs in two innings against Bill Lee, then finished by pounding Charley Root and Bud Teachout when their lead was in danger.

The Yankees reversed the process in the American League by cutting Detroit's lead to five games. New York hammered Cleveland pitching for a 6-to-2 victory behind Charles Ruffing. The Tigers suffered their second consecutive defeat at Washington, 3 to 1, when Bob Burke limited them to five blows.

NEWSOM BRILLIANT

Buck Newsom of St. Louis and Ted Lyons of Chicago, turned in a pair of brilliant pitching feats to win the other American League games. Each allowed six hits. Newsom fanning 10 batters to shut out the Athletics 3 to 0 and Lyons stopping the Red Sox 7 to 2.

Pittsburgh's Pirates took the third National League contest from Philadelphia 4 to 3.

Hons Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

Sportsdom was glad to hear the Presidents were people not to dethrone on fouls because that was not what they were thinking for. That is right because he is really the majority of people of the country that rolled into the presses. We were glad to know that the real people of the nation is no in danger because of the Wright. You can be rich, but if you haven't enough to eat you are as poor as the poorest. The time when you realize it doesn't make much difference whether the country is on gold or on silver is when there isn't anything in the ice box. Regards.

PIRATES GET PRO GRID LOOP OPENER

SUNDAY BATTLE SEPTEMBER 9 LID-LIFTER

The Pittsburgh Pirates professional football team, which leaves Sunday for its training camp at Mt. Pleasant, will have the honor of ushering in the National Professional Football League season in Pittsburgh on Sunday, September 9, according to the schedule released today by President Joe F. Carr, of Columbus, O. The Pirates opponents in the opening struggle at Forbes Field will be the Cincinnati Reds. The season will close on Sunday, December 2.

The following Sunday, December 9, winners of the Eastern and Western titles will clash for the Ed Thorpe Memorial Trophy in the home field of the eastern champion, to decide the world's title. From September 9 to December 9 there will be games every Sunday with several night contests being played in Pittsburgh and Detroit.

This season for the first time the league is playing a balanced schedule. The new program provides that every team must meet each team in its own section in a home-and-home series, thus providing for eight games against sectional rivals. The balance of the schedule can be filled out with intersectional contests. In the past it was possible for a team to win its sectional championship without playing more than one or two rivals in its own division.

The league was split into an Eastern and Western section last season and the playoff for the title brought together the Chicago Bears and New York Giants at Wrigley Field, Chicago. The Bears won, 23 to 21, in a contest in which the lead shifted seven times. Because the title game was played in the West last fall, the Eastern winner will have the advantage of playing at home this year. It is planned to alternate the game between sections each year.

September 9 — Cincinnati at PITTSBURGH.

PIRATE-PHIL GAME OFF

reeled off five more runless rounds yesterday, before the Pirates began to shell him. Johnson had a five-run lead going into the sixth, but the Pirates tied things in the eighth, when Lloyd Waner's hot liner injured Sylvester and helped to bring about his passing. Curt Davis finished and was charged with the defeat. Heinie Meine worked two rounds and received credit for the victory.

GRIMES CHASED

Burleigh Grimes, it develops, injured his left leg before he went to the mound. He was shelled off the mound in the second, the Phils making four runs in the inning. Chagnon relieved Grimes and stayed on the job until he made way for Pinchhitter Jensen in the seventh.

Lavagetto's fluke double to center at the start of the ninth, Grace's out, two intentional passes and P. Waner's fly to Allen scored Cookie with the winning run.

Sport Chatterbox

There's a grand laying around loose in Johnstown that says in a loud voice Mickey Duris, the home town socker, can take Eddie Zivic in any ring at any time . . . and another of the same (at odds, of course) that Luke Carney's hope won't go the limit . . . Mickey is back in fightin' trim after a layoff that started last March when he quit to give a bad eye a chance to heal . . . George Bondy, of Johnstown, is his new manager and insists Mickey is going places and on the way, will be doing plenty to all and sundry of the opposition . . . The boys apparently do not like Duris' wallop . . . Zivic is reported to have turned down a healthy percentage of a guaranteed $3,000 house to meet Mickey in Johnstown . . . Cooney Martin making the offer.

Bill Rogers says maybe Anson Green evened up for that knockout of Lou Brouillard t'other evening at Hickey Park by giving Lou a workout with the dice . . . Maybe that is how Lou lost his dough . . . Critics and qualified observers are impressed with the way in which Tom Sopwith's boat shapes up . . . The big British yacht has been bobbing about while the Yankee, Rainbow and Weetamoe have been dueling for the honor of defending the America's Cup and has shown plenty of class . . . It looks like the Yankee to win, place and show.

If Pepper Martin comes through as a pitcher, he'll be one of the very few major leaguers to shift from other positions to the box . . . Bob Smith, or the Braves, is an example of such a shift . . . Bowman, of the Giants, came up as an outfielder . . . and looks like the goods . . . He has speed but needs to develop a curve.

Pitt's football coaches are hoping Bob Hoel makes good this fall . . . If he does, he may carry the Panther line along with him . . . Two years ago, Bob looked to be a great sophomore . . . until he hit the Army game at West Point . . . He never put in a busier time in his life than he did for the minutes he was in action . . . trying to get out of the traffic . . . It took Tiger Walton to step in and save the day for Pitt in that one . . . Bob has the necessary experience now and with his build and heft . . . he may be the money . . . Art Grant, of the A. ## CHILLYSAUCE

Bill Brandt, longtime sports writer for Philadelphia and New York papers, is in town with the Phillies in the role of public relations counsellor. Bill was as blue as Beale street in Memphis a minute after Cookie Lavagetto scored that lucky run in the ninth inning yesterday, but previous to this sad eventuality, Brandt gave out some interesting talk on the future of the Phillies.

Men who actually have played the diamond game sat up to take notice yesterday when Jimmy Wilson put on that hammer-and-tongs attack that all but won the first game of the present series in the Oakland Orchard. The Quakers, truth to tell, had a lot more pepper than was spilled by the Pirates, and according to Brandt they have been just as lively throughout their unfortunate tour of the West.

...hill was driving at was ...ation that the Phillies of ...lson will be a real ball club. In Gerry Nugent, they have one of the most popular presidents in the circuit and a young man who will stick to Wilson. In other words, Gerry will not sell Jimmy's stars like other standouts have been disposed of in Philly.

Touching on the Quakers, Brandt remarked:

"In Bartell we have a real spark plug, so we expect to build around him. Dick is having a wonderful year, what with a stick mark well over .300, fine fielding and smart directing in the captain role. Lou Chiozza was not at home at third, so he has been given the second base post. He can do almost everything in a baseball way, and on first base we have a slick first-sacker who will get better with the years. Camilli is a find. Wilson expects Walters to come through on third and if he does we will have a sweet infield."

Brandt thinks the Quaker outfield is just about the equal of any in the National League. In the words of Manager Wilson:

"We have three gents out there who can cover the waterfront."

YANKEE SCORES OVER RAINBOW IN CUP TEST

ABOARD THE COAST GUARD CUTTER ARGO, OFF NEWPORT, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The Boston Yankee, skippered by Charles Francis Adams, 2nd, Frederick Prince's Weetamoe by two minutes today at the halfway point of the 30-mile trial race to select a defender for the America's cup.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—With one of the surest pieces of sailing on record to her credit—her defeat of the Harold Vanderbilt's Rainbow yesterday—Yankee, of Boston, sailed by Charles Francis Adams, former Navy Secretary, met Frederick Prince's Weetamoe today in her second engagement of the final trials to select a defender of the America's Cup.

Yankee, with her conventional rig a sharp contrast to newly constructed Rainbow, romped around a 30-mile course to beat the Vanderbilt aspirant by more than six minutes.

Weetamoe, her opponent of today, has been since the start of the preliminary races, a disappointment to all who have supported her. Back in 1930 she was considered a lively boat in light airs, but this year, Yankee, the heavy weather champion of four years ago, has found her a comparatively comfortable antagonist.

BUTCH TO BOX MULLINS

By JAMES MILLER

A change in the main bout of the triple windup at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night, was necessitated when Paul Lee, of Terre Haute, pulled out of his fight with Mose Butch because of a badly cut lip received in his losing bout against Ray Boree Tuesday night.

Taking Lee's place will be Moon Mullins, of Cincinnati. Mullins has fought some of the best featherweights throughout the Middle West and should give Butch a busy evening.

For the first 10, Mike Barto, the New Kensington knocker-out, is paired with K. O. Huber, also from Cincinnati. Tiger Joe Randall, Negro, of Elizabeth, takes on Frankie Hughes, Indianapolis welterweight, in the second 10-rounder.

Jackie Holt, brother of Billy Holt, local Negro, is in with Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, for the fourth bout, a six-rounder. Another six will complete the show.

Ray Babcock, head of the Sportsmen's Enterprise, Inc., the promoter of the Yarosz-Dundee middleweight championship fight at Forbes Field, September 11, along with Bus Vogel, the matchmaker, and Andy Ross, have left for Lima, O., today where they will confer with Max Waxman, manager of Dundee, and Jack Dempsey. Dempsey is refereeing in the Ohio city tonight.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

The amateur boxing show for the benefit of the Bellevedere Hospital, scheduled tonight at Hickey Park, Millvale, has been postponed due to the heavy rain that fell over the district this afternoon. No other date was set for the affair.

Dom Mancini, minus his tonsils, writes from his home in Blairsville, where he is convalescing, that he feels much better since the operation and will begin training shortly. Dom would like nothing better than to...hose Eddie Gilroy, the Lawrenceville fighter, who will march down the middle aisle next Tuesday morning.

Mike Kane-Marcus Noll knocked out Jack Tracy at Motor Square Garden.

Jimmy McLarnin, the belting Celt, who is training at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg, N. J., for his return bout with Barney Ross for the welterweight championship, September 6, at Long Island City, has Teddy Loder, of Jersey City, and Mike Licari, of Brooklyn, as sparring partners.

Phil Goldstein, former lightweight of the Hill, and now the manager of Al Quaill, the red-hot middleweight of Brookline, will become a papa the later part of next month or early October, according to the report of Spy Z. Chapin, as he knows his friends will help Al Sunseri, local lightweight, in his conditioning for a comeback.

Phil also has blossomed forth as a writer. He is conducting the Pittsburgh column for the Ring magazine.

Nick Nalley, Duquesne heavyweight, who was forced to pull out of a bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, two weeks ago because of a bad ankle, announces that the injured member is well again and he is ready for action.

AAA RELAXES REGULATION OF CROPS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 — (AP.) — The AAA may follow up its latest signal move in relaxing the government's control over cotton, corn and hogs.

It was announced last night that wheat production would be cut only 10 per cent in 1935 in contrast to the 15 per cent slash called for this year.

Wheat was remarked as the bellwether, indicating how the official minds are working. Farmers are asked to cut their normal wheat area of 65,000,000 acres down to only 62,000,000. Under average conditions this is expected to produce a crop of 775,000,000 bushels.

As for cotton, the goal probably will be set at between 32,000,000 and 35,000,000 acres, compared to this year's 25,000,000 and the normal 40,000,000 officials said.

HOGS UNCERTAIN

Figures for corn and hogs cannot be arrived at until this year's corn crop is harvested and pig production is known. Because of the expected short corn crop stimulation of production is regarded as probable to furnish sufficient feed in the fall and winter of 1935.

Control of hogs may be abandoned entirely according to Chester C. Davis, farm administrator. Supervision would rest solely on adjustment of corn. Most of the corn is fed to hogs. To control it would automatically regulate hog production, officials believe.

The AAA emphasizes that the process of stimulating production next year is part of a plan that was in mind since the farm administration came into being. Davis said the program is passing out of the emergency stage of eliminating surpluses and entering the permanent phase where "adjustment" may mean either curtailment or expansion.

TO BUILD SUPPLY

But officials were not blind to the political reaction which might result if present acreage cuts were continued after the great drought. They also aim to build carryover supplies of food and feed to above normal to provide ample margin against possible shortages in future droughts.

Some officials saw in the unfolding 1935 plans a return to the original domestic allotment farm relief plan. The present agricultural adjustment act contains the allotment plan in its essentials with additional machinery.

If this trend should continue, they explained, the United States would definitely leave its historic position as a large exporter of farm products and center domestic production on domestic requirements.

Secretary Wallace has said the United States cannot continue to produce for foreign markets which no longer exist. Production, he said should be expanded only to meet these markets as they develop.

Going to Speak Out. New Organization. Outspoken Leader.

By B. C. FORBES

They have become so alarmed over the way things are going and threatening to go that, as one of them told me yesterday, "we feel compelled, regardless of political considerations, to stick out our chins."

Mr. Forbes

Responsible business and other leaders, Democratic and Republican, are organizing the American Liberty League for the avowed purpose of safeguarding American institutions, protecting property, preserving individual liberty and encouraging initiative and enterprise.

THIS COLUMN has repeatedly urged men of affairs, men responsible for filling pay envelopes, to cease shivering over fears of being "cracked down on" and to voice their sincere sentiments.

Heretofore timidity has ruled. Apparently, business and industry have now resolved to become articulate.

THE NEW ORGANIZATION which hopes to enroll millions of members, starts off with an executive committee including such stalwart Democrats as ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith, ex-Presidential Candidate John W. Davis, John J. Raskob, and such Republicans as ex-Gov. Nathan L. Miller, of New York, and Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York. The chairman is Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee.

A PRIME MOVER in the organization of the American Liberty League is Edward F. Hutton, chairman of the General Foods Corporation, who strove two years ago to organize a National Federation of Business and who, as a very large employer and as trustee for many thousands of stockholders, keenly feels that business leaders carry serious responsibilities as citizens.

I sought out Mr. Hutton yesterday, and not in 18 months have I found any business leader ready to talk so outspokenly.

He said:

"I am taking a very active interest in the organizing of the American Liberty League because I believe the time has arrived when the men heading up the industrial activity of this country must go a step farther than merely assuming their responsibility of management and must assume their obligation in government. They must strive, not merely to increase employment, but to protect the rights and interests of the white collar brigade, the stockholders and bondholders.

"The vast unorganized public has been without industrial leadership. Industry has not been vocal. We have listened to allegations by some of our Senators and Congressmen that big business and, in fact, all business, is dishonest. By the acts of a few, business as a whole has been condemned. The responsibility for the acts of these few should not be placed on the vast majority who are of unquestioned honesty.

"Business has had nothing but a platform of silence. As a result, we have been adjudged guilty.

"This organization, thoroughly non-partisan, is convinced it is high time that men who have created American pay-checks had something to say in respect to government. All we want is proper legislation that does not interfere with honest industrial endeavors, since legislation which needlessly interferes with industry naturally hurts the employment of labor. Business wants to proceed. It cannot under the present situation.

"Our endeavor is to have the co-operation of the bondholders, stockholders, policyholders, home-owners and all other property owners throughout the United States who feel they should have reasonable protection. If they will become members of this organization we will make every endeavor to see that their rights are protected and preserved.

"We have no idea of destructively criticising the administration, but rather of co-operating with it in solving the many aggravating problems now confronting the nation.

"I can emphatically state that 85 per cent of businessmen today are sick unto death of politics. We will oppose any and every politician, Democratic or Republican, who advocates unsound economics.

"I sincerely hope businessmen will voice constructive suggestions through the press instead of remaining submissively content to read daily front page political headlines and listening to politicians."

Few Offer to Sell Stock Memberships

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—There are only a few offerings of New York stock exchange memberships and these are held at $160,000. The last previous transaction was at $95,000.

DIRECT LOANS TO INDUSTRY INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—An $84,000 rise in industrial loans by Federal Reserve banks was shown today in their condition statement for the week ending August 22.

In that week their total loans of that class were $296,000 against $214,000 the previous seven days.

Industrial loans now are being made by both the Reserve banks and the Reconstruction Corporation, under authorization of the last Congress.

CRITICIZE SYSTEM

The step was taken after officials had levelled considerable criticism at banks for their supposed failure to grant credit to deserving industry and business.

Total RFC loans are around $8,000,000, and officials there expect no spectacular gains. The RFC and the Reserve Board are co-operating in the program.

Meanwhile, the reserve statement today showed that the daily average volume of Reserve Bank credit for the week ended August 22 was $2,464,000,000, a decrease of $2,000,000 compared with the preceding week and an increase of $221,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933. The statement said:

"On August 22, total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,457,000,000, a decrease of $11,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with a decrease of $4,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and increases of $15,000,000 in Treasury and national bank currency and $4,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset in part by increases of $8,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $4,000,000 in money in circulation.

"There were practically no changes in the system's holdings of bills discounted, bills bought in open market, or United States government securities."

REPORT ASSETS

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

WALL STREET WAITS FOR NEW SPUR

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Securities markets closed peacefully today as most traders apparently were inclined to await some fresh spur to jaded speculative enthusiasm.

Activity in both stocks and bonds was at a low ebb, but price changes were noticeable narrow in many categories. News developments were not of a character to generate renewed life in either list.

While foes at Chicago continued to record new highs for the past three years, grains were different. Slightly lower levels were reached by wheat and the other cereals. Cotton also held to a restricted groove. United States government securities were listless and slightly irregular and the corporation loan divisions were slipped a trifle. The British pound was heavy in terms of the dollar, but the gold currencies firmed.

Shares of Howe Sound and National Lead set up a point each on small turnovers and United States Smelting and Cerro de Pasco were a bit better. There was a flurry in some of the utilities, with Consolidated Gas, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, Columbia Gas and National Power and Light moving up fractionally to about a point before relaxing.

A steady tone was shown by General Motors, Chrysler, Case, Bethlehem Steel, United States Steel, Westinghouse, du Pont, United Aircraft, Reynolds Tobacco B and Liggett & Myers B.

Bar silver, which has held at 49¾ cents an ounce since the nationalization of the metal two weeks ago, was lowered ⅝ of a cent to 49⅛ cents. Little significance, however, was attached to this price shading.

The market commentators expressed the view that the next motivation for securities trading would come from Washington. The belief was general that plans for speeding up the recovery machinery were now being discussed in administrative conferences and that changes in New Deal policies, which might give new hope to the rank and file of business men, were probable.

The official spiking of inflationary rumors, while chilling some speculative sentiment, was not too disheartening to many currency expansion proponents. These pointed out that the government could take no other stand at this time in view of September and October financing operations involving some $1,700,000,000. Maintenance of a stable market for outstanding issues, it was argued, is essential for the Treasury's forthcoming operations.

Despite the current low rate of steel production, industrial analysts were not too gloomy over the outlook for this industry. Considerable aid for the mills was seen in the new Navy building program which calls for the construction of a number of warships requiring heavy tonnage of armor plate. Another favorable development was also found in indications that the major oil companies are showing more interest in their probable steel requirements than for some time.

BANK EXPORTS MORE GOLD

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Bank of the Manhattan Company is sending an additional $500,000 of gold to France on the Aquitania Saturday, making a total of $1,500,000 in the bank's consignment. Altogether $4,000,000 will leave for France on two liners on Saturday.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Another record shipment of silver to the United States on the S. S. President Harding today boosts the total consignment during the two weeks since President Roosevelt's silver nationalization, to nearly 1,000 tons.

Nations Try to Resume Wheat Negotiations

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—With the United States announcing a 5 per cent increase in next year's wheat acreage over this year's, private negotiations began today between the representatives of the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina in an effort to get some good out of the wreckage of the International Wheat Conference which closed last night.

There was only the faintest hope of any success when these negotiations began today since a responsible source said Argentina would flatly refuse to make any commitments toward restricting her wheat exports.

The situation is regarded as most delicate for Australia, where general elections will be held next month. It is known that the Australians are not willing to make any commitments on the subject of reductions until after their elections.

Since American farmers must begin their fall seeding before the Australian elections, it was seen as unlikely that Australian action would come in time to assist the negotiators.

The 21 governments adhering to the world wheat pact were given proposals for a two-year extension of the pact to August, 1937, and inauguration of a system of quarterly export quotas as a means of boosting prices.

All 21 were asked to send delegates to a conference in Budapest November 20 to decide these and other questions regarding the regulation of wheat trade and production.

Wholesale Prices Continue to Rise

The department's index for the month stood at 74.6 per cent of the 1926 average, compared with 68.9 per cent July last year and 84.4 per cent in July, 1930. Farm products were 7.5 per cent above a year ago. Food cost 70.6 per cent as much as it did in 1926, compared with 65.5 per cent in July last year and 60.9 per cent in July, 1932.

Investors Still Face Many Problems

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

FEDERAL REGULATION will not solve all the problems of the investor. The securities act and the securities exchange act will do much to protect investors, but they cannot prevent mistakes in judgment and they cannot guide the foolish. So much has been said about rigid requirements being placed around underwriting and trading in securities that it is high time that the public be made to understand the limitations of the new laws.

Mr. Snyder

Regulation is designed to protect the investor from cheating and lying, but the United States government is not and has no intention of being a wet nurse for investors. In short, the laws make it a crime to rig a market for a stock or to misrepresent a new offering. They provide that a prospective purchaser of a new issue be given a chance to read an imposing array of facts about the company in question. But these laws do not insure an investor against losing his money.

* * *

Mathews Reviews Status of Laws

SPEAKING BEFORE the annual conference of the National Association of Better Business Bureaus, George C. Mathews, a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, said:

"No law and no body administering a law can offer the investor assurance that his investment is sound and that he may not lose his money. One of the things we owe to the investing public is to get to it the knowledge that the government does not and cannot free it from risks involved in the conduct of business. As now written, the federal act requires the issuer of securities to furnish enough information to enable an intelligent investor to form a judgment as to the merits of what he buys. The way for legitimate financing is not obstructed."

Mr. Mathews might have added that the law does not compel the investor to read the circulars on new issues or the statements published about listed securities from time to time. The experience of men in the bond business is that customers rarely read the brief circulars covering new issues in past years. The circular covering a new issue at the present time may be a small sized book.

* * *

Regulations to Be Of Major Importance

MR. MATHEWS stated that the effectiveness of the securities exchange act will depend very largely on the rules and regulations to be drawn by the commission. The law leaves to the commission the making of rules and regulations upon which the success or failure of the government's attempt to regulate securities will depend.

Incidently, private capital had assurances from two different quarters yesterday that Government control of finance and industry is control and nothing more. Secretary Roper gave assurances that the adminsitration believes that industry should be permitted to make a profit and Mr. Mathews said:

"I am not one of those who see in the legislation controlling the marketing of securities any intention to eliminate private capital from its position in our economic system, or to make its position more difficult than is inherent in meeting the standards of common honesty and fair dealing."

Capt. Midnight

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

CHAPTER III

Legs astride, hands clasped behind him, he stood looking down at the flames—the flames that seethed and licked and sizzled and went bellowing up the wide chimney. But in the fire he saw no visions, no fair dreams there he read—he saw only flames and he thought grimly that passions are flames—greed, lust, hatred—aye, even love—and so flames they consume.

Presently he drew his chair to the fire and sat there and cursed himself for his old-womanish helplessness. At times he got up and strode restlessly about the room, only to fling himself wearily into his chair again.

The logs were all consumed and were only glowing shadows, skeletons of the wood lying in the bed of white ash, the candles had guttered, and unheeded, flickered and made grotesque and monstrous shadows on the walls.

In the room was no sound, only a stillness, deep, palpable, into which, inchoate, almost as if formed, crept the thudding, frenetic beat of a horse's hoofs—thud-thud, thud-thud—out of the starry darkness. Nearer and nearer.

Jean Pierre dashed to the door, swung it wide, as out of the tree shadows that lined the road to his house loomed the white bulk of a great charger on which sat a figure only distinguishable because it was darker than the darkness—Captain Midnight.

Faintly he answered Jean Pierre's hail. He dismounted and followed Jean Pierre into the house, into the sickly radiance of the dying fire and the guttering candles, and he sank into a chair as if spent, removing neither tricorned hat nor black masque, nor cloak nor leather gauntlet.

"You are welcome," said Jean Pierre. "A glass of wine?"

Mission of Death

He drank the ruby-colored liquor and set his goblet upon the floor. His cloak was gathered about him. He did not speak, his fingers clutched the arms of his chair.

"On what mission do you ride this night, monsieur?" asked Jean Pierre, perching himself on the table edge, idly swinging a leg. "Of mercy or of revenge?"

"Of death," said Capt. Midnight softly, yet in his voice was the jarring, macabre undertone that before had sent prickles of horror down Jean Pierre's spine and now did the same.

"Of death, say you!" Jean Pierre's voice was an awed whisper. His own nerves were of steel, his courage less than no other man's, but there was something about his strange visitor that overwhelmed him, unnerved him utterly.

Try as he would to fight off the terrible obsession that here was something more than a man, something demoniac yet not evil, he could not rid himself of the thought. Uneasily he stared at the masque, at the immobile lips and chin below it.

"Aye," said Capt. Midnight. It seemed an effort for him to speak. "You will know presently—many things. First of all, there is a terrible injustice to be righted. Know you, mon ami, this girl, Yvonne Caron, reputed the loveliest in Quebec?"

To Stop Marriage

Jean Pierre started uneasily. "I have met her," he said. "I know something, I think, of what you would tell me. She is being coerced into giving herself to—"

"The dove to the cobra," muttered Captain Midnight. "See here!" From beneath his cloak he produced a folded document. "This," he said, "is the last will and testament of Michel Caron, Sieur de Lanctot. No living eye but Simon Girard's, before mine, has seen it and Caron's estate has been administered according to an earlier will that should have been destroyed. I found this document in Simon Girard's house a week ago.

"He missed it; he is afraid. He is forcing this girl to marry him because, according to the will, if she is not wed before her twenty-first birthday, practically all the vast holdings of the Carons here and in France are given to the king.

"Her father did not want her to be a nun, but feared she had that in mind. Simon Girard wants her fortune for himself; the boy, Paul, is fairly provided for. But this girl does not know that, in giving herself to that canaille, she is making a terrible mistake."

"He can disgrace her brother—the boy has stolen money from the royal treasury—"

"Girard can do nothing. He has kept this will hidden for years and in it are bequests to the state, which, but for him, would have been made. Think you Bigot will condone that—never! Now she is on her way to Simon Girard's house at Charlesbourg, but one can get there before midnight."

Capt. Midnight laughed.

"If it were my last act on earth," he said, "I would do it; but first I have a rendezvous with Death."

Stiffly he arose from his chair and stood gazing intently at Jean Pierre Martel with those terrible slits of eyes.

"A rendezvous with death," he repeated. "Hark to me, you who call yourself Jean Pierre Martel—hark to Capt. Midnight—"

Prepared for Wedding

At Charlesbourg Royal Simon Girard owned and occupied a rambling old stone house built during the wise regime of the Intendant Jean Talon, by a gentleman named Fernand de Guerin. And if, as 'twas whispered among the credulous inhabitants, good Fernand's ghost still haunted his domain, it never surely saw stranger scene than this that was enacted in the little chapel in the vaulted basement of the manor.

There before the tiny dais knelt Yvonne Caron, her face waxen in the dim light of the tapers. She wore a dark riding-habit and looked little like a bride as she felt. Beside her, poorly hiding his delight at the success of his scheming, knelt Simon Girard. There, too, were Paul Caron, an abashed and sullen look on his weakly handsome face, and Maryse, who was Yvonne's maid.

A strange wedding, indeed, but stranger still were contracted those days when marriage was a worthwhile stepping stone to fortune for many men and the fact that woman had a mind of her own, if known at all, was generally disregarded.

Yvonne's temperament was a mixture of emotion—the emotion of her sex—and logic—the maternal, inexorable logic that was part of her for so many years had been sister and mother, both, to this boy who now, to save his own face, sat callously by while she gave herself in marriage—in bondage, bitter, and hideous bondage. She had neither respect nor liking for Simon Girard.

Quarrels With Brother

"Simon Girard or some one else," Paul had said with an indifferent shrug when Yvonne taxed him with the theft he had committed. "It is time you were wed—"

"I do not love this man—"

"What matter? You are too proud, Yvonne. There are many women in Quebec who would be honored by his choice. It is simply that he has known you longer and that you are lovelier than the others. You will be happy with him. You would not have me branded as a thief—?"

"It is an ugly name, Paul—to fit one's brother. But have you no shame, no remorse? Can you not realize what this means to me? Why, the very touch of his hand makes me shudder and draw away from him and his eyes seem to look at me as if—"

"Nonsense," said Paul. His own craven fear of disgrace would permit no sympathy for her to enter his heart. Simon Girard was a power in New France, a man whose patronage would be as valuable as his enmity would be fatal. "I think it is best for both of us that you become his wife."

Yvonne looked at him in scorn, in wonderment, and felt that strange, baffled sensation that comes to all who at some time must blind themselves to the faults of those they love.

Captain Midnight!

So now, for her, it was on with the farce, let it be done and quickly; as the victim in the tumbril bearing him to death would speed the slow cart to the scene of execution. She refused, as she knelt there, to think of past or future and she lived through the present as one in an ugly dream, bound by its fetters.

The door banged against the wall as if a fierce wind had forced it in. The mystic figure of Captain Midnight was for a moment framed in the entry, like a shadow that had no substance to cast it there. Then he strode forward to the dais, pistol in hand, his spurs ajangle, his heels making a great clatter on the thin, echoing flagstones.

"A piece of mummery this," said he. "And all in God's name. It shall not be."

From behind the masque, his eyes, like points of steel, held Yvonne's in which was no fear of his ominous presence; only curiosity and surprise. She had heard much of this strange man and his white steed, Barca. A sort of Robin Hood was Captain Midnight, and it was suspected, though never generally announced, that the gold he took from the intendant's men was quietly given back, here and there, to the honnetes gens and the poor, from whom it had been stolen by the clever thievery of Francois Bigot, the intendant, and his coterie.

STARS AND STRIPES

"Peace"—a nice word for a tombstone.

Even with only 8,000,000 still idle we have enough unemployment to keep us busy for a long time.

Man arrested for parking in the park asked the judge what a park was for if it wasn't to park, so the judge said, "Oh, park him in the park."

Synopsis

Yvonne Caron's dreams in the Governor's garden of old Quebec are interrupted by her brother, Paul. He tells her of the latest exploit of Captain Midnight and of the arrival from France of Jean Pierre Martel, who is reputed to be the greatest lover and worst scoundrel in France. Yvonne pleads with Paul not to gamble with Simon Girard. Paul leaves her and Simon appears. He tells her of Paul's theft of government funds and promises protection if she will marry him. He leaves with a warning to "Think well." From the shadows appears a stranger. Yvonne and Martel meet. Capt. Midnight holds up Martel, but lets him keep valuables.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

We're getting ready to print some especially good letters about whether we should be a cry baby or not. Perhaps some of the cub-bies or in the wintertime, believe!

Now a new test is on, and we hope every Junior Patrol member will write at least one letter. Prizes are $2.50, first; $1.50, second, and $1 third. So you see it pays if you can write the winning letter.

It's as easy as rolling off a log, too. You shouldn't write more than 100 words, and you have to be a Junior Patrol member to compete. Send all your letters to the Junior Patrol Contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

This one is from Thomas Benoff, of R. F. D. 4, Box 119, of Irwin, Pa. He says:

"I think all kids should keep their face and ears and neck clean because they are what the people look at the most. When you are washed up clean you might not feel as good, but you will be healthier. When you wash you should use lots of soap to get clean. When you wash your ears wash behind them, too, for people can see back there, too. When you are clean you will have more friends because everybody likes you if your'e clean. A good motto is be clean and you'll be healthy."

"Most of the time I wash my own neck and ears. I am 9 years old and sometimes my mother says 'You have potatoes in your ears. Wash them over again!' Then I use a small stick with cotton on the end. I put soap on it and make 'the loop the loop' in my ears and all the dirt comes out."

So you see what good letters are like, fellows. Wouldn't you like to try it?

Daily Short Short-Story

By BECKLEY CLAPP

Lamb chops—the thought of a lamb chop made Nadine feel equal to a feast and it was only 10 o'clock in the morning, just two hours since her breakfast. For three days now Nadine had breakfasted on fruit and toast, lunched on vegetables and dined on more vegetables.

Nadine's hay fever had brought sneezes, and more sneezes, her eyes had become red and then redder as September waned.

Her husband, who was a hopeful young medical student at the university, had forbidden meat in their home.

"You know, Nadine, that Prof. Nottingmore says that the profession has accomplished a great deal these last few years for hay fever and asthma sufferers by diet. Proteins are restricted to the nth degree in the diet and fruit and vegetables are eaten freely. We'll try it. We won't eat any meat or eggs for a couple of weeks and see if you aren't better. As for me, I've been thinking for a long time that I would be better off if I didn't eat meat for a while."

"You'll have to feed her, of course, but you have always fed her these foods at lunch time, anyway."

The day was a bright, clear, a fine stirring breeze—the kind that makes for a ravenous appetite—was blowing from the lake as Nadine walked down 57th street. A brisk early morning rain had cleared the air. Joy! It was so nice to be out! Nadine had scarcely sneezed all morning.

"Come, darling, it's early yet. Let's catch a bus and spend an hour in the park." The wooded isle was an early fall paradise. Pigeons flocked for the peanuts Barbara scattered for them and one daring squirrel came so close that she screamed with half delight and half fear. But what was almost tears welling up inside turned to laughter as Nadine laughed. Barbara always laughed when her mother laughed.

Pick up your teddy bear, dear, and tell the pigeons good-bye. We must go home and have lunch so that you may have your nap early."

"Yes, madam, your turn next. Some fine lamb chops! How many? We have a special today, choice rib chops, only 20 cents a pound." Nadine took a pound; they were lovely chops.

"Um, five chops, those will do Barbara five days. My hay fever is so much better today. Possibly to light the oven to broil one chop, anyway. Believe I'll broil one for myself. I'll broil three of them."

Lunch was very satisfactory. Baby went to sleep at once. Nadine felt so ambitious, she washed all of the kitchen woodwork.

That evening Nadine reported much improvement in the nasal condition. They enjoyed a delicious steamed vegetable dinner.

The next day Barbara had a coddled egg for her lunch, as it was the day for an egg. Nadine broiled lamb chops. Succeeding days mother and child had identical lunches—spinach or carrots, scraped beef, baked liver or lamp chops and a baked apple. Tom felt quite pleased, Nadine's hay fever was so much improved.

Breakfasting a few days later, Tom said, "How about having Paul come for dinner tonight? A fellow gets so tired of restaurant food all of the time. I'll get a good steak, a little meat won't hurt you and it will make a good dinner. I'll attend to the broiling, save you some work."

Nadine, answering her mother's weekly letter that afternoon, reported her hay fever was subsiding. "We had a light frost up here almost a week ago, I read it in the paper. Living in an apartment, one never knows when it does frost. And also the breeze for almost two weeks has been from the lake and I always get relief when it blows from the East.

"Looks like a tender steak, Paul." Tom remarked, poising the carving knife. "First meat we've had for a couple of weeks. Tried an experiment because of Nadine's hay fever. Has been mighty successful, too. As far as I have observed, she has had no symptoms for a week. I'm anxious to report to Prof. about our test.

"And has Nadine a good history? As a small child she broke out with hives every time she ate an egg. When she was about 15 the hay fever started. Has suffered every year. One year her folks took her to Denver, didn't help her much. The year they went to Canada she was much better. But I don't see how she can go to Canada every year. Now, for a short time she stops eating meat and eggs and, the hay fever clears up. Proves she has an allergia to certain proteins. We'll have to give her some skin tests. My, this steak is delicious."

"Yes, it is, Tom. You have a weakness for steak, though. He's the greatest guy for steak I ever saw, eats one practically every noon down at Doggy Dan's. If I tell him to go easy so he will stay awake in class, he compromises by ordering a hamburger—and then another. Good thing you are not allergiatic, Tom, or you'd have died this last week."

A Trip to the Museum

It was the total most fortune to be invited to an exclusive showing of the Metropolitan Museum of Dips and Dotties.

The ash-bins done inside the drinking season. They served up six refined tattoos. And enslaved none.

A Ubet-Alfredo stereoptican was on the table. It had just arrived from their home-town in Rome. The boys had succeeded in preserving without cremation which, almost 1,000 years ago, had earned the privilege of being forgotten.

That old saying about "rest in peace" means nothing to those age of toilets and high pressure. Once a scientist decides you will look better on a glazed-in bell-console your day of subterranean fancy is done.

Having located Jim, with the aid of a dripping willow branch and an A. A. A. map for Egypt, he starts with pity and ex. He will go down further than a mole with steel teeth.

He fumbles in the sacred soil right and dot. Soon the hole gets bigger and deeper. He is joined by his merried confreres with spade and spades. Soon there are 24 distinguished tarsals mourning away at the excavation. And, let us tell you, two dozen scientists in one grave is a beautiful sight.

When they get to your duplex tomb with a three-chariot garage, they crack your catalogue and your mausoleum like a nut. Bang goes the sledge and you are among your fellow citizens again. You do not suffer by the comparison. If your sorrowing pair of adult B. C. planted you with any care at all you look better than the hicks who dug you up.

Having removed your all-Egyptian wrapper, the digger Indians examine your ribs, drag you around the peninsula, stand you on your head, kick you around the lot and pack your bones away in burlap. Arriving in America you are turned over to students who use your skull for a bowling ball and your shin bones for drum sticks on the professor's high hat. They shake you up in dish pans and finally place you in a case with the sarcastic legend, "Don't Touch."

That's justice after they have played squat tag with you all over three continents, one ancient and two bankrupt. But it is science and research. And science and research answer to no man and few women.

Our trip to the museum helped us that the 1935 sculpting staff will be concentrated on South America, where the evaporated Incas once dwelt serene and peaceful. The museum sappers and miners will change all that.

Utilities' Tax Exemption

Mr. Earle Airs a Grievance Which the Republicans Would Do Well Not to Dodge

Denouncing the tax exemptions which he said public utilities companies enjoy in Pennsylvania, George H. Earle, the Democratic nominee for Governor, in his speech at Bellefonte Wednesday, presented an interesting comparison between the situation in our state and conditions in our neighbor states. The Philadelphia Record quotes him as follows:

"Pennsylvania collects but $11,000,000 from its railroad and telephone utilities, while New York collects $40,558,000, New Jersey $25,000,000, and Ohio almost $22,000,000. The per capita tax in Pennsylvania on its railroads and telephone companies is $1.15, while in New Jersey it is $6.17, in New York $3.23, and in Ohio $3.27 per capita.

"If Pennsylvania taxed these utilities as New Jersey did, they would pay $50,434,000 a year."

Mr. Earle attributed the "tax immunity" of public utilities in Pennsylvania to the alleged domination of the Republican party in this state by Andrew W. Mellon, Joseph R. Grundy and Gen. W. W. Atterbury.

Are Mr. Earle's figures accurate? Is it true that the public utilities enjoy privileges in Pennsylvania that are denied them in New York, New Jersey or Ohio? If they do, is it right that they should? If it is not right, what does the Republican party propose to do about it?

Oil's Diamond Jubilee

Pittsburgh Has Played a Glorious Part in the Development of This Industrial Giant

With oil men from many parts of the world in attendance, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the drilling of the first commercial petroleum well is being celebrated at Titusville today.

The land on which Col. Edwin L. Drake "brought in" his famous well in 1859 is being turned over to the state for preservation as a public park.

All Pennsylvanians may well take pride in the fact that our state was the birthplace of the gigantic industry which, by making possible the internal combustion engine, has given the world the automobile and the airplane, and revolutionized life.

Pittsburghers have particular cause for satisfaction in the glorious part that this city played in the development of oil. The first refinery was established here.

Dr. Steedle's Candidacy

The Citizens Do Not Have to Accept Him as Their Representative

Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, Republican nominee for the Legislature in the Twelfth District, has been found guilty in the United States Court, since he won the nomination, of an election fraud conspiracy, and sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary.

William H. Coleman, the Republican county chairman, says he would like Steedle to quit the race; but, since he declines, Coleman and the Republican organization will support him.

Was there ever a bolder defiance of public decency by a political organization than this promise of Coleman's to support a candidate convicted in a criminal court of base betrayal of the people?

We do not believe Steedle will be elected. But if he is—if the majority of the citizens in the Twelfth Legislative District are so ill-informed, or so indifferent, or so perverse, or so blindly partisan, as to cast their ballots for a man with Steedle's record, why that's exactly the kind of representative they should have. For under our form of government representatives do represent.

We do not believe the voters of the Twelfth District are that kind of people. We think they can be fully trusted to take care of the situation.

Stevenson Is Sore

The Removal of the Postoffice From the Corner Grocery Is Cause for Complaint

Postmaster General Farley's well-known diplomatic talents are evidently facing a crucial test up in Connecticut.

The town of Stevenson is in an uproar over the removal of the postoffice from the old corner grocery to the home of the new acting postmaster.

It is a municipal center, city hall, public forum, debating society, club, recreation room, or what have you.

To shift it—even if only 135 feet away, as in Stevenson—is very much like visiting a town with an earthquake or some other soul-stirring disaster.

It temporarily turns the local world upside down.

Mr. Farley, we are happy to note, has lost no time in grappling with the situation.

He has rushed a special investigator Stevensonward with plenipotentiary powers to smooth things over.

We sincerely hope that success crowns his efforts.

New Deals may come and go, brain-trusters may have their moments in the spotlight and their years out of it, "recovery" may materialize or not.

But the American people still demand their inalienable right to sit on cracker barrels and discuss the state of the nation when they drop around for their mail—and let no bureaucrat in Washington forget it.

No Dictatorship

Where the Press Is Free.

American democracy is not yet in danger—despite all talk of dictatorship—when daily and Sunday newspapers have a weekly circulation of 250,000,000. That was last year's average.

The press remains the greatest single popular influence in the country, and, so long as it is kept free of any taint of censorship, the greatest bulwark of free thought and free government.

By Elsie Robinson

There Is a Guy—

(The following isn't literature. It is part of the homely scene of my daily life. As such, it may not interest you. If not, pass it up, pal, and call it a day. I've done it on a gamble—the chance that it may add a mite more for some other little tike, as it has for small Jack and Charles, Louis and Sammy.)

Every night, after they've listened to Amos 'n' Andy, "read a story," had a pillow fight and been mass-scrubbed, I tumble four little tads into bed. But before that, we say thanks. You'd call it prayers. And there's a story behind that—

They're city bred, these four little fellows, all under 12. Nice breeding, nice homes, nice parents. But—you know how it is these days—there hasn't been much formal religion in their lives. Plenty of instruction in generosity, gameness, friendliness and honesty, but few of those spiritual rites which were part of every youngster's life 40 years ago. So the first night they were together the "thanks" didn't go over so well.

Gosh, what kind of a goofy game was this—kneeling down, puttin' your hands together, talking to some guy you couldn't see? Red-faced, twinkling, wriggling, they peered sheepishly at each other through spread fingers, snickered softly, broke into open giggles. I laughed, too.

Then we decided on a temporary adjournment, piled all together on "Cheeser's" bed, passed around an extra helping of lemon drops, and talked it over.

It wasn't—I fear—a very conventional talk. It certainly would have amazed an orthodox churchman. We interspersed dogma with a discussion of cures for warts, did-horsehairs-honest-turn-to-snakes, did-horned-toads-spit-blood, the time Fat got a belly-ache from swiping watermellon, and other quaint biological and sociological phenomena. But out of it all emerged certain conclusions.

There was a Guy who gave you things. Sweller things even than footballs or automobiles, BB guns, ice cream cones, 'lectric railroads or movin' picture machines. You couldn't neverever see Him, but He was there, all right. And He was always givin' you things. Not jes' things you could buy, but things even your Mom or Dad couldn't buy. Things like dirt, n' water, n' sunshine.

And inside things, too. Things you couldn't see. Like wanting to laugh, or not being a cry baby, or not snitching. And things that made you know how to build boats, even if nobody had ever told you. And swell feelings—

The giggles had stopped. The toes had stopped wiggling. Even the lemon drop swashings were subdued. Wide-eyed, they were gazing through a door they had never found before—at a Mystery they had never known existed.

Life, for them, was a Twentieth Century wonder of whirling wheels, roaring rails, glittering counters, generous moms and dads. So young, so eager, so willing to believe in miracles and marvels! Yet they had been given only a world of material wonders upon which to feed their clamoring imaginations. Store aisles to the north of them, store aisles to the east and the west and the south of them. Beyond the horizon, nothing!

And now it appeared that store aisles, and the other things one found in stores, were not all. There was a Guy . . . a swell Guy Whom you couldn't evernever see, but Who was always there on the job, Giving You Things. And it WASN'T a goofy game to thank a Guy like that. Sure you did it!

"Comeon, Cheeser. I'm goin' to thank HIM first for me hittin' the target best—"

* * *

The lights were out. The rooms were still. I went out and left them with the Guy Who was always on the job.

And I wondered what I, and the rest of us, would do if we had to face that Guy ourselves and render an accounting of our handling of these, His little ones?

BIRD GOOD EXAMPLE

By Winifred Black

SHE LET the prisoner out of the prison the other day—such a frightened, bewildered, terrified, fluttering little prisoner, and the green house in the quiet garden was the prison.

While the girl with the black eyes was in the garden cutting a few roses for the house, she heard something rapping and tapping and rustling in the little green house at the end of the garden walk; so she opened the door and looked in. Then there was a whirr of fluttering wings, and there he was, flying round and round the green house—the little bird from the garden.

He was just a young bird. Could he have come from the nest over the gallery door? There were such a lot of them in that nest, and the little mother these days seemed to be trying to push some of them out of it.

Well, this one was out all right; but what do you suppose made him leave the sunshine and the gay wind of the garden and fly into the shade and quiet of the sedate and silent green house?

Was he looking for adventure? Did he think to himself:

"Well, just look at this place, all cool and shady, and plants growing and everything, and nobody ever told me a word about it—just didn't want me to have the fun of it, maybe?

"Or, I'll bet they were all afraid to come in here, just because it was different from the nest and the roof and the tall tree at the corner of the roof.

"Shucks! Who wants to stay put all their lives? I'll just take a chance, and by and by I'll go and find them all and tell them how dumb they've been not to take a chance, too."

And then all at once there was a sound like a door shutting and the silence in the little green house was sort of—well, different, don't you know? And when little Christopher Columbus tried to fly out into the open garden—just for fun, of course; he wasn't the least bit frightened, or anything like that—the door was shut and he couldn't get out. And suddenly the green silence of the little glass house was a horror, and he fluttered and beat his breast against the windows, and he wished he could see the tree again and the shabby little old nest. Why, he'd even be glad to hear his father preaching about the dangers of life for small birds!

And his mother; maybe, if he would call very loud, she would hear him and come and help him to get out.

So he called and called, but his mother didn't seem to hear, even if she was only a short flight away, up there in her safe little nest on the roof.

And then, just as he was ready to die with fright and confusion and weariness, the door opened and the black-eyed girl came in and let him out.

I wonder what kind of a tale he told to the other birds about the green house. I saw a row of them perched on the telephone wires not long afterward, and they were all staring at the little green house with its windows of white-washed glass, and they had their heads together and were gossiping at a great rate.

I wonder if it would be a good thing to tell the half-grown boy next door about the little prisoner, and how glad he was to get back home after his great adventure.

That half-grown boy is restless and dissatisfied. He's sick and tired of being bossed around by his mother, and "picked on" by his oldest sister, and lectured by his pokey old father.

Wait till he gets out into the great splendid world! He'll show 'em! They'll be sorry they were so bossy, but he'll be good about it. He won't bother to come home again, of course, but he'll send them some nice presents at Christmas and Easter and times like that.

And he'll be sorry for them. Poor, dull things, they can't help it if they weren't able to make a success of life. But he'll show 'em, just the same.

He'll run away some day. He has all the signs of it in his brooding look and his restless way. And I do hope there'll be someone to help him get out of the prison he may make for himself—out in what he thinks is the gay "freedom" of the great world—don't you?

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Sin Takes a Holiday

* * *

"The New Morality," as it is amusingly called, is about to be disinfected, scrubbed off and then thrown out with the rubbish or put away in the attic with the rest of the moth-eaten curios. Sin is no longer smart or even fashionable. It has lost all its glamor. We have been SO FED UP on it!

The only trouble seems to be that most of us have lost our moral perspective and have gotten sin and virtue so confused that we don't know which is which.

* * *

Of course, we still know vaguely that murder is immoral, and that robbery is extremely reprehensible, and we are aware that gangsters and scarlet ladies should not be glorified in novels or on the screen, but should get what is coming to them and serve as horrible examples rather than as patterns.

* * *

But when Pancho Villa, the wholesale murderer who terrorized our border states, becomes a "hero" and a good old scout, we begin to wonder just how far a hero can go—and still be a "hero" these days. Apparently, a screen hero can listen at doorways, open letters addressed to other people and read them and help himself to the other fellow's gel, and still be highly ethical. And the heroine of one of our most successful stage plays in recent years got so tangled up emotionally with three men, that she married one of them, ran away with the other two and double-crossed all three.

This, dear hearts, is what is called "The New Morality." Personally, I prefer old-fashioned SIN with the old-fashioned villain. A decent sort of villain, who wouldn't stoop to do anything worse than foreclose the mortgage, steal the papers or tie the gel to the railroad tracks. A villain who got hissed — and LIKED it!

* * *

We simply MUST have a villain or a villainess, or at least a few sinners to make a good play or a good picture. Sinners are necessary for plot and color and dramatic effects—and, above all, for contrast. With no sin for comparison, how should we recognize virtue when we saw it?

* * *

Even Shakespeare went in heavily for villains and sinners—but he did not whitewash them and glorify them. It is only when the villain becomes the "hero" of the plot and when the scarlet lady is glorified as a "modernistic heroine" that we get our ideas of virtue and vice all mixed up.

Why not let us be frank with ourselves and run true to life? No gangster is a hero—he is just a super-rotter. And no scarlet lady is a lily, no matter how cleverly she may plead "The New Morality" to prove it.

* * *

I don't like "The New Morality." When I see a play I want my sin straight, my sinners bad and my villain punished or shot. These Pretty-Boy villains in heroes' clothing are making everybody awfully tired!

Will Rogers Says:

CHITA, Siberia, Aug. 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Been waiting to reach a town that American readers could pronounce. Chita, that's an old American word. Came up through Corea then the length and breadth of Manchuria. Was two days on the Chinese Eastern Railway. That's the one Japan is trying to buy, but take this tip: Russia wont sell. She is just kidding them.

Will Rogers

Tell you some time about all the military preparations on both sides. I said some time I would tell you. This is the heart of Eastern Siberia. All a beautiful prairie, not a tree, not a tree, not a fence, just grass up to your stirrups. Tomorrow we pass around beautiful Lake Baikal.

Yours, WILL.

Canadians Are Celebrating Today the 400th Anniversary of the Arrival of the White Man

By Edwin C. Hill

FOUR hundred years ago today a young French sea captain, searching for Cathay, set foot on Canada. And this very day, at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, that anniversary, of such fascinating significance to our neighbor to the north, is being celebrated by notables from all over the Dominion and from France as well.

It is something, after all, for a nation to come to its four hundredth birthday, and sane, sensible, solid Canada takes immense pride in the observance. For Cartier was the first link in a long chain of heroes, French and English, who made Canada what she is today.

Commanded by Francis I to find out what might lie west of Newfoundland and Labrador, the ancient hope still being cherished that a little to the west was the fabled land of gold and jewels, Cathay, the same will-o'-the-wisp which guided the caravels of Columbus, Jacques Cartier set out from his home village of St. Malo on April 20, 1534, to venture the perilous western seas.

Sighting Newfoundland, near Cape Bonavista, he followed the coast southward to a point nearly opposite Cape Breton; then turning westward he reached Prince Edward Island and what is now Charlottetown, where the great celebration is being held. At Cape Gaspe he landed and raised the royal flag of France, the golden lilies on the white field, taking possession of the country, as far west as it might run, in the name of his master, King Francis.

The next year, with another fleet, he came back and sailed up the St. Lawrence. Leaving his ships moored near the Indian village of Stadacona, on the site of modern Quebec, Cartier pushed on into the forest, to the fortified village of Hochelaga at the foot of an imposing hill which the explorer promptly named Mt. Royal. We know it under its French name of Montreal. He sailed for home, but came again, for the third time, in 1541, proceeding up the St. Lawrence and fortifying that Stadacona which was to become the great Citadel of Quebec, where Wolfe and Montcalm fought it out eventually, and where the lilies of France were to droop before the lions of England.

Cured His Men With Indian Herbs

T. M. LONGSTRETH gives us fascinating glimpses of this founder of a great nation—of a nation, indeed, which will someday be the very heart and center of the whole British aggregation of nations. In his most readable book, "Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa," he pictures the strenuous Jacques Cartier, with steadfast eyes, and indomitable chin and able hands; who told the Indian chief that his god was a fool, but cured his scurvied men with Indian herbs.

Cartier, the veritable pioneer and paladin of the birth of a nation. After him came many great figures. Champlain of tremendous courage and unextinguishable curiosity, who fought and beat the dreaded Iroquois, but who thereby ruined the hopes of the French in North America, for in defeating the Red men he sowed in them the seeds of incurable hatred, antagonizing them forever, causing them to turn in the end to the British.

And with Champlain, his beautiful young wife, Helene, a young girl with an aging man, and then the brothers Kirke of Caen, who conquered Quebec for the ungrateful Charles II. Pere le Jeune, in his forest school; the practical Talon, who hustled the unmarried into matrimony with the result that in one year, in 1671, 700 babies were baptized in Quebec alone. And Laval, the ascetic bishop, demanding that God have precedence over the King. Frontenac, the magnificent, and Vaudreuil the vain, and then Montcalm and the end of the French and the coming of the British.

* * *

Modern Quebec Linked With Past

QUEBEC'S mountain still proudly raises her head as in Cartier's time, and about Quebec some savor of the first of the Frenchman still clings. As Justice William Renwick Riddle, of the Ontario Court of Appeals, tells us, modern Quebec is, in all things, linked up with her past, the past that begins with Stadacona and Jacques Cartier.

It was two centuries after Cartier that Canada passed, finally, into British hands, and now four centuries after him, Britain, France and the United States unite to honor his memory and commemorate the birth of a nation.

From Charlettetown and Prince Edward Island the official party, with pageantry reviving the great event of four centuries ago, will move on to the Bay of Gaspe. Their passengers will land to unveil a great granite cross, a replica in all but size of the cross which Cartier planted upon the very spot when he took possession of the new land in the name of his king.

The next day, Sunday, will be marked by the celebration of a military and pontifical mass. On August 26 the voyage up the St. Lawrence to Quebec, in the long vanished wake of Cartier, will begin. Three days will be spent in the city Cartier founded, with Gov.-Gen. Lord Bessborough as the principal figure.

Then there will be a day at Three Rivers, where a monument signalizing the enduring persistence of French Christianity will be unveiled. Then on to Montreal for two days, where a bust of Cartier will be unveiled. On again to Ottawa and thence to Toronto for a final pageant depicting Cartier's discovery.

Strong Roosevelt Ally Likely for Speaker

By James T. Williams, Jr.

SPEAKER RAINEY'S death is expected to start a spirited race for the speakership of the House in the Congress to be elected next November.

Speaker Rainey owed his election at the beginning of the Seventy-third Congress to the test by President Roosevelt and neutrality declared in that connection by Vice President Garner and to the support given Mr. Rainey's candidacy by the Tammany delegation in Congress and the Democratic delegations from New Jersey and Illinois. These three delegations held the balance of power.

Until Mr. Curry, of Tammany Hall, and Mr. McCooey, his ally, arrived in Washington and surveyed the situation, Congressman McDuffie, of Alabama, seemed to be reasonably certain of election as the successor of Speaker Garner.

In the preceding Congress, at Mr. Garner's request, Mr. McDuffie withdrew as floor leader, in order that Mr. Rainey might be elected to that important position.

When the Democrats gained control of the Seventy-second Congress it soon became evident that Mr. Garner would be the overwhelming, if not unanimous choice of his party for speaker in succession to his Republican friend and political opponent, Mr. Longworth. Mr. Garner preferred Mr. Rainey for floor leader for party reasons. He wished to nationalize the Democratic leadership of the House by electing as its floor leader a Democratic Congressman from north of Mason and Dixon's line. The long and devoted service of Mr. Rainey made him the natural choice for this position, because in addition to his other qualifications he hailed from Illinois.

Tammany Group Supported Rainey

WHEN Speaker Garner was elected Vice President, Mr. Rainey and Mr. McDuffie became the leading candidates to succeed him, with Congressman Byrns, of Tennessee, next in the race.

Had the Tammany delegation and its allies thrown their support to Mr. McDuffie he would have been elected speaker. Congressman McCormack, of Massachusetts, floor leader, and Congressman Rainey would have become chairman of the powerful Committee on Ways and Means.

But the Tammany delegation and its allies supported Mr. Rainey for Speaker and Mr. Byrns for floor leader and carried the Democratic caucus.

Whether the Roosevelt administration keeps out of the contest now beginning, which will determine the successor to Mr. Rainey in the next Congress, will doubtless depend upon the number of candidates that announce for the speakership, the strength they develop and the record they made in the Seventy-third Congress.

It seems reasonable to assume that the administration will insist upon the election of a Speaker who will not only go along with the President in support of his legislative program, but will be able to take the Democratic majority with him. Doubtless all the candidates will declare that to be their intention, but the administration may prefer to compare their promises regarding the Seventy-fourth Congress with their performance in the Seventy-third Congress.

As floor leader of the House, Congressman Byrns will insist that he is entitled to promotion to the speakership. Congressman Bankhead, of Alabama, chairman of the powerful Committee on Rules, having withdrawn from the race in favor of Congressman McDuffie two years ago, may be less willing to step aside for his fellow Alabaman again, should Mr. McDuffie yield to the pressure that will doubtless be put upon him to renew his candidacy, which came so close to success in 1933.

Speaker's Work Now More Difficult

THERE will be other candidates for the speakership, most of whom will in reality be running for the position of floor leader. If the South gains the speakership, northern and western democrats will try to unite their efforts to elect one of their number floor leader.

This much seems certain: the job of Speaker of the House in the next Congress will be beset with greater difficulties than faced the Speaker of the House during the first two years of the Roosevelt administration.

The Democratic majority in the House may be reduced; in any case, it will be less docile than during the last two years, harder to lead, more disposed to divide on lines of regional interest.

Most of the patronage at the disposal of the President has been disposed of. The Republican opposition may not greatly increase its numbers in the next House but what there is of it will be more articulate, better organized and more aggressively led.

If the leadership of the President is to be strongly supported in the new Congress, he must have in the speakership of the next House a powerful ally regardless of whether he hails from the North, South, East or West, and regardless of whether his name is Byrns, McDuffie, Bankhead or something else.
